Genealogy is a science that appeals to the normal and healthy mind of all intelligent human beings. Its methods have developed to give aid in satisfying an inborn human craving to know, in so far as it is possible to accurately determine it, the vital facts concerning one's forebears. It is essentially democratic in its appeal. Emphatically it is not the prerogative of the temporarily rich and the self-regarded aristocrat.

Preface

A family history is full of delightful surprises and discoveries to one who chooses to make it a study. It has also many disappointments and baffling problems, and many tangles to be straightened out. Never-theless it proves to be such an elusive and fascinating subject that one is led on and on, finally becoming firmly held in the bonds of its peculiar charm. Like many other interesting subjects, the more meagre and incomplete the material the more fascinating the quest becomes. In the search for some ancestral line, one small bit of data or tradition may often be a clue to something else, so that little by little the obscure points are revealed, and in the end one's patience and perseverance are richly rewarded.

At the beginning of my research on the Boone family, the original object of tracing a Revolutionary ancestor was almost lost sight of when curious old records of his forefathers came to light. It was then that three discoveries were made, to which, it may be truthfully said, this present volume owes its existence. These discoveries were:—

First, no comprehensive genealogy of the Boone family had ever been published.

Second, several valuable sources of early Boone history were in existence: notably, the original manuscript of the old James Boone genealogy; the early records of the Society of Friends (Quakers) in Pennsylvania; and the Draper Collection of Manuscripts in the Library of the Historical Society of Wisconsin.

Third, many Boone descendants were deeply interested in the family's history and proud of their traditional relationship to Daniel Boone the pioneer, yet lacked the records which would enable them to trace their ancestry back to the first Boone ancestor in America.

The work of compiling this genealogy was undertaken with the object of drawing together the many valuable old records of the family and preserving them in compact and enduring form which would be easily accessible to members of the family and others who might be interested. At the same time it was thought advisable to collect for posterity all available records of the present generation, lest they might become lost or rendered obscure by the passing of years.

Such a purpose, however, could not have been accomplished alone and unaided. It was made possible only by the generous and untiring cooperation of other members of the Boone family. In addition to the help which they have rendered by contributing records, their interest and encouragement have made it possible to "carry on" in times of discouragement and to bring the work finally to a conclusion. It gives me pleasure to acknowledge my indebtedness and express my gratitude to all those whose names follow:

To Miss Bess Hawthorne (No. 4328), of La Place, Illinois, my valued and capable assistant for several months, is due the credit of helping to prepare the manuscript for the printer's hands, and of rendering every possible assistance towards completing and perfecting the work. She has also contributed data on more than five hundred descendants of Mary (Boone) Tribble, daughter of George Boone and niece of Daniel Boone the pioneer.

Mr. Jesse Procter Crump (No. 3850) of Independence, Missouri, a great-great-grandson of Daniel Boone, has spent many years collecting material on Daniel Boone and his descendants. The splendid results of this research he has contributed to this book, so that with a few exceptions, the descendants of Daniel Boone which it contains are almost entirely from his collection. He has also written for this genealogy the special biography of Daniel Boone the Kentucky pioneer, and has by his own efforts succeeded in proving the parentage of Daniel Boone's wife Rebecca, a subject which has been disagreed upon, and which has never before been authentically presented in print.

Miss Mary Josephine Roe (No. 1663) of Gilbert, Ohio, a descendant of the Lincoln as well as of the Boone family, has also contributed the result of many years of research. From her collection we have the descendants of Benjamin Boone, son of George Boone III, although a part of these (the descendants of his daughter Dinah) were first contributed by Miss Roe to Mr. William F. Reed for his "Descendants of Thomas Durfee of Portsmouth, Rhode Island." To Miss Roe is also due, more or less directly, the acquisition of many descendants of George Boone IV, and other material on the Pennsylvania lines.

Mrs. Willia Lee Middlekamp (No. 2531), of Pomona, California, has gathered for this book a remarkably complete record of several hundred descendants of Elizabeth (Boone) Copher, daughter of George Boone and niece of Daniel Boone the pioneer. As Mrs. Middlekamp's collection was gathered very recently, it contains record of many soldiers of the World War, all of which are carefully authenticated.

I am exceedingly grateful to my husband, James R. Spraker, for his constant help, his valuable criticisms, and his never-failing interest throughout the work.

The Draper Collection of Manuscripts in possession of the Historical Society of Wisconsin has proven to be a veritable mine of information on the Boone family. The Boone papers are principally in the form of interviews obtained sixty or seventy years ago by Dr. Lyman C. Draper, an early secretary of that society. Some of these interviews were obtained directly or indirectly from the early pioneers who had emigrated from North Carolina into Kentucky with Daniel Boone and his associates. Others were from members of a later generation who were born in Kentucky or went there as children, yet at such an early date that some of the first historical events of Kentucky came within their memories. Much of this information Dr. Draper incorporated in his "Life of Daniel Boone", which was unfinished at the time of his death and remains in manuscript form. To the Historical Society of Wisconsin I am greatly indebted for the privilege of obtaining much Boone material from this valuable collection. It is referred to throughout this book as "Draper Mss."

This is purely a history of the Boones in America. No effort has been made to trace the family back into English records. It will be noticed that in the book no use is made of the Boone coat-of-arms with which many American descendants are familiar. This is because I have been unable to find any evidence that George Boone III, our immigrant ancestor, either used or was entitled to use this coat-of-arms. It may have even belonged to some contemporary branch of the family in England, and never have come down in our line at all. Bearing in mind that George Boone III was a weaver and his father a blacksmith, it seems neither suitable nor reasonable for us to appropriate a coat-of-arms simply because it carries the name of Boone. It would be very interesting if the mazes and intricacies of English heraldry would sometime reveal to us just how our family stands in regard to this coat-of-arms. Let us hope that such an investigation will some day be made.

In a family so imbued with the spirit of migration and adventure as this one, it is not surprising to find that much data has been lost or never recorded. Among people who have lived for generations in one locality, we find that genealogical history is usually quite complete. It must be very easy to learn much of a great-grandmother whose cups and pitchers, spinning-wheel and copper kettle occupy their old familiar corners, as they do in many New England homes. When, however, young people married and moved West with all their worldly goods on a few pack-horses, it is not strange that they failed to burden themselves with the old family records, and even failed to remember the family traditions, so filled were their later years with arduous labor in a new frontier country. I think we may well be all the prouder of them for this, and thankfully record what little they have left us.

Every effort has been made to make this genealogy as authentic and accurate as possible. Proof has been required of every statement concerning persons born before 1825. Persons born after that date have, as a rule, come within the memories of those yet living, so that matters concerning them are within the actual knowledge of the present generation and are not merely tradition. With each biography or family group, references have been given for all data obtained from books or public records. Where no references are given, it is to be understood that the information came from family records only, supplied usually by a descendant or close relative of that particular group. The reader may rest assured that every relationship stated has stood the test of very careful collation before finding a place in the records. With the exception of a large group taken from "The Descendants of Thomas Durfee", by Reed, and a few other scattered names, the data on all families from the fifth generation down to the present has been collected especially for this genealogy and has never before been published.

While realizing to the fullest extent the imperfections and shortcomings of this work, I yet trust that it will fulfil to some extent its purpose of preserving the chronicles and records of this family. I also hope that those who read its pages may derive some measure of the pleasure and interest which I have experienced while preparing this history of the descendants of George Boone III, our first American ancestor.

Explanatory Notes

HOW TO TRACE A LINE OF ANCESTRY IN THIS BOOK

Each descendant of George and Mary Boone is numbered in small print when his name first appears among the children of his parents. If he marries and has children, his name appears again in the following generation, bearing the same number, this time as the head of a family, in large print. If a name is to be thus repeated there will be a small cross (+) before the name and number when first given.

Thus in order to trace the ancestry of any one person, first find his name as given in small print. Above his name will be found the biography of his parent, with name and number in large print. Turning back to the preceding generation, find this parent's name and number in small print, headed by his parent. This is the grandparent of the person you started from. Trace the numbers back in this way through the generations until George Boone III is reached. To trace a person's descendants reverse the process and trace from the early to the late generations. In a few cases it will be found that descendants have not been given a serial number. This is because their names were received after the numbering had been finished.

The ancestral line in parentheses following each subject's name, such as James Boone (Samuel^{5}; William^{4}; George^{3}), means simply that James is a son of Samuel, who was a son of William who was a son of George; or that James' father was Samuel, his grandfather William and his great-grandfather George. When a woman's name appears in the ancestral line, her full maiden name is used. The small superior figure indicates the generation.

OLD AND NEW STYLE OF TIME

It must not be forgotten, in reading many early records, especially those of the Society of Friends, that dates prior to 1752 are usually given in the Old Style or Julian Time. A simple explanation of this change of time is to be found in "Our Calendar", a pamphlet by Gilbert Cope of West Chester, Pa., an eminent genealogist. It reads:—

> "An act of Parliment was passed in 1751, prescribing the adoption of the Gregorian Calendar throughout Great Britian and her colonies; making the succeeding year begin with the first of January and dropping eleven nominal days (3-13) from the month of September, 1752, so that what would have been the third of the month was called the 14th. The Quakers at their yearly meeting adopted this method, directing the members to recognize the change of style, and decreeing that thereafter the months should be numbered beginning with January. Formerly their numbering had begun with the month called March."

Hence by merely adding eleven days to a date given in Old Style, we have the corresponding date according to our present calendar. In Julian or "Old Style" time, prior to 1752, the year began March 25th. In Gregorian or "New Style" time, the year begins with January 1st.

Family history is interwoven with our country's history, particularly when its roots strike deep into Colonial times.

The Boone Family in America

The history of this family has its foundation in the brief genealogical data which was brought from England, and which was preserved by John Boone, son of George Boone III. John, who was the scholar of the family at that time, gave the information to his nephew James Boone, also a scholar and family historian, who recorded the data both accurately and beautifully in the remarkable old document known as the James Boone Genealogy. A reproduction is here given of the original manuscript, which is preserved by the Historical Society of Wisconsin, and a transcription of it may be found on page 583 of the Appendix. Including the two generations of English ancestry which were recorded by James Boone in this manuscript, and back of which we have no knowledge, our family records now cover twelve generations,—twelve generations of a people more rough-hewn than fashionable, more practical than artistic, more constructive than idealistic; retaining the strong, forceful characteristics of its early ancestry, yet progressing with the times in matters of developement and education.

After coming to the New World the Boone Family quickly became part and parcel of Colonial America. English it was, in blood and inheritance; but American it became, in deed and spirit, giving generation after generation to the best interests of American colonization and citizenship. Never faltering, never failing, it pressed onward with the western frontiers of civilization which then swept in successive waves across the continent. Not the sword and gilded snuff-box, but rather the musket and woodman's axe were the symbols of this rugged family of pioneers. Not the perfume of courtly ballrooms and assemblies, but rather the breath of the forest and tang of the log fire were the atmosphere in which it labored and rejoiced. The mountains and illimitable plains furnished the home and playground which developed that splendid physical strength and moral courage without which no family can live and prosper. In pioneer settlements its members became a part of the industrious, home-building element which has so largely determined the eventual character of our great western states.

With the passing of those pioneer days so fraught with danger and hardship, we find the Boone family adjusting itself to more quiet pursuits, although ever ready to be at the forefront of any progressive movement requiring action and initiative. Its later members have joined the great ranks of those who are engaged in the fields of commerce, agriculture, finance and education, and thus are doing their humble share towards making the United States the greatest and most progressive of all nations.

Our Genealogy, or Pedigree; traced as far back as had come to the Knowledge of John Boone [the Son of George & Mary Boone]: Wrote by James Boone [Grandson of the said George & Mary Boone].

George Boone, I. (that is the first that we have heard of) was born in England.

George Boone, II. [Son of George Boone the First] was born in or near the City of Exeter in Devonshire; being a Blacksmith; his Wife's Maiden Name was Sarah Uppey. He died aged 60; and she died aged 80 Years, and never had an aching Bone, or decay'd Tooth.

George Boone, III. [Son of George & Sarah Boone] was born at Noak, (a Village near the City of Exeter) in A. D. 1666, being a Weaver; his Wife's Maiden Name was Mary Maugridge, who was born in Bradninch (eight Miles from the City of Exeter) in the Year 1669, being a Daughter of John Maugridge & Mary his Wife whose maiden Name was Milton. They (the said George & Mary Boone) had nine Children that lived to be Men and Women, namely, George, Sarah, Squire, Mary, John, Joseph, Benjamin, James, & Samuel, having each of them Several Children, excepting John who was never married. The said George and Mary Boone with their Family, came from the Town of Bradninch in Devonshire, Old-England (which is a Town at 8 Miles Distance from the City of Exeter, and 177 measured Miles Westward from London); They left Bradninch the 17 Aug. 1717, and went to Bristol where they took Shipping, and arrived at Philadelphia in 1717 September 29, Old-Style, or October 10th New-Style; three of their Children, to wit, George, Sarah & Squire they sent in a few Years before. From Philadelphia they went to Abington, and staid a few Months there; thence to North-Wales, and liv'd about 2 Years there; thence to Oley in the same County of Philadelphia, where Sarah (being married) had moved to some Time before. This last Place of their Residence, (since the Divisions made in the Township of Oley & County of Philadelphia) is called the Township of Exeter in the County of Berks: It was called Exeter, because they came from a Place near the City of Exeter. And,

He the said George Boone the Third, died on the Sixth Day of the Week, near 8 O'Clock in the Morning, on the 27th of July 1744, aged 78 Years; and Mary his Wife died on the 2d Day of the Week, on the 2d of February 1740-1, aged 72 Years; and were decently interred in Friends Burying-Ground, in the said Township of Exeter. When he died, he left 8 Children, 52 Grand-Children, and 10 Great-Grand-Children, living; in all 70, being as many Persons as the House of Jacob which came into Egypt.

First Generation

I. GEORGE BOONE First, born in England.

Second Generation

II. GEORGE BOONE Second (son of George Boone First), born in or near the City of Exeter in Devonshire, England. Died aged sixty. He was a blacksmith.

He married Sarah Uppey, who died aged eighty, and who "never had an aching bone or decayed tooth."

Third Generation

III. GEORGE BOONE Third (son of George Boone Second and wife Sarah Uppey), born in 1666 at Stoak, England, a village near the City of Exeter in Devonshire; died 27 July (Old Style) or 7 Aug. (New Style), 1744, in Exeter township, Berks Co., Pa., aged seventy-eight years.

Married Mary Maugridge (b. 1669 in Bradninch, England, eight miles from Exeter in Devonshire), a daughter of John and Mary (Milton) Maugridge.

George Boone and wife Mary were members of the Society of Friends (Quakers) in Callumpton, Devonshire, from which Meeting they took a letter of recommendation to the Society of Friends in America. Whether they were dissatisfied with their condition as Quakers in England, or whether they were impelled by that desire for adventure and travel which was later so strongly manifested in Daniel Boone and his brothers, will never be known. On the 17th of August, 1717, with six children, George Boone and his wife left the town of Bradninch in Devonshire and went to Bristol, where they set sail for America.

They had definitely decided to put the Old World, with its customs and traditions, behind them, to brave the danger and uncertainty of an ocean voyage, and to link their fortunes with the New World which beckoned so alluringly from across the sea. This momentous decision was not made without wise consideration, however, for their three eldest children, George, Squire and Sarah, had been sent to America a few years before to investigate conditions. This was in 1713 or earlier, as we have record of the marriage of George Boone, Jr., in America in 1713. There is an interesting field for thought in the question of what influences brought about this emigration which means so much to all of us who are their descendants. One tradition is that William Penn was a friend of George Boone, and had persuaded him to emigrate to America. There is no doubt that their Quaker affiliation had much to do with the matter.

George Boone was a weaver by trade, and had no doubt, by frugal living and diligent application to his trade, and we know not what other sacrifices, saved up quite a sum of money for this faring forth. Being people of simple tastes, they probably took with them only such "goods and chattels" as could be conveniently carried.

No record was left of the long and perilous voyage across the Atlantic, and even the name of the vessel is unknown. They arrived at Philadelphia on the 29th of September (Old Style) or 10th of October (New Style), 1717. We like to picture them as being met by friends as they stepped onto the crude landing place at Philadelphia. At least we can be reasonably sure that they were met with open arms by their three children, George, Squire and Sarah, who poured into their eager ears bright accounts of the wonderful new land which was to become their future home. It must have been a happy reunion for George and Mary Boone, who had been separated for several years from their three eldest children. Once more they were surrounded by all their beloved sons and daughters, who were destined to become the progenitors of a family as staunch, sturdy and typically American as any which ever helped to build our nation. The little group had come to stay; to become a part of the very root and fiber of the New World. There was no looking backward, or thought of returning to England with possible gains. It is reasonable to suppose that of all the family the mother may have been the only one who sometimes, in the years that followed, longed for the quiet peace of the old home village in England, with its mellow church bells, old garden hedges, and kindly gossiping neighbors.

It seems that when George Boone III and his family arrived in America they had as yet decided upon no definite location for a home. They went first to Abington, a village near Philadelphia, where the eldest son George had married and had lived since 1713. There they remained a few months; then went to North Wales in Philadelphia Co., where they lived some two years; and finally in 1720, to Oley township in Philadelphia Co. (now Exeter township in Berks Co.). There George Boone took a grant of land and founded his permanent home. When the divisions were made, in the township of Oley and County of Philadelphia, the new township was called "Exeter" in honor of the old home in England. There may also have been other families in that locality who came from old Exeter, but George Boone and his sons appear to have been the most prominent members of the community.

Soon after their arrival in America they had become members of the Gwynedd Monthly Meeting of Friends. No doubt their early residence in North Wales came within the scope of Gwynedd Meeting, which embraced also their new home in Oley. This latter section soon became a separate meeting called Oley Meeting, which name was later changed to Exeter Meeting. Several items concerning George Boone III, are found in the Friends' Records, the earliest being as follows:—

> "10-31-1717" (Dec. 31) "George Boone, Sr. produced a certificate of his good life and conversation from the Monthly Meeting at Callumpton in Great Britain, which was read and well received."

In 1720, George Boone was called to account for allowing the courtship between his daughter Mary and John Webb. Just how this was contrary to the rules and regulations of the Society we are not told, but George Boone acknowledged his fault in meeting:—

> "5-26-1720 George Boone has openly acknowledged in the meeting his forwardness in giving his consent to John Webb to keep company with his daughter in order to marry, contrary to ye established order amongst us."

The next record of George Boone is some eleven years later, when Gwynedd Meeting records that Oley Friends had appointed George Boone, Sr., one of two men to visit families within the verge of their meeting. This was approved by the Gwynedd Meeting.

It is difficult to find any record of the land warrant of George Boone's own property, although in the Minutes of the Proprietors of Pennsylvania, we find the following entry which seems to refer to property purchased for the son George:—

> "Agreed with George Boone of Gwynedd, Sr., for his son George, for 400 acres of land at Oley, for 14 pounds per 100, and 1 shilling sterling quit rent, ye warrant dated ye 20th October, 1718." (a)

Having chosen what is now, and no doubt was then, a most beautiful piece of fertile, rolling land, George Boone built a log house upon it in 1720. The site of the original house is marked by a boulder placed there by the Historical Society of Berks County, Pa. Thirteen years later, having prospered, he erected a larger house of stone near by, which is

GEORGE BOONE, grandfather of
DANIEL BOONE
Site of Geo. Boone's log house, built about 1720
Historical Society of Berks Co.

On May 31st, 1917, the writer visited the George Boone home, about 14 miles from Reading, Pa. This is a substantial, quaintly attractive stone house, said to be the one built by George Boone 3rd in 1733. The house is occupied by a thrifty German family which has kept everything about the place in most immaculate and "spic and span" condition, so that the place shows none of the signs of decay and disintegration which might be expected in so old a house. On the contrary it looks quite equal to another hundred years or so of wear. The original stone house is intact, but additions have been built. The angle of the original roof remains, but on one side, where the roof had at first sloped down to a very low eave over the first floor, a second floor extension has been raised, without disturbing or removing the original rafters, so that the house has the appearance of having a second floor addition built on top of the roof. The side nearest the road has a long low porch the entire width of the house, which is probably an addition. At the left of this is the real front of the house (facing the sun) with a quaint gabled portico before the door. There are few windows and many of these are narrow ones scarcely a foot wide, so built, it is said, as a protection against the intrusions of red-skinned visitors. The entire house, outbuildings, and all the fences are beautifully plastered and whitewashed. This is the house which George Boone 3rd built for his children, remaining himself in the first log house, which is no longer standing. The stone house is probably about forty feet square. A stone set in or near one corner of the building bears the date 1733. There are two other buildings on the property. One is a stone two-story building over the spring, which bubbles up in a cellar room and passes out through an opening in the wall through a walled-in canal or trough about ten feet wide and forty feet long, finally meandering away in a stream through the meadow. At the end of this little canal on its banks, once stood the tanners' vats used by George Boone and his family, who were tanners by trade. Directly back of the house at some distance stands another two-story stone building, now used for a corn crib and storage house. This bears a date stone over the door marked "I. B." Back of and at either side of the homestead extend most beautiful meadows and rolling, well-cultivated farm lands.

Having built the new house, George Boone refused for some reason to live in it himself, but turned it over to his children and continued to reside in the log house until his death. It is quite possible that some of his married children were then living at home with young families, and that George Boone and his wife Mary preferred the quiet of the smaller home for themselves, as they were no longer young. When George Boone III died it is said that his remains were carried into the stone house and from there to his burial in the Friends' burying-ground at Exeter Meeting House. An old family Bible records the fact that "when Grandfather died he left 8 children, 52 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren living, in all 70, being as many persons as the house of Jacob which came into Egypt."

In accordance with the custom of the Friends Society, no stones mark the graves of George Boone III and his wife Mary, but a far greater memorial is found in the thousands of descendants who unite in honoring their memory.

CHILDREN:—

+1 George Boone IV, b. 13 July, 1690 (Old Style).

2 Sarah Boone, b. 18 Feb., 1691 or '92 (Old Style) or 29 Feb., 1792 (New Style); d. probably before 1744; m. 15 Mar., 1715, Jacob Stover, also spelled Stuber and Stowber. Her marriage is recorded in Christ Church, Philadelphia. She was one of the three eldest children of George Boone III, who came to America in advance of the parents; was married and settled in Oley township, Philadelphia Co. (now Berks), before their arrival. (See old James Boone Genealogy.) While she was the first of the family to settle in that locality, she evidently did not affiliate with the Friends Meeting there, as no data concerning her appears in the Quaker records. She was no doubt absorbed by the German element into which she married. It is also possible that she died quite young, as it is recorded that her father, when he died in 1744, left eight children. As all the others are known to have survived their father, Sarah must have been the first one to die. Her descendants, if any, are unknown. We find that one Jacob Stauber was granted land, on Oley Creek, Philadelphia Co. (now Berks Co.), in 1714. (b) It is thought that Jacob removed to Virginia, probably after his wife's death, for we find in Virginia record of one Jacob Stover's sale of land in Augusta Co. (now Rockingham Co.), to George Boone of Oley; one tract of 500 acres and another of 1000 acres described as near the end of North Mountain, on a small branch of the Shenandoah, part of 5000 acres laid out for Stover by the Council of Virginia July, 1730. In 1738 a wife Margaret (Stover) signed a deed for land sold by Jacob to another person. Margaret was probably a second wife. (c)

+3 Squire Boone, b. 25 Nov., 1696.

+4 Mary Boone, b. 23 Sept., 1699.

5 John Boone, b. 3 Jan., 1701 or '02. (Old Style) or 14 Jan., 1702 (New Style), in Bradninch, Devonshire, England; d. Oct., 1785 in Exeter Twp., Berks Co., Pa. He never married; was a school teacher and man of some learning. It was he who preserved the record of the family births and deaths and passed them on to his nephew James (son of James and Mary) who compiled them into the quaint genealogy which has come down to us. He died in his eighty-fourth year; having lived in America exactly 68 years. His will, which was signed 5 Oct., 1785, proven 22 Oct., 1785, mentions nephews Judah, Moses, James and Joshua; and Martha, wife of George Hughes, Rachel, wife of William Wilcoxson, Anne, wife of Abraham Lincoln, and Mary, wife of Thomas Lee; all of whom were children of his brother James. He also mentions an Isaiah Boone. (e)

6 Joseph Boone, b. 5 Apr., 1704; d. 30 Jan., 1776, in his 72nd year; m. Catherine —— (d. 31 Jan., 1778). Their descendants are not known, and no authentic knowledge of Joseph has been found except the above data from the old James Boone Genealogy. Several marriages under the name Joseph Boone appear at various dates in Exeter Records, the earliest reading as follows:—

"8-30-1733, Joseph Boone produced a paper of condemnation for proceeding in marriage contrary to order."

Also a Joseph Boone, Jr., married in 1751, which may have been his son. It is said that Joseph resided on the farm in Berks Co., where a man named Washington Gulden lived in 1860. (d) The name of Joseph Boone appears in a list of 76 taxables in Exeter Twp., 1741 (f) and in the land warrants of Pennsylvania, a Joseph Boone received in Philadelphia Co., 200 acres Jan. 4, 1734; 200 acres Mar. 4, 1750; and 50 acres in Lancaster Co., Mar. 4, 1750. In an indenture concerning land of Squire Boone (the original of which is in possession of the Historical Society of Berks Co.) Squire's property is described as adjoining lands of Joseph Boone, in 1768.

+9 Samuel Boone, b. about 1711.

We live in the past by a knowledge of its history, and in the future by hope and anticipation. By ascending to an association with our ancestors; by contemplating their example and studying their character; by partaking their sentiments and imbibing their spirit; by accompanying them in their toils; by sympathizing in their sufferings and rejoicing in their successes and triumphs, we mingle our existence with theirs and seem to belong to their age.

DANIEL WEBSTER

Fourth Generation

1. GEORGE BOONE IV. (son of George[3]), born 13 July (O. S.) or 24 July (N. S.), 1690, in the town of Bradninch, Devonshire, England, "about half past five in the afternoon"; died 20 Nov., 1753, in Exeter township, Berks County, Pa. (then Philadelphia Co.), in the 64th year of his age. (a)

Married 27 July (O. S.) or 7 Aug. (N. S.), 1713, in Abington, Philadelphia, Pa., Deborah Howell (b. 3 Nov., 1691 [N. S.], d. 26 Jan., 1759), daughter of William and Mary Howell. (b)

Accompanied by his brother Squire and sister Sarah, George Boone came to America a few years in advance of his parents and their other children, probably about 1713, and was married soon after his arrival. He settled at Abington, in Philadelphia Co., a village not far from Philadelphia, and in the Meeting Records of the Abington Society of Friends we find the following entries regarding him:—

> "5-27-1713, George Boone, Jr., and Deborah, daughter of Wm. Howell, married."
> "8-26-1713, George Boone produced a certificate from 'Bradwitch' in Devonshire, Great Britain, of his orderly and good conversation while he lived there, which was read and accepted."

At Abington, George Boone was appointed to take charge of the records of the Friends Society, and many of the old records now extant are in his writing. (Preserved in the Friends Libraries of Philadelphia.) These items are also found in Abington Monthly Meeting Records:—

> "10-28-1716, George Boone delivered a large bound book in order to Transcribe over ye Minutes in ye M. Meeting Books."
> "1-30-1718, Friends at this Meeting do appoint Everard Bolton and Morris and Robert Fletcher to view ye Minutes that are recorded by George Boone and to agree with him for the transcription and pay him and give the Meeting acct. next month."

George Boone, was joined in 1717 by his father and family, who stayed in Abington but a few months and then located in North Wales, but it is probable that George Boone, Jr., continued to reside in Abington until he left there with his wife and children to settle at Oley in 1720. He probably taught school at Abington, as his nephew, James Boone, recorded that George Boone IV, "taught school for several years near Philadelphia; was a good mathematician and taught the several branches of English learning; and was a magistrate for several years."

In 1718 he purchased land in Oley township, Philadelphia, Co. (now Exeter Twp., Berks Co.), which we find record of in the Minutes of the Proprietors of Pennsylvania:—

> "Agreed with George Boone, Jr., of Abington for 400 acres of land at Oley, at 14 pounds per hundred and one shilling sterling quit rent, for which a warrant is granted. Signed and dated the 4th of October, 1718." (c)

On 26 Dec., 1720, a certificate was granted by the Abington Meeting to George Boone and family to "settle in and towards Oley and join themselves to Gwynedd Meeting." It can reasonably be supposed that they removed at about that time.

The land warrants of Pennsylvania show many entries of land granted to George Boone in Philadelphia and Berks Counties, but which tracts are taken up by George Boone, Jr., and which by his father or younger relatives it is impossible to determine. It is said that when Exeter township was erected 7 Dec., 1841, out of the south west part of Oley township, including 13,500 acres, the survey was made by George Boone. (d)

At their new home in Oley George Boone and his wife again became active in affairs of the Friends Society, this time under the fold of Gwynedd Meeting. They were probably instrumental in founding the new meeting which was later formed, and called Oley Meeting. On 24th Dec., 1736, George Boone and wife Deborah deeded to the Friends one acre of ground for a meeting-house and burying-place. The first meeting house stood upon this plot, although the present building is across the road. (e) See appendix, page 589.

In the manuscript department of the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania (g), there is an old letter written by George Boone, Jr., reading as follows:

> To William Peters, Atty. at Law, Phila.
> May, 1745.
> I having an opportunity at this time to send a few lines by my wife; Requesting thee pursuant to our discourse when I were last in town, to let me know whether I must attend at Chester Court or not, in order to a Tryal with Jacob Casdorp. If thee cannot attend thyself, deliver those papers I left with thee unto ye Attorney General. I should be well pleased to put some end to this affair.
> My wife will be some time in ye town so thee may send by her.
> I remain thy ffrd
> GEO. BOONE

From this it will be seen that George Boone was somewhat a "man of affairs", and also that even in those days it was quite in order for the busy wife and mother to run down to the city for a few weeks of shopping, and recreation. However, Deborah Howell's shopping was probably not for worldly trifles, as we are told that she was a preacher of some note in the Friends Society. Below is given an account of her which was published in "The Friend" (h), Vol. 32, 1858-9, page 403:—

"DEBORAH BOONE was a daughter of William and Mary Howell, of Haverford, Chester County, Pa., and was born there 8 mo. 23 day 1691. (m) Her parents were valuable Friends, and were favored to see the fruit of their religious concern for their children's everlasting good. Among others of them who early in life submitted to the Cross of Christ, was Deborah, the subject of this notice. On the 20th of the 6th mo. 1713, she was married to George Boone. Some years after her marriage, a dispensation of the ministry of the gospel was committed to her. She was often led in her ministry to speak of the mercies and goodness of her Heavenly Father to her. Her appearances in the ministry were short and she seldom spoke, yet they were attended with life and received with love. At the first settling of Friends in the neighborhood of Exeter she and her husband removed there with their family. She was at times after this engaged with others in visiting the families of Friends, in which she was remarkably favored. She was of generous disposition and charitable to the poor. About a year before her decease she became, through weakness of the body, unable to attend meetings, and during this time of suffering she was preserved in patience. To some who visited her, she expressed much love for Friends, and her earnest desire for the prosperity of the truth in that newly settled and remote part of the world. She deceased 1st. mo. 26th day 1759, aged about 67 years."

The will of George Boone IV, is recorded in Berks County, Pa., and reads as follows:—

11 Mary Boone, b. 10 Apr., 1716 (O. S.) Mentioned in her father's will. The records of Gwynedd Meeting give a marriage of one Mary Boone to Thomas Hope, 1-29, 1737, but there is no evidence to show that this was Mary the daughter of George Boone IV. The date and the fact that they were of Gwynedd Meeting seem to prove it so, also the fact we know of no other Mary Boone of marriageable age at that time. The Minutes of Exeter Meeting record a marriage of one Mary Hopes to Arnold Boone 10-28, 1767, which might be either a second marriage of Mary Boone or the marriage of her daughter.

3. SQUIRE BOONE (Son of George[3]), born 25 November (Old Style) or 6 December (New Style), 1696, in Devonshire, England; died 2 January, 1765, in Rowan County, North Carolina.

Married 23 Sept., 1720, in Berks Co., Pa., Sarah Morgan (b. 1700; d. 1777, according to supposed headstone), daughter of Edward Morgan, an early settler of the Welsh colony of Gwynedd in Berks Co., Pa. (See Sketch of Morgan Family.)

Squire Boone accompanied his elder brother and sister to America a few years before the parents came in 1717. His marriage to Sarah Morgan is recorded in the records of the Society of Friends as follows:-

Marriage of Squire Boone and Sarah Morgan. (b)

Whereas, Squire Boone sone of George Boone of the county of Philadelphia* and Province of Pennsylvania, yeoman, and Sarah Morgan, dau. of Edward Morgan of the said county and province, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before two monthly meetings of ye people called Quakers, held at Gwynedd in the said county, according to ye good order used among them, whose proceedings therein, after deliberate consideration, and having consent of parents and relations concerned therein, their said proceedings are allowed of by said meeting. After their marriage Squire and Sarah Boone first settled in Bucks County, Pa., if we may accept local tradition there and the following statement which appeared in a newspaper clipping sent to the compiler, who has, however, been unable to ascertain the names of either the newspaper or the writer of the article.

"OLD BOONE HOMESTEAD.—Finely located on rising ground, overlooking the Upper Neshaminy, in New Britain Township, Bucks Co., Pa., stands a fine old stone house which, though remodeled and added to by later owners, gives evidence of the age accredited to a portion of the walls. It was the eastern portion of this building, including the one-story structure and part of the main house, that was the home of Squire Boone, the father of the intrepid Kentucky pioneer, Daniel Boone, until 1730. While much has been written in reference to the birth-place and time of birth of Daniel Boone, there is no doubt of the fact that his father and mother came to this farm immediately after their marriage at Gwynedd Meeting House, in Montgomery Co., seventh month, 23rd. 1720, and that at least three of Daniel Boone's brothers and sisters were born here. While Squire Boone did not become the owner of the property until Dec. 3, 1728, it is believed that he resided on the farm, as the deed recorded at Doylesville, in Deed Book No. 23, page 175, states that on Dec. 3, 1728, Thomas Shute and wife of Phila. and Heronimous Hass of Perkiomen conveyed to Squire Boone of New Britain Township, weaver, 147 acres of land in New Britain township described as follows: Beginning at the corner of land reputed to be Abel Morgan's, thence extending northeast 128 perches; southeast by Philip Sitsler, 184 perches; southwest by Andrew Hamilton's land 128 perches; northwest by said Abel Morgan's land 184 perches to place of beginning. This tract is located about three-quarters of a mile west of the present village of Chalfont, then known as Butler's Mill, and is intersected by the Neshaminy Creek, which the building faces, and the Doylestown branch of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway. The old road from Butler's Mill, now Chalfont, to the Bethlehem road at Line Lexington, crosses the north corner of the farm near the buildings. Another public road, intersecting the other road at the buildings, extends southeasterly through the center of the farm to the old road originally known as 'the road from Butler's Mills to North Wales,' now the upper State Road. It was on this farm that Squire Boone resided until he moved to Oley township in Berks Co., having obtained a grant of 250 acres of land which was surveyed to him in Dec. 1730. * * * The old Boone homestead in New Britain is now owned by a Philadelphian and occupied by Edward Berry."

The above article assumes but does not prove that Squire Boone resided on this property prior to his purchase of it in 1728. A history of Bucks Co. states that in 1728 Squire Boone purchased 140 acres in New Britain township of Thomas Shute of Philadelphia.* ("History of Bucks Co., Pa." by W. W. H. Davis, Pub. at Doylestown, Pa.)

We are certain, however, that Squire and his family returned to Berks Co. (then Phila. Co.), and in 1730 settled on a farm in Oley township, Philadelphia Co. (now Exeter twp., Berks Co.) not far from the homestead of his father George Boone III, both being only a few miles from the present city of Reading. This property Squire Boone bought from Ralph Asheton of the city of Philadelphia, the twentieth day of November, 1730. (c) Nine of their children were born on this farm, the first three having been born previous to the purchase of the property. A plain two-story house of stone now stands on the site of the original farmhouse, replacing the first log structure. It is said that the stone foundation and cellar belonged to the log house first built by Squire Boone. Perhaps the most authoritative description of this property can be had from the following letter, a copy of which may be seen in the library of the Historical Society of Berks Co. at Reading. It was written by

Mr. Andrew Shaaber, at that time librarian and secretary of the Society, to the Pennsylvania Society, 249 West 13th St., New York, in reply to an inquiry concerning the Boone birthplace.

"Replying to yours of Nov. 13, 1915, concerning birthplace of Daniel Boone.—Daniel Boone, son of Squire Boone (Squire being his given name), was born in that part of Philadelphia County, Penn., which in 1752 as Exeter township, became a part of the newly formed county of Berks. The birthplace of Daniel Boone never was in Bucks Co. 'Squire Boone of the County of Philadelphia, yeoman' on Nov. 19th and 20th, 1730, bought 250 acres, part of Ralph Asheton's tract of 500 acres, built on it and occupied it.

"This 500 acre tract had been granted by William Penn, Aug. 14th and 15th, 1682, to John Millington of Shrewsbury, England. The tract soon passed to 'Ralph Asheton, Gentleman, of the City of Philadelphia' and was until 1741, a part of Oley township, Phila. Co.

"In 1741 Squire Boone was one of a number of petitioners for the formation of a new township to be taken from Oley, and to be named Exeter. The new township was erected Dec. 7, 1741.

"When Squire Boone was about moving to North Carolina, he learned that at the purchase in 1730 a certain legal confirmation of sale had been omitted. This was rectified April 10, 1750, and on the next day he sold to William Maugridge 'a certain Messuage or Tenement and tract of land containing 158 3-4 acres.' This was part of Boone's 250 acres.

"Daniel Boone's birthplace is nearly half a mile away from the public road. The nearest towns to it are Baumstown, in former days called Exeter town, and Stonersville, both small towns and each more than a mile away.

"Moses Boone, aged 84, and perhaps the oldest living member of the Boone family, has always lived near the Squire Boone place, and has always been told that it was the birthplace of Daniel. The Lee family, from as early, as the birth of Daniel Boone, have been neighbors and close friends of the Boones. Some were born in the same old house of those yet living, and all have known the house as Daniel Boone's birthplace.

"Bucks County, one of the three original counties of Pennsylvania, is seventy years older than Berks. Because of this and because of the similarity of names, Exeter township is sometimes mistakenly spoken of as being Bucks County."

(Signed) ANDREW SHAABER

Mr. Shaaber gives a further description of the place in a diary entry dated Oct. 17, 1912. (This paper may be seen in the library of the Historical Society of Berks Co.)

"Visited the birthplace of Daniel Boone in Exeter township 1 1-2 miles from Baumstown. Moses Boone, aged 80 years, says he was at the place with his father when a boy and was told that the original house in which Daniel was born was a good sized log building that stood over the spring, on the same foundation walls on which now stands the stone house with date 1779. While the log house was yet in use, the stone extension to the right was built. The date stone which was in this stone building was either taken out, or was plastered over, so I was not able to get the date of its erection. The old log house after standing many years began to decay and grow weak. The arch over the spring was broken by heavy timbers falling upon it, perhaps when the house was being taken down in 1778, or perhaps before that time. In 1779 the log house was replaced by the stone extension at the left and with date 1779. The foundation walls of the log house were not removed. The walls were sound, as they are to this day, and the 1779 end of the house stands on the same cellar walls that the old log house stood on." (NOTE:—The Moses Boone mentioned here was a son of Judah Boone, the son of Moses Boone, son of James Boone, brother of Squire.)

In possession of the Berks County Historical Society is the original indenture of a deed of Sarah Drury to Henry Feree in 1768, conveying this same property, and showing that Sarah Drury was an heir-at-law of William Maugridge and restating his purchase from Squire and Sarah Boone, and so on back to the William Penn grant.

A rather detailed account of this property has been given here because it was the birthplace not only of Daniel Boone, but of his brothers George and Squire Boone, who were ancestors of so many members of the family who are interested in this history. When the writer visited the place in 1917, it was found to be in a deplorable condition. It is to be hoped that there will some day be inaugurated a movement to have the place restored and preserved as a tribute to Daniel Boone's memory.

Very little is known of Squire Boone's personal life in Pennsylvania. His standing in the Friends Society was good, as he was in 1736, a trustee of Oley Meeting, and on 10 mo. 27, 1739, made an overseer. (e) From the fact that so little mention of him is found in the history of the community, and the fact that he emigrated to North Carolina as a man of apparently little means, it is judged that he was the least prosperous of all the Boone brothers. After the marriage of his daughter Sarah to John Wilcox, who was not a member of the Friends Society, Squire was reprimanded by the Meeting, and his explanation appears recorded in the Minutes of Exeter Meeting, Book A, page 33, as follows:—

> "6-26-1742. Squire Boone declareth he did not contenance or consent to the Marriage but confesseth himself in fault in keeping them in his house after their keeping company but that he was in a great streight in not knowing what to do, and hopeth to be more careful for the future."

Before many more of his children were married, however, Squire and his family had removed themselves to North Carolina, where the course of true love was less hampered by the watchful eye of the Friends Meeting. There is little doubt that this was only another instance of a removal due to religious intolerance in the home community. Ever seeking a higher and more satisfying religious expression, yet ever fleeing from the petty restrictions of church government, the Boones were merely following that primal instinct which has led men from the beginning of history, to move always onward into new lands where greater freedom of action and expression can be obtained. Hence we find that on April 11, 1750, Squire Boone and wife Sarah conveyed their farm of 158 acres of land in Exeter Township to William Maugridge, "19 days before they set out for North Carolina, May 1, 1750." (d) Although Sarah Boone had obtained a certificate from Exeter Meeting "to Friends in Virginia, Carolina and elsewhere" (e), there is no evidence that they united with any Quaker Meeting in North Carolina, and many of their children later became Baptists.

No actual record of this long journey to the new land of promise has been left to us, but a graphic pen-picture of what it might have been like is given by Constance Lindsay Skinner in her "Pioneers of the Old Southwest" (Yale University Press, 1919):—

> "Southward through the Shenandoah goes the Boone caravan. The women and children usually sit in the wagons. The men march ahead or alongside, keeping a keen eye open for Indian or other enemy in the wild, their rifles under arm or over the shoulder. Squire Boone, who has done with Quakerdom and is leading all that he holds dear out to larger horizons, is ahead of the line, as we picture him, ready to meet first whatever danger may assail his tribe. He is a strong wiry man of rather small stature, with ruddy complexion, red hair and gray eyes. Somewhere in the line, together, we think, are the mother and son (Daniel) who have herded cattle and companioned each other through long months in the cabin on the frontier. We do not think of this woman as riding in the wagon, though she may have done so, but prefer to picture her, with her tall robust body, her black hair, and her black eyes—with the sudden Welsh snap in them—walking as sturdily as any of her sons."

There is some evidence that the Boones stopped for awhile in Virginia (l), probably near Winchester. They may have stayed there two years or more, as their purchase of land in North Carolina was not made until December, 1753.

In a "Sketch of Daniel Boone" by J. R. McCrary of Lexington, N. C., we find the following account:—

> The entire (Squire) Boone family moved from Pennsylvania to North Carolina May 1, 1750, and settled on the banks of the Yadkin River, in what was then Rowan but now Davidson County. This is established by both history and local tradition, by Roosevelt's Winning of the West, Sheet's History of the Liberty Baptist's Association, and Jethro Rumple's History of Rowan. A map in the year 1908, issued by the Department of the Interior of the United States Government, shows the travels of the principal explorers with Boone's route covering the traditional site in Boone township, Davidson County. At this early time Rowan County was a frontier country, the hills being covered with a great stretch of forest and teeming with deer, bear, and other game. * * The place where the Boone family lived is on a high hill overlooking the Yadkin River. Portions of their double log house, including about one-half of the rock chimney, were standing until within the last twenty-five years. All these have been carried away by relic hunters except a few of the large flat hearth rock, which were found in cellars under the house by the Boone Association in rebuilding the cabin. The Association also found several broken cups and dishes of the old time flowered ware. * * About one hundred yards from the home site is the Boone spring, and a hundred yards in the opposite direction, on the river bank, is what has been known for generations as Boone's Cave or Devil's Den. * * Close by is Boone's Ford, and across the river a short distance, in Davie County, once stood what was known as Boone's Baptist Church. The records of the old church show that Boone's family were members although Daniel himself never joined any church. Mr. Philip Sowers, the owner of the land which lies in Boone Township, and the owner of the Boone bottoms, has deeded to the Association the old home site of about five acres of land."

The Daniel Boone Memorial Association, of which Mr. J. R. McCrary, writer of the above article, is the chairman, has recently erected on the site of the Boone homestead a replica of the original log cabin, for which citizens of Davidson County subscribed funds. Citizens of Rowan County (which was formed from Davidson Co. in 1822) have erected a handsome shaft of native Rowan granite, on which is placed a bronze tablet given by the Daughters of the American Revolution of Salisbury, N. C. Records show that Squire Boone, father of Daniel, bought property on the Yadkin River in Dec., 1753, six years later selling at least part of this tract to his son Daniel. There is no record of Squire Boone and his wife having located elsewhere in North Carolina, but whether their dwelling was near that of the son Daniel which is reproduced by the Association, or whether the elder couple occupied one side of this double log house and Daniel and his family the other side, is not known.

In the Court House at Salisbury, Rowan County, N. C., is the original of an indenture between Daniel Boone of "Roan" Co., and Rebecca his wife, on the one part, and Aaron Van Cleve of the county and province of North Carolina on the other part, conveying for the sum of eighty pounds, six hundred and forty acres of land "Granted and sold unto the said Daniel Boone, by his father Squire Boone, bearing date the 12th of October, 1759, and conveyed to Squire Boone by deed of conveyance from the Right Honorable John, Earl of Granville, bearing date December 29th in the Year of Our Lord, 1753." Attached to this record is a note saying,—"Daniel Boone, Planter, bought this tract from his father for 50 pounds."

In 1759 there were severe Indian outbreaks along the frontier settlements of North Carolina, and during that time Squire Boone and his wife, with perhaps their younger children, were among the families that returned to Virginia or Maryland for a period. (g) Bogart tells us that "about 1759 Squire Boone and his wife, Daniel, his wife and their two sons, and several other families, * * * fled from the Indians to various parts of Virginia and Maryland. * * * * Squire Boone (Daniel's father) went to Georgetown in the District of Columbia, where he lived for three years, and then returned to the Yadkin. * * * * Sometime in the spring of 1762 Squire Boone and his wife returned to their home on the Yadkin, riding on horseback all the way from Maryland." (k)

Sometime at about this period, probably during their stay in Maryland, Sarah (Morgan) Boone took her youngest son Squire back to Pennsylvania on a visit. The entire journey was made on horseback, stopping to camp at night. It is not known how long Sarah remained, but she returned home without her son, whom she left in Pennsylvania as an apprentice to his cousin Samuel Boone (No. 58) to learn the gunsmith trade. (h)

After that Squire Boone and his wife continued to live beside the Yadkin River until their deaths. They both lie buried in the old Joppa cemetery at Mocksville, Davie County, N. C., where their gravestones were standing until recently. Because of the depredation of souvenir-hunters, the stones have now been enclosed in a strong steel cage as a protection from further vandalism.

> Squire Boone departed this life they sixty-ninth year of his age in thay year of our Lord 1765, Geneary Tha 2.

On the headstone which is supposed to be that of Squire Boone's wife, only the first two letters of the word Sarah are legible. The inscription reads as follows:—

> "Sa....Boone desowned this life 1777, aged 77 years."

4. MARY BOONE (daughter of George[3]), born 23 Sept. (O. S.), or 4 Oct. (N. S.), 1699, in Devonshire, England; died 16 Jan., 1774, in her 75th year. (a)

Married 13 Sept. (or 24 Sept., N. S.), 1720, in Philadelphia County (now Berks), Pa., John Webb (d. 18 Oct., 1774, in 80th year). (b)

> "7-13, (1720) John Webb of Phila. Co. and Mary Boone daughter of George of the same Co., at a Public Meeting. Witnesses George, Squire and Benjamin Boone; Thomas Evan; Edward Foulke; Edward Morgan; Daniel Meredith and 18 others. (b)

In some way their courtship did not comply with the regulations of the Society of Friends, for on 26 July, 1720, in Gwynedd Meeting, her father, George Boone, openly acknowledged his fault in allowing John Webb to "keep company with his daughter in order to marry, contrary to ye established order." (b)

After their marriage John and Mary Webb probably settled in Exeter township, as their affairs continue to be recorded in Gwynedd and Exeter Meetings. It is said that they resided on the farm occupied in 1860 by Isaac Herbine, then also included in the paternal estates. (c)

In 1730, John and Mary Webb must have again offended the Meeting, for we find:

> "7-29-1730, John Webb and wife Mary produced acknowledgment of misconduct which was accepted." (b)

For ten years they kept within the straight and narrow path laid down by the Friends, but in 1740 John Webb was again called to account: (d)

9th Mo. 27th 1740. A. 21.

"At this Meeting John Webb brought a Paper of Condemnation for his outgoing which was received and ordered to be Read at Oley first Day's Meeting; the further Publishing thereof is referred to Friends of Philadelphia. It is as follows, viz. (His acknowledgment). This is to give notice to All Persons whom it may concern that I John Webb being at the Elechon at Philadelphia in the year 1740, in a very Public Place and after a very Public manner, being taken and apprehended with a grindstone in my Hands as though I had a mind to take it away and when the man spoke to me saying, 'Where art thou going with that Stone?' I made answer unwittingly and after a suspicious manner to my own shame I do confess, which was after this manner. 'What if I have bought it?' These words being spoken by me, and have proceeded from the same Wicked Spirit which leads People into such Vile Words and Actions to the great Scandal of our Holy Profesion; all which Words and Actions of Mine as aforesaid with all the other unsavory Conduct of mine at that time I condemn the whole, and the Spirit that led me thereunto, with desire in my Heart, that for the future I may be more careful so as not to Transgress the Law of God written in the Heart."

7. BENJAMIN BOONE (son of George[3]) born 16 July (O. S.) or 27 July (N. S.) in Devonshire, England; died 14 Oct., 1762, in the 57th year of his age. (a)

Married 1st, 1726, Ann Farmer, and 2nd, Susannah —— (d. 5 Nov., 1784, aged 76). (a)

He left Bradninch, England, with his parents on 17 Aug., 1717, and from Bristol, England, sailed for America, arriving at Philadelphia 29 Sept., 1717 (or 10 Oct., N. S.). With his parents he lived for a short time at Abington, near Philadelphia, where he later returned to claim a bride. After settling with his father in Oley twp., Philadelphia Co., (now Exeter, Berks Co.), he obtained a certificate from Gwynedd Meeting which was recorded in the minutes and reads:—

"7-27-1726, Benjamin Boone requests a certificate to Abington in order for marriage," and

"8-25-1726, Certificate signed for Benjamin Boone."

"8 mo. 3, 1726, Whereas Benjamin Boone and Ann Farmer having declared their intention of marriage with each other before two Monthly Meetings, Enquiry made by persons appointed and found clear from all others on ye acct. of marriage, are left to accomplish ye same orderly."

"9 mo. 28, 1726, Report was made by ye persons appointed to attend Benjamin Boone's marriage and it was orderly performed."

When and where Benjamin married the second wife Susannah (surname unknown) has not been learned. It is probable that he married this time out of the Quaker fold, and possibly about 1736, as at this time he was in disfavor at Gwynedd Meeting. The Minutes give this item:—

"2-27-1736, Benjamin Boone has not been spoken to since last Meeting."

The disfavor seems to have been dropped, as there is no further mention of it to be found in records.

In 1735, Benjamin Boone, with Mordecai Lincoln and four other men, was appointed by the court of Philadelphia, to lay out one of the first roads in Exeter Township. Upon the establishment of Oley Township, in 1741, fifty families were not included. Among the petitioners against this were James, Benjamin, John and Squire Boone. He was among the representatives in the Assembly from Berks Co., 5 Oct., 1758. (b)

Among the land warrants of Philadelphia Co., is found an entry of Benjamin Boone, for 300 acres, 8 Feb., 1734. What is now Berks Co., was then a part of Philadelphia Co., so his land was probably in the township of Exeter, near the other Boones. An indenture made 1 Nov., 1768, describing the property of Squire Boone, brother of Benjamin, says that the tract ran from a corner of George Boone's land 174 perches northwest to a post; thence by Benjamin Boone's land, etc. At his death he left quite an estate, according to an inventory made by his sons James and Samuel who were executors. It consisted of all sorts of movable property and two plantations, one in Amity and the homestead in Exeter.

The five children by Benjamin's second wife, Susannah, were all baptized 6 Aug., 1753, at St. Gabriel's Episcopal Church, Morlottan, Berks Co., from which record the birth dates below are taken.

In a paper entitled "The Boone Family" written by Dr. P. G. Bertolett, May 25, 1860, we find the following biography of James Boone, Jr.:—

"Especially prominent was James Boone, Jr., who evinced a decided taste for letters at an early age, and while yet of quite tender years proved himself quite an efficient mathematician. At the age of ten years he was master of geometry and surveying. He was indeed quite an extraordinary character, considering the time he lived and the circumstances surrounding him. He resided for some time at Philadelphia, and while there often enjoyed the society of Dr. Franklin, David Rittenhouse and other men of learning. He soon won a reputation, especially in the higher branches of mathematics.

At the present day some books are still extant that once formed part of his library, that still show traces of the man. These prove that he was no ordinary reader, but investigated everything on the spot, as these books show by extensive interlining on every blank space and flyleaves. His copy of Sir Isaac Newton's work on astronomy is especially interesting in this regard; the margins of which are filled with closely written criticisms and calculations, proving not a few to be in error. No mean scholar to do that in those days.

He taught school for some time, when his success as a teacher and his deserved reputation as a scholar, soon attracted the attention of such as took interest in the higher branches, and his school soon became crowded with pupils from home and abroad; even pupils from England availed themselves of his ability. In his early age he had indeed but few superiors in this country and was one of the front rank of learning at his day. There is no knowing to what distinction he might have attained with a career so far of fairest promise, had not fate otherwise decreed. He died almost in the prime of life, Oct. 16, 1795. * * * He was interred in the Friends' Burying-ground at Exeter."

He was a great admirer of Isaac Newton, and it is related that he went through Sir Isaac's calculations, and discovered and noted a number of errors in his published works. The volumes are still extant with these notes and criticisms. (c)

54 Rachel Boone, b 10 Apr., 1750 (O. S.), or 21 Apr., 1750 (N. S.); m. William Wilcoxson, and 7-30, 1777, was condemned by Exeter Meeting for being married "out" and by a priest. In an old Boone family record found in Reading, Pa., there are two entries concerning her and her family. One reads "1790 Sept. 13. Then William Wilcoxson and his family moved for North Carolina," and the other "1797, Aug. 1. Then Rachel Wilcoxson came from North Carolina to see us, and her neighbor Elizabeth Freelan and her son Harry Freelan on the stage." This is practically all that is known of this couple, although there is reason to suppose that their descendants were among the general Boone migration from North Carolina to Kentucky and thence to the Middle West.

They stood shoulder to shoulder in the wilderness, far from all help, surrounded by an overwhelming number of foes. 15. WILLIAM BOONE (George[4]; George[3]), born 18 Nov. (O. S.), or 29 Nov. (N. S.), 1724; died at Frederick, Md., between 1769 and 1771. Married 26 Apr., 1748 (O. S.), Sarah Lincoln (b. abt. Apr. 1727; d. 21 Apr., 1810, aged 83 yrs., 2 mo., and odd days), (a) daughter of Mordecai Lincoln and his 1st wife Hannah Salter, and a sister to John Lincoln, great-grandfather of Pres. Lincoln. (See the Lincoln Family Sketch.)

The marriage of William Boone and Sarah Lincoln was reported "orderly accomplished" on 26 Apr. (O. S.) or 6 May (N. S.), 1748. (a)

Several times William Boone was elected to public office in Berks Co.; first in 1752 and again in 1754, he was made coroner; and in 1755 and 1756 he was elected sheriff of the county. (b)

In 1767, William Boone, wife Sarah and seven children removed to Fairfax Meeting (Va). They lived for a time in Frederick Co., Md., where William and his son Mordecai both died. Sarah (Lincoln) Boone, the widow, and the other six children returned to Exeter Meeting and were again received "from Fairfax Meeting, 10-30, 1776." (a)

GEORGE HUGHES

This will was probated on 6 Dec., 1771.

Sarah (Lincoln) Boone survived her husband several years, dying at the home of her son-in-law, Isaac Lee, in Oley Valley, Berks Co., Pa., in 1810. (c)

16. JOSIAH BOONE (George[4]; George[3]), born 6 Mar. (O. S.), or 17 Mar. (N. S.), 1727. (a) Married———.

In the Minutes of the Exeter Meetings, we find that on 30 May, 1750, Josiah Boone was condemned for a "disorderly" marriage, but the name of his wife is not mentioned.

20. SARAH BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 7 June, 1724, died 1815.

Married 1742, John Wilcox or Wilcoxson (d. 1782, near Bryant's Station, Ky).

The Boones were Quakers, and very evidently John Wilcox (Wilcoxson) was not, for we are told that Sarah was "condemned" for her marriage, (a) There is this entry:—

"5-29, 1742, Sarah, daughter of Squire Boone, treated with for marrying out."

Another entry reads: (b)

"5-29, 1742, Sarah Boone married out of Unity with Friends, (1st offense of this kind). Friends appointed to speak to the father, Squire Boone."

Sarah and her husband migrated with the rest of Squire's family to North Carolina (1750-1752) though very little is known of their life there.

Sarah Wilcoxson with her husband later removed to Kentucky. Mrs. S. B. Davis of Cave City, Ky., who is a descendant of Daniel Wilcoxson, a son of John and Sarah Wilcoxson, writes as follows:—

> "In tracing my Faulkner-Craig kin I ran across a reminiscence written in 1898 by a lady when she was past 80 years old, in which she states what her grandmother told her regarding this attack and other incidents about Bryant's Station. After telling what her grandmother had to say regarding the Girty attack on the fort she quotes her grandmother as saying, 'Another incident, when plowing time came Daniel Wilcoxson and brother were in the fields, Daniel was plowing and his brother sitting on a log picking the flint of his gun (one would plow and the other watch for Indians), when an Indian slipped up and tomahawked the one on the log. Daniel ran, the Indian after him. The Indian was so near that when Daniel was on top of the fence the Indian was at the bottom. His mother, Aunt Sarah Wilcox (I don't know why she called her Aunt, whether it was on account of relationship or her age.—Mrs. S. B. D.) was so excited she went out of the fort gate and would hollow, Run, Daniel, run, and let him in at the gate and then she followed, etc.'"
> "The Filson Club's History of Bryant's Station records the fact that Daniel Wilcoxson and another man were in the field at work when the other man (not stating his name) was killed and that Daniel Wilcoxson barely escaped with his life."

The above, taken in conjunction with Mrs. Davis' traditions, establishes the fact that John and Sarah Wilcoxson had one son, Daniel, and other family records prove there was a daughter, Rachael, who married William Bryant, an early Kentucky pioneer. Another child is also mentioned in the "Life of Daniel Boone", by R. G. Thwaites, page 66:—

> "At the close of the French and Indian War there arrived in the Boone settlement a Scotch-Irishman named Benjamin Cutbirth, aged about twenty-three years. He was a man of good character and a fine hunter. Marrying Elizabeth Wilcoxen, a niece of Daniel Boone, he and Boone went on long hunts together, and attained that degree of comradeship which joint life in a wilderness camp is almost certain to produce."

It is said that Sarah (Boone) Wilcoxson (Wilcox) died at the home of her daughter, Elizabeth Cutbirth, in 1815, in Madison Co., Ky.; also, that John Wilcoxson, her husband, was killed by Indians in 1782 but these statements have not been confirmed. The death notice of Col. Daniel Boone, published in the "Rural Magazine," Philadelphia, Pa., gives a list of the ages at which some of Daniel's brothers and sisters died. That of Mrs. Wilcoxson (Wilcox) at the age of 91 would make her death in 1815.

No will of either Sarah (Boone) Wilcoxson or her husband has been found, and no complete list of their children.

+79 Rachael Wilcoxson.

+80 Elizabeth Wilcoxson.

22. SAMUEL BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 20 May (O. S.), or 31 May (N. S.), 1728, in New Britain Township, Bucks Co., Pa.; died in Fayette Co., Ky., date unknown. (a)

Married Sarah Day (d. abt. 1819, at the home of her son-in-law, Leonard H. Bradley, in Mo). (b)

Samuel Boone was one of the first of Squire Boone's children to marry, although it is not known whether the marriage occurred in Pennsylvania or North Carolina. It is said Sarah (Day) Boone was a young Quakeress of education, who taught her young brother-in-law, Daniel Boone, to read and write. (c)

In North Carolina Samuel Boone settled on the South Yadkin River, not far from Salisbury, then in Rowan Co. There is record of his entry for 500 acres of land "adjoining Yadkin," not dated. (d) "Samuel Boone lived on South Yadkin, called also, Little Yadkin, right between us and Salisbury", is a statement found in an old paper. (d)

During the Indian outbreaks of 1759, it became unsafe to remain in that locality, and Samuel Boone left his frontier home, on the western border of North Carolina, taking his family to one of the older and less perilous settlements of South Carolina, but to which one is not known. They were living there in 1760 when their son Squire was born (e), and may never have returned to North Carolina, as the same son, Squire, enlisted from the Camden District, on the Congaree River, S. C., in 1777.

In the fall of 1779 Samuel Boone and his family went to Kentucky, and settled at Boone's Station in Fayette Co., near the present village of Athens. (a)

Samuel Boone, Sr. assignee of Daniel Boone. Entry for 500 acres of land on Treasury Warrant 27 Dec., 1782. (g)

He is thought to have been about 88 years old at the time of his death.

Sarah (Day) Boone, wife of Samuel, lived after her husband's death with her daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Leonard Bradley, in Missouri. It was to her that Daniel Boone wrote the well-known letter, in which he states his simple profession of faith. As a reproduction of this letter is given in Thwaite's "Life of Daniel Boone," only a transcription is given here

81 Samuel Boone, b. 21 Mar. 1758 on the Yadkin River, N. C.; was living at Winchester, Ky., 7 Apr. 1840, aged 82 yrs. Of his life previous to the time he entered the army, nothing is known. From his pension record on file in the Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C., we learn that in 1775 he served three months as a substitute for his father in the Revolutionary Army, enlisting as a private from the Camden District on the Congaree River, S. C. Following this service he gave three months the next year (1776), and from that time up to the year 1783 he served in various capacities. For this service he made application for a pension on 29 Sept., 1832, which pension was granted him. A copy of his application, which gives a complete record of his service and which is unusually descriptive of the average Revolutionary soldier's experience, may be found in the Appendix, on page 635.

82 Thomas Boone, d. Aug., 1782, killed in the battle of Blue Licks. (i) He had a grant of 1400 acres of land in Ky. After his death his brother Samuel assigned his share in this estate to Charles Yancy. (j) In one place is found record of a survey of 1400 acres of land for Thomas Boone. (k) He is also mentioned with his brothers Samuel and Levi, in Daniel Boone's account book of surveying (l).

+84 Mary (Polly) Boone.

85 Levi Boone. In the Draper Collection of Manuscripts there is a letter from Samuel Boone (nephew of Daniel) stating that his uncle Samuel Boone (brother of Daniel) left three sons, Samuel, Squire and Levi. (m) There is also an entry in Daniel Boone's account book against Samuel, Thomas and Levi Boone for surveying. (m) Levi must have left some estate and possibly a family, for in the Fayette Circuit Court of Kentucky, June Term, 1826, there was a Complaint in Chancery brought by one William Fisher against the heirs of Levi Boone. The heirs are named as Sarah Boone, Leonard K. Bradley, Mary Bradley, John House, Caroline Boon, Sarah McSwiggeno, Robert Frank and Hannah Frank. (n)

+86 Squire Boone, b. 13 Oct. 1760.

23. JONATHAN BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 6 Dec., 1730; died about 1808.

Married —— (See Foot-note.)

Except for his birth as recorded among the children of Squire Boone, practically all that is known about Jonathan is found in the following excerpt from Draper Manuscript, which is a statement of Enoch M. Boone (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), a nephew of Daniel Boone, made in Aug. 1858.

> "Jonathan Boone,—came early to Kentucky,—remembers him at Squire Boone's Station as early as 1783, and tended Squire Boone's mill. After a few years settled on Green River and after living there several years then settled at the Big Falls of the Wabash (near Mt. Carmel, Wabash Co.) on the Illinois side, not more than fifteen miles, if that, above the mouth of the Wabash, where he built a mill. There he died about 1808—don't know where his wife died, nor how old he was. Left several daughters, got mostly married on Green River; and left three sons, John, Joseph, and Daniel, who settled in the lower country." (a)

Children:—

87 John Boone, "settled somewhere in Kentucky." (a)

88 Joseph Boone, d. subsequent to 1827. He settled Elesheco (now called Poland or Columbia) above the Big Cypress Bend in Mississippi State, and died there, leaving a family. (a)

89 Daniel Boone, settled at St. Antoine, Texas, and was killed there by Indians. (a)

FOOT-NOTE:—In a letter written to Mrs. J. F. Cahill of San Antonio, Texas, by John B. Manly, Clerk of the Superior Court of South Carolina, 15 Dec. 1916, he says that there are two instruments from James Carter to Jonathan Boone conveying specific property; and another one to Mary Boone, wife of Jonathan Boone, from James Carter her father, conveying to her all personal property in Bristol Hall, which was then in the Parish of St. Lukes, Rowan Co., N. C. From an old North Carolina book comes also this statement, which locates one James Carter in the vicinity of the Boones,—"James Carter and Hugh Foster owned the land upon which Salisbury, N. C., was built about 1754." This is the only thing to indicate that the Jonathan Boone whose wife was Mary Carter, belonged to this family. There were other Jonathan Boones in North Carolina at that period. There is also a tradition that Jonathan Boone married an Elizabeth Dagley, but no documentary proof of it has been found. It might have been a second marriage.

24. ELIZABETH BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 5 Feb., 1732 (Old Time) or 16 Feb., 1732 (New Time) in Berks County, Pennsylvania; (a) died 25 Feb., 1825, in Kentucky. (Other dates given as 5 Feb., 1814 & '15.)

Married about 1750 on the Yadkin River in North Carolina to William Grant (b. 1726; d. 22 Jan., 1804, at the age of 78, in Fayette County, Ky.)

William Grant was the son of a Scotch father, also William Grant, and an Irish mother, Margaret Venner. He was born and raised in the Scotch Highlands, imbibing a great love for his country and a desire for her independence from English sovereignty. Knowing this, it is not surprising to find him taking part in the Rebellion of 1745-46, in which it is said he served under Prince "Charlie." Following the defeat of the Scottish army at the Battle of Culloden 16 April, 1746 (which sealed the fate of the house of Stuart and its supporters), Grant emigrated to America and located in the Yadkin country, where a great many others of the Pretender's adherents settled. Here he met and married, about 1750, Elizabeth Boone, and here too all their children with the exception of William (94) were born. At the time of their marriage a Dutchman said to Grant, "Well, Billy, Betsy will make you a good wife if you will take her down at the first loaf." She was a beautiful, high-spirited woman, and the Dutchman thought she needed subduing. (b)

Up to the time of the Indian outbreak in 1759, the Western portions and borders of the Carolinas had grown and been settled rapidly, but during this outbreak we find "the Bryans, and probably some of the Boone connection, took refuge in Fort Dobbs. Samuel Boone and family removed to the old settlements in South Carolina, and old Squire Boone and wife (Sarah), his son Daniel Boone, and son-in-law William Grant, with their families, retired to Virginia and Maryland." (b) It was while the Grants were living in Virginia, near where Washington, D. C., now stands, that their son William was born. Except for this short period they lived in North Carolina until the fall of 1779, when they moved to Kentucky, probably going out with Daniel Boone. A description of this moving in Draper Mss. 22 C 16 says, "It was like an army coming out. There was no occasion to strike fire of night. They wo'd be camped ½ mile maybe, all along in a string. The road was worked into steps, thro' the cane, where they co'dn't go out of the regular track." It is recorded in this same Mss. that Mrs. Grant and her daughter "came out" in the fall of 1779, but it is not stated which daughter this was. They came by way of Fort Boonesborough, where they stopped awhile. Then Grant joined the four Bryan brothers (William, Morgan, James and Joseph) and helped establish Bryan's Station, five miles northeast of the present city of Lexington, which at that time was a small settlement enclosed within a stockade. (c)

About 1783 William Grant (II) procured a pre-emption and settlement of 1400 acres on the Little Elkhorn River in Kentucky, but finally became discouraged and resolved to return to North Carolina. He sold 400 acres of his land for an Indian pony worth about $40.00, which was stolen by Indians ten days afterwards with all his other horses. This loss precluded the idea of returning to North Carolina and the plan was abandoned. He remained on the Elkhorn. The log house which he built there was still standing as late as 1851, in its original state, the roof put on with wooden pins. This house was one of the preaching places of the Craigs (Baptist preachers), for although in her early years Elizabeth (Boone) Grant had been a strict "Friend" (Quaker), she and her husband soon after their marriage became members of the Baptist Church and never left it. Both Grant and his wife died there, he in 1804 at the age of 78, and she some years later. They are buried under an apple tree which he set out on the place when they first went there to live. This homestead descended to their son William (III), who together with his wife are buried there also, and as late as 1868 it was owned and occupied by a Grant descendant.

Following is a copy of William Grant's will, found in Fayette County (Kentucky) Will Book "C," Page 349.

> "In the name of God Amen, I William Grant of the County of Fayette and the Commonwealth of Kentucky being infirm and full of years but of sound mind and disposing memory, for which I thank God, and calling to mind the uncertanity of human life and being desirous to dispose of all such worldly estate as it has pleased God to bless me with, I give the same in the manner following, that is to say,

1st. I desire that all my just debts should be paid together with my funeral expenses.

2nd. I desire that my Dear and beloved wife Elizabeth Grant have one third part of my estate both real and personal, after my debts is paid out of it & too legisees which are to be hereafter mentioned taken therefrom, and for that third part to include two negro girls Jenny and Fanny, which two girls my desire is that they shall be my wifes forever to do what she pleases.

3d. My desire is that a Certain negro lad now hired to James Lemon named Frank to be kept in the hands of my wife Elizabeth and trustees hereafter mentioned for the use of my daughter Rebecca Lemons, the said negro Frank to be left in the hands of my wife & the trustees that he shall not be taken to pay James Lemon's debts and is not to be considered the property of James Lemons at all.

4th. I give to my Grandson, William Grant son of John, a negro boy named Jesse, but he is not to have possession of the boy till after my wife's death unless my wife see cause to give the boy up sooner if she does not my desire is that my wife have the said boy as long as she lives.

5th. I give all the rest of my estate, both real and personal to be divided amongst my children and Grand children hereafter mentioned, that is to say, my sons John, William & Squire, my daughters, Mary Mitchell, Sarah Sanders, Elizabeth Mosby, and Rebeca Lemmon, likewise one moiety with my above mentioned children to be equally divided amongst my Grand children, the sons and daughters of my deceased son Isarael Grant, likewise one equal moiety as above mentioned to be divided between my two grandchildren Elijah & Betsy Grant, son and daughter to my dec'd son Samuel Grant; my desire is that all my estate mentioned in the 5th article be sold by my Executors to the highest bidders and the monies ariseing therefrom to be equally divided amongst my children above mentioned, the children of Isarael Grant dec'd and the children of Samuel Grant dec'd, to have—each of the familys of grandchildren above mentioned—one equal moiety divided amongst them.

6th. But as my son William is security for my son John to the Executors of William Fry dec'd, for a considerable amount, now my desire is if my son John pay off the above mentioned debt himself and my son William suffers none by it, then my desire is that my son John have his equal moiety as above described, but if in case he should not and my son William should suffer thereby, then and in that case my will and desire is that my son William have the part intended for my son John or so much thereof as will make him whole.

7th. I appoint my son William Grant and John C. Richardson Trustees in this my will.

8th. I appoint my wife Elizabeth Executrix and my son William & John Richardson Ex'ors to this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all others and former wills or testaments by me heretofore made.

100 James Boone, b. 3 May, 1757; d. 10 Oct. 1773. He was killed by the Shawnee Indians while crossing the Clinch Mountains in Virginia, during the family's first attempt to reach Kentucky. At the time of his death he was aged 16 years, 5 months and 7 days.

101 Israel Boone, b. 25 Jan., 1759; d. 19 Aug. 1782, aged 23 years, 6 months and 25 days. He was killed at the battle of Blue Licks in Kentucky. Abram Scholl, a soldier who took part in the battle and witnessed Israel's death, left a brief account of it. He said that Israel, who was young and active, could easily have made his escape, but remained to protect his father, firing at the Indians to cover his father's retreat. While thus engaged he received the fatal shot in the breast which caused his death. (c)

26. MARY BOONE, (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 3 Nov., (O. S.) or 14 Nov. (N. S.) 1736 (a); died 1819, aged 83. (b)

Married in Rowan Co., North Carolina, William Bryan (b. 1733; d. 7 May 1780), son of Morgan and Martha (Strode) Bryan, and uncle of Rebecca Bryan, who married Daniel Boone. (See the Bryan Family Sketch.)

After several years residence in N. C. where all of their children were born, they moved to Kentucky, and settled at Bryan's Station, which William and his brothers founded. This station was located on Elkhorn Creek, Fayette Co., near where the historic battle of Blue Licks took place in Aug., 1782. (c)

The little settlement suffered many setbacks due to Indian raids, so Mrs. Bryan (Mary Boone) did not go to Kentucky to live until the fall of 1779. (d & e) It is quite possible that in the party of kindred and neighbors who settled there, were also William Bryant and his wife, Rachael Wilcoxson (Wilcox), daughter of John and Sarah (Boone) Wilcoxson (Wilcox), and this may be the reason why confusion has arisen regarding the name of the station, sometimes called "Bryant's."

Here on 7 May, 1780, William Bryan died from wounds received during an encounter with Indians while hunting with a party on 1 May. (e)

It is said that Mary (Boone) Bryan afterwards married Gen. Charles Smith, of Harrison Co., Ky., but some of her descendants deny there was a second marriage. (f)

Concerning the Bryan migration it may be well to quote here from Draper Mss. 22 C 14, an interview with Daniel Bryan, son of William and Mary (Boone) Bryan, held about 1844 or '45, by Rev. John D. Shane, who died in Cincinnati. Dr. Draper afterward bought Rev. Shane's notes.

p. 17. "My father William Bryan came out as far as Holston (1776) and there taking sick, turned back, but sent on the negroes, two men. (My father sent out two negroes with the company that settled first at Bryan's Station to open the place). The station was named after himself (my father) and several of his brothers, but he was the principal. Each man had two acre lots.

"A part of the company that was out in 1776, including my father and myself and some others, now came on again in the spring of 1779, put up some cabins and houses and stokaded a little fort. My brother Samuel Bryan, Mr. Wm. Grant and Mr. Stephen Jones, brought their families out in the spring.

"I came out in 1779 to make corn at Bryan's in order to make corn for my father to move his family there in 1779 (April).* * The Station was commenced in a short time. Cabins were built, but not more than a half dozen. I think there were only four, but some of them were double cabins. The space between was stokaded. The enclosure at first was only about thirty yards square, oblong east and west. In the fall it was enlarged to upwards of 100 yards, making near 200 yards in all, length, that fall and spring. But this was not all stokaded in until after Martin's and Ruddle's were taken in the fall of 1780."

p. 28. "In the fall of 1780, after the attack on Martin's and Ruddle's Stations, my mother returned from the troubles of Ky., to the troubles of N. C. The man who bought our place in North Carolina was from Virginia. He hadn't paid for the place, and was anxious to give it up, that he might get rid of the difficulties with the British and Tories and return to Virginia. We traded to him the pack-horses that we had returned to Carolina on, for the truck and corn, and then we remained there in the old house until the fall of 1785. We then came back to Ky., and lived in Daniel Boone's house on Marble Creek (the one he left to go a mile, etc.). Many others with my mother (had) dispersed, some to Va., and some to N. C. and perhaps all would have done so if they had possessed the means. The Station, however, recruited after a time, and so strengthened as to enable them to withstand the Big Siege."

A similar record was left by Geo. Bryan of Paris, Bourbon Co., Ky., born 15 Feb., 1758, son of Morgan Bryan, and a cousin of Daniel Bryan. This record is found in Draper Mss. 22 C 16.

27. GEORGE BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 2 Jan. (O. S.), or 13 Jan. (N. S.), 1739; died 11 or 14 Nov., 1820. (a)

Married about 1764, Ann or Nancy Linville (d. 28 Mar., 1814). George Boone was the eighth child, and the fifth son of Squire and Sarah (Morgan) Boone, and a younger brother of Daniel Boone.

He married, it is thought about 1764, Ann, sometimes written Nancy, Linville, a daughter of William Linville and his wife, Ellender Bryan, a sister of Colonel Samuel Bryan, William and others. The Linvilles lived in the Boone and Bryan Settlements on the Yadkin. (For their further history see the articles on the Linville and Bryan Families.)

George Boone was in the party which went out to bury the two Linvilles, William and his son John (1766). (b)

When the Indians attacked Fort Boonesborough in 1777 and besieged it, a man was let out of the Fort in the night, who hastened on horseback to North Carolina for aid. Immediately a company was raised, with John Holder, an active young man, as captain. George Boone was one of this company, but before they could get there the Indians had gone. (b)

In 1779, George Boone visited Kentucky to see the country, and the next year moved out, stopping first a short time at Boonesborough, and then for a little while at Bryan's Station. In 1780, he established Boone's Station about one and one half or two miles north of where the present court house of Richmond stands. This was on what is now the turnpike from Richmond to Lexington. Then in 1781, he helped Major William Hoy establish Hoy's Station, five or 6 miles south-west of Boonesborough. This was a beautiful tract of land, between Richmond and Boonesborough, but on no water course. (b)

In the party which went out in October, 1780 to bring in the body of Edward Boone were his brother George and his son William L. (c)

When Daniel Boone went from Kentucky to the Virginia Legislature about 1788, George Boone sold him a horse with which he and his wife made the trip.

George and his brothers, Jonathan and Samuel, were all Baptists.

When still a young man, George had a white swelling on his leg which left him lame and unfit to go on campaigns, so he took no part in the Indian Wars, and none of his sons went out on any campaign. Several years before his death he had his lame leg taken off. (c) However, he did service in defending forts wherever he was, and was appointed by Congress to do Frontier work during the Revolution. In "Revolutionary Soldiers of Virginia" by Eckenrode, and Illinois Papers "D" 32, in the Virginia State Library, we find that he was a Revolutionary soldier. Following is a record of at least a part of his service.

VIRGINIA STATE LIBRARY, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Department of Archives and History.

5 July, 1917.

This certifies that in an original document in the Virginia State Library, which is "a Pay Role for Captain David Goss' Company in actural service in Kentucky county under the Command of Col. John Bowman from Sept. 6 till Oct. 21, 1780" appears the name, George Boone. The roll shows that George Boone was a member of this company for the specified time—38 days.

H. R. McIlwain.
State Librarian.

He and his wife continued to live at his Station until after his brother, Squire Boone, had moved to Shelby County, where they with some of their children soon followed. They were living in Shelby County in 1811, for in Court Records of Madison County we find that, "George Boone and wife, Anna, on 10 November, 1811, then of and in Shelby County, conveyed to William Stone and James Stone, of Madison County, Ky., for the consideration of $3807.00, two hundred and seven acres of land in Madison County, Ky., on the right hand fork of Otter Creek, part of Joseph Phelps' pre-emption and Settlement, adjoining the lands of William Ervine (Irvine), Thomas Grubbs," etc. The deed was not acknowledged by Mrs. Ann (Linville) Boone until 3 March, 1812.

George Boone and his wife both died in Shelby County, but their bodies were taken back and buried in Madison County in the old George Boone—Robert Harris graveyard, near the site of Boone's Station, now Cross Plains. (d) Some of their children and grandchildren are buried there, as are Robert Harris and his wife, with some of their children and grand-children.

On his tombstone, in the old George Boone—Robert Harris graveyard near Richmond, Ky., is this inscription: "George Boone, Sen. Departed this life 11 or 14 November, 1820, aged 84." (e)

Ann or Nancy (Linville) Boone died 28 March, 1814, at about seventy years of age. The inscription on her tombstone in the same cemetery mentioned in the paragraph above reads, "In memory of Ann Boone, Wife of George Boone Sen., departed this life the 28th day of March, 1814, the mother of children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, 182." (e)

Samuel Boone said his father had six sons and six daughters, all of whom, with the exception of one son, lived to be grown. (f)

CHILDREN:—

(Probably all born in N. C.)

+120 Elizabeth Boone, b. abt. 1765.

121 Elender Boone, b. abt. 1766; d. 17 July 1799, aged 33 yrs.; m. — Wilcox. Her gravestone inscription is, "In memory of Elender Wilcox, who departed this life the 17th of July 1799, aged 33 years." (e)

123 George Boone, d. abt. 1810 (g). In the Madison Co. (Ky.) Court Records, Deed Book "G", page 389, is found this record:

"20 Jan., 1810, George Boone and wife, Nancy (Ann), for Natural love and affection and one dollar, conveyed to their son, George Boone, Jr., 315 acres of land on Otter Creek in Madison Co., Ky., being the plantation whereon I (George Boone, Sr.) lately lived, which was conveyed to George Boone, Sr., by George Phelps."

George Boone, Jr., is said to have been killed by a horse, and his death must have occurred previous to 11 Nov., 1811.

It is thought he never married, for in his will which is recorded in Shelby Co., Ky., we find no mention of wife or children. Instead he leaves "my tract of land lying in Madison County, Kentucky, on the waters of Otter Creek, containing three hundred and fifteen acres" to "my dearly beloved father and mother," together with "my four negroes, namely, Lackin, David, Silvay and Keda, which he (his father) now has in his possession." Undoubtedly this is the same land which his parents transferred to him on 20 Jan., 1810. To "my dearly loved Sister Mariah Steel" were willed the 2 negro girls' Keda and Silvay, to be hers after the death of her parents. Some notes of Edward Boone (possibly his brother) were given him under certain conditions. This will witnessed by Sally Simpson was signed on the 2nd day of October, 1810, and was proven by the oath of Sally Simpson, in the Shelby Co., Court, 18th of Nov., 1811.

This seems to prove conclusively that George Boone, Jr., died between 2 Oct., 1810, and 18 Nov., 1811.

Concerning his grave we have this quotation:—

"A grave next to Mrs. Ann Boone (in the George Boone-Robert Harris Cemetery near Richmond, Ky. H. A. S.) with the headstone broken and the letters scaled off (1885), piece of scale had 1810 on it, and the footstone "G. B.", which I take is George Boone Jun." (e)

+124 Squire Boone.

125 —— Boone (dau. possibly named Sarah or Sallie.) m. Sol. or Solomon Simpson. The will of George Boone, Jr., was witnessed, and proven by the oath of Sally Simpson, who was possibly this sister.

+126 Mary Boone, b. 2 Apr., 1776.

127 Susanna Boone, b. 22 Apr., 1778; d. 16 Oct., 1804; m. in Madison Co., Ky., 8 Apr., 1795, Wm. Hern or Hearne. Nothing further is known of her or her descendants except the inscription on her tombstone in the George Boone-Robert Harris Graveyard.

"In memory of Susanna Hern, who was born April the 22nd in the year of our Lord 1778 and departed this life on the 16th of October 1804, who was daughter of George and Nancy Boone and was married to Wm. Hern on the 8th of April 1795." (e)

128 Mariah (Marian) Boone, m. — Steel. She is mentioned in the will of George Boone, Jr., as his "dearly loved Sister Mariah Steel."

Marriage records of Madison Co., Ky., give a marriage of Marian Boone and Joseph S ———, October 1805, who may be this Mariah Boone.

+129 "Captain" Samuel Boone (4th Son), b. 15 Jan., 1782.

131 Nestor Boone, (the youngest son) was living in Hannibal, Mo., in 1866.

28. EDWARD BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 19 Nov. (O. S.), or 30 Nov. (N. S.), 1740, in Exeter Township, Berks Co., Pa. (a); died 1780 in Ky.

Married Martha Bryan (d. after 1793), daughter of Joseph and Alee Bryan, and a sister of Rebecca Bryan, who married Daniel Boone. (See the Bryan Family Sketch.)

As a small boy of about ten, Edward was taken with his parents in their migration from Pennsylvania, to the Yadkin District of South Carolina, 1750-52, where it is very probable he was married, for we know that the Bryan family lived in this same neighborhood, and it was here his brother Daniel and Rebecca Bryan were married. It is thought too that his children were born in South Carolina.

It is not known certainly when he moved to Kentucky, but it is very probable that it was in 1779, when Daniel Boone took out a large party, or perhaps even earlier. Of his life here, nothing is known though several accounts of his death have been left by his nephews. We shall quote here the one given by his grandson, John Scholl, son of Peter and Mary

"Daniel and Edward Boone (born 1744) went hunting, on Hinkston. Found a good grassy spot and stopped to let their horses graze. Edward Boone picked up some nuts and commenced cracking them on a stone in his lap, and watching the horses, while Daniel Boone said he would take a round and come back by the time the horses were through picking; and had scarcely gone when several guns cracked and he soon saw two or three Indians after him. He darted off into the cane and was followed by a dog. Finally to evade him stopped behind a tree and shot the dog as it approached. Indians came up and rolled over the defunct dog, looked at it regretfully and departed. Col. Boone saw the Indians but thought it wisest to remain quiet. Seven balls had been shot into Edward Boone and he must have been killed instantly." (b)

Martha (Bryan) Boone, who was probably only in her thirties when her husband was killed, did not re-marry. At one time she was living on Boone's Creek, Fayette Co., Ky., as her grandson, John Scholl, remembers being taken as a small boy to visit her there, and thinks it was about 1795, but it may have been earlier than that as her will was signed 12 May, 1793.

Following is a copy of her will:

"In the name of God Amen, I Martha Boone of Clarke County and State of Kentucky being sick in mind and body but of perfect mind and memory thanks be to Almighty God I calling to mind the certainty of death and that all people once must assurredly die when it shall please God to call do constitute ordain and declare this to be my last Will and Testament in the form and manner following, revising and disannulling by these presents all and Every Testament, Will and Wills heretofore made by me either by word of mouth or writing this only to be taken for my last Will and Testament and none other to be so considered as my Will intent or desire and for what wordly goods and chattels it has pleased God help me with shall be disposed of in form and manner following, first I do positively order that all just debts and demands owed either by right or conscience to any person or persons shall well and truly be paid or satisfied as soon as convenient after my decease by my son George Boone. 29. SQUIRE BOONE, JR. (Squire[4]; George[3]), born 5 Oct., 1744; died Aug. 1815.

Married 8 Aug., 1765, Jane VanCleve (b. 16 Oct., 1749; d. 10 Mar., 1829). (a)

Squire Boone, Jr., son of Squire, Sr., and Sarah (Morgan) Boone, was born "on Thursday about five o'clock in the morning" (a), in Philadelphia (now Berks) County, Pennsylvania, near the present city of Reading. When a small boy, four or five years old, he was taken with the family when they emigrated to near Winchester, Virginia, and a little later to North Carolina. Here they settled about a mile and a quarter from Holman's (now Boone's) Ford on the east side of the South Yadkin, in what was then Rowan, but is now Wilkes Co., and about eight miles from the present city of Wilkesboro. He developed a great fondness for a gun and desired to learn how to make them. So some ten years later when his mother made a visit back to Pennsylvania she took Squire, Jr. along with her. They rode horseback and camped out nights the whole journey. Squire was left as an apprentice to his cousin, Samuel Boone, to learn gunsmithing. He stayed five years, becoming an expert gunsmith, and "neat workman, in stocking and ornamenting guns with brass and silver." (b) A year or so before his apprenticeship was up, he or his parents purchased the balance of his time and he returned to North Carolina.

In 1765, when he lacked a few weeks of being twenty-one years old, he was married to Jane VanCleve, who was born in New Jersey; a daughter of Aaron VanCleve of Low Dutch descent, from Holland. Her parents with seven sons and this daughter moved early to the Yadkin Country, where she and Squire Boone were married. She died at the home of her son, Enoch Morgan Boone, at the mouth of Otter Creek, Ky. By her grandchildren, she was called "Big Granny" to distinguish her from Jane (Hughes) Boone, whom they called "Little Granny."

On the wall of the Clerk's office in Rowan Co., N. C., hangs the framed marriage bond of Squire Boone and Jane VanCleve, dated 11 July, 1765, and witnessed by Squire Boone, John Johnson, and Sam Tate. In those days a bond guaranteeing the support of the wife was required. In this bond the name is spelled VanCleft, but in all other records it is VanCleve. (c)

They lived at the Glades, perhaps a half mile north of Bear Creek, and between Bear Creek and the Yadkin, the latter being a beautiful clear stream, full of fine fish. (When Enoch Morgan Boone visited this locality in 1790, not a Boone was then living there.) Game was beginning to become scarce in this neighborhood, so Squire and Daniel wishing to find a better locality—and in those days that meant a newer, less settled place—took three companions and, toward the close of the summer of 1765, went down into Florida along the Altamaha River. Here they found high water, a wet country covered with greenbriar, and very little game. Lack of game meant going hungry, so becoming weary of it all, they went back home satisfied that Florida was not the sort of country they desired. Their intention had been to pass around the head of the Altamaha, going from there to the mouth of the St. Mary's on the seacoast, but it is thought by some they did not get that far. (d)

It is thought Squire Boone accompanied his brother Daniel and William Hill to Kentucky in the fall of 1767. They crossed the Blue Ridge and Allegheny Mountains, the Holston and Clinch Rivers near their sources, and finally reached the head waters of the West Fork of the Big Sandy. Going on westward from here about 100 miles they went into what is now Floyd Co., Ky. After spending the winter here in trapping and hunting they returned in the spring to the Yadkin. (d)

Squire Boone himself related that in the winter of 1768-69, John Finley, a pedlar and horse-trader and at that time rather old, came to the Yadkin settlement with a horse. He praised up Kentucky, telling of the plentifulness of game and buffalo, the Falls of the Ohio, where he said the water ran so swiftly as to carry ducks and geese over the Falls, killing them. These, he said, any one by going out in a canoe below the Falls could pick up in great abundance. This so fired the minds of Squire and Daniel that they decided to explore this wonderful country.

Late in the fall of 1769, Squire and a companion, Alexander Neely, went in search of Daniel, who with five others had gone into the wilds of Kentucky, the first part of May, 1769. They found Daniel's camp,—the location of which is uncertain, but probably was on Station's Camp Creek, in what is now Estill Co.,—soon after his and John Stewart's seven-day captivity among the Indians. During this time the others had abandoned the camp and started home. Daniel, Squire, Stewart, and Neely then made camp near the mouth of the Red River. Soon after John Stewart failed to return from one of his hunting trips and Neely started home by himself, but was never again heard of. This left the two brothers alone in the wilderness. In after years Squire used to tell that the first time he visited Blue Licks in 1770, he saw vast numbers of all kinds of animals, and herds of buffalo. The panthers and wolves would catch buffalo-calves and deer for food. What they left was eaten by the smaller animals, vultures, buzzards, ravens and bald eagles. These Licks were all salt licks, and the trails which led to them were worn three and four feet down into the ground, so great were the numbers of animals going to them.

Running short of ammunition and supplies, Squire, leaving Daniel absolutely alone, without bread, salt, or sugar, in this unexplored wilderness, on 1 May, 1770, started back to North Carolina for supplies. Nearing the settlements he made camp and was roasting some meat when six or eight Indians suddenly appeared. They did not seem at all hostile, so he offered them some of his meat, of which they partook. They then proposed to trade a worthless old gun for Squire's better one, and on his refusing, took it and his furs, telling him to leave. Going on to a settlement he raised a party and pursued the Indians for some distance, but gave up the chase and turned back. It was fortunate they turned back just when they did, for not far beyond, the Indians had lain in ambush in a very advantageous position, and probably would have wiped out Squire's entire party. According to their agreement made at parting Squire met Daniel on the 27th of July, 1770, after an absence of three months, at the old camp in Kentucky, which, from fear of Indians, they soon abandoned. From here they went to the Cumberland River, exploring that part of the country and naming streams, until March 1771. The next month (April) they returned to North Carolina to prepare to move to Kentucky.

In the court house yard at Richmond, Ky. stands a rough boulder of limestone, on which is carved "1770 Squire Boone." It is a relic of the winter hunt of 1769-1770, and is supposed to have been left as a signal of Squire's return from North Carolina. It was found at Horse Cave, one and a half miles from Little Blue Lick, and was purchased by Madison Co. Besides the name and date, and immediately following the name is engraved "a younger brother of Daniel; built the first cabin in Kentucky; and solemnized the first marriage within the bounds of Kentucky."

Enoch Boone, a son of Squire's, told that his father and Daniel Boone had the greatest of confidence in each other. Squire would take furs, go to North Carolina with them, and return to meet Daniel on the very day appointed. At one of these times Daniel went off on a hunting trip, returning on the appointed day to find no Indians had disturbed their camp, and stepped off to one side in the timber. Within an hour Squire appeared.

At one time they had collected a fine lot of furs and pelts. Squire and a young hired man, named Andrew, packed them on four horses and were returning to the settlements with them, when Indians came up. The Indian leader snatched Squire's gun and shot pouch, while the others took possession of the horses and their loads. The Indians then ordered them to go on. Andrew, who had slipped off a way, kept calling for Squire to come on, and finally he did go on after trying to regain his possessions by arguing with the Indians. This happened some 80 or 100 miles toward Kentucky from the Greenbriar River (Va.). Squire with Andrew pushed on to the Greenbriar, raised a party and pursued the Indians, overtaking them at a stream. For some reason, probably high water, the Indians could not get the horses across, so Squire recovered three of them and his gun, after which the whites gave up the pursuit. They returned almost to the settlement, then scattered and went scouting. Squire Boone and David Hall were together and had gone into a deserted log cabin. Looking out they discovered two Indians, evidently chiefs from their fine dress, approaching. The Indians stopped a few paces away, when Squire and Hall firing through a crack killed both. The Indians had on a great many silver ornaments, half moons, arm bands, etc. Squire paid Hall $60.00 for his share of it, and later had the whole of it made into about a dozen silver cups.

It is quite definitely established that Squire was not with Daniel and his party in 1773, when they were attacked in Powell's Valley, but he and Michael Stoner were both members of the party of thirty under Daniel, who marked and cut out the "Wilderness Trail," variously known as the "Wilderness Road," "Boone's Trail," and "Boone's Trace." Clearly marked traces of this trail were to be found 90 years later.

Immediately after the building of Fort Boonesborough in the spring of 1775, Squire Boone built a cabin at Jerusha's Grove, on Silver Creek, and commenced building a mill at "Boone's Old Mill Site." In October (1775) he sold the cabin to Joseph Benny, and the adjoining land to George Smith.

Before Fort Boonesborough had been completed, the first Legislature of Transylvania assembled there, and both Squire and Daniel acted as delegates from Boonesborough, taking their seats on 25 May (1775). This was Squire's first legislative experience.

No record has been found of their moving to Kentucky, but by a comparison of dates and history, he must have taken his family "out" with Daniel Boone's party in the spring of 1776. On 30 April, 1917, at Holman's Ford, near Salisbury (N. C.), was celebrated the 160th anniversary of the date the Boones left Berks Co., Pa., for their new home on the Yadkin, and the 141st, of the day they left there for their future home in Ky. This moving "out" took something more than a month to accomplish, and about two months later, on 7 August (1776), Squire Boone, being an occasional preacher in the Calvanistic Baptist Church, performed the first marriage in Kentucky, at Ft. Boonesborough, between Samuel Henderson and Elizabeth Callaway.

Early in 1777, he moved to Harrodsburg, but while he was in North Carolina settling up some business, Mrs. Boone was warned that a party of about thirty Indians were in the neighborhood, and that same evening moved her family and possessions back to the fort, after sundown. About this same time two men, McConnel and Ray, and Mrs. Boone were outside the fort, the two men shooting at a mark and Mrs. Boone picking up chips, when they were fired upon by Indians. Just as Mrs. Boone ran through the front gate several bullets struck it, but after firing several volleys at the fort the Indians withdrew.

All through this period the Indians were very troublesome, and one time when out scouting southeast of the fort, Squire, who had stopped to examine some fresh moccasin tracks in a glade, was shot through the left side, breaking a rib in two places.

In this same year (1777) there took place a battle called "The Corn Crib Affair." A party, Squire among them, had gone out to get in their corn, and knowing that Indians were likely to be about had posted sentinels, who somehow failed to see the Indians creeping up. Suddenly, just as they had finished shelling the corn and were about to start back, they were fired upon. Squire and another man took shelter behind a bag of corn. The other man was killed, and an Indian rushed up to scalp him, when Squire ran him through with a small silver-hilted, three-edged sword which he carried. It was probably here that Squire received the wound on his forehead, which left a scar he carried all his life. The whites, having the corn crib and yard trees for protection, had the advantage over the Indians, who were exposed when running up and retreating, so the fight did not last long. Often in after life Squire told that this was the most satisfactory Indian fight he was ever in, that each side stood its ground and fought so well. Later on he lost his sword while crossing the Beargrass, and was never able to recover it.

At the time Daniel escaped from his long captivity among the Indians and returned to Ft. Boonesborough, Squire was living there. During the ten or fifteen days before the Indians appeared, everything that could be done in so short a time to strengthen the fort was pushed forward rapidly,—new stockading was built, the fort enlarged to the east, and new bastions built on the southeast and southwest corners, the second stories being built up as high as a man's head, but without roofs from lack of time. Squire had made a wooden cannon, which he strapped with iron bands, and when this was fired later on during the siege it seemed to frighten the Indians greatly, but after a few times it was overcharged and burst.

One morning the besiegers appeared in Indian file on the hillside south of the fort,—about 440 strong, under the leadership of Blackfish. The whites were told they had orders from the Commandant at Detroit to take the fort, but not to hurt any of the people, and that they had brought horses to convey the women and children to Detroit. The whites refused to surrender, so it was then agreed to make a treaty by which the Indians were to withdraw, and the white settlers were to abandon the fort within six weeks, leaving the country. Following this agreement the Indians sent some nicely dried buffalo tongues as presents to the women.

On the second day the Indians were still quite friendly, and on meeting some of the women at the spring, where they had gone for water, called them "fine squaws." They sent word for them and the children not to be frightened as they were going to shoot some beeves, which they did without further asking. All this time the settlers were coaxing all the cattle and hogs inside the fort that they could get to come. Of those that would not come, the Indians killed what they wished. (A few days later one young cow came home with a "buffalo tug around her horns, some three feet dangling." (e) Evidently she had been taken captive by the enemy, but had managed to escape, and capered about showing great joy over getting back home.) On this same second day, in order to make a showing of great strength, the women put on hats and coats, took guns and marched back and forth before the big gate which was open.

On the third day the Indians cut down the peach trees to make an arbor and tables for the dinner and signing of the treaty. Two or three of the women ventured out to take knives, forks and plates. In the party, which went out from the fort to this council, were probably nine men—Squire and Daniel Boone, Col. Callaway, Maj. Smith, a Mr. Bradley, and others whose names are not known. The meal was finished, furniture taken back into the fort, and the peace pipe passed around to ratify the agreement for abandoning the fort. Following this Blackfish made a speech and then they began to shake hands, two or three Indians to the white man. Their intention apparently was to drag the whites into ditches or gullies out of range of the fort. A signal gun was fired by some Indian in the background, for no one was allowed to carry arms to the parley. The whites were expecting treachery and those in the fort were armed and ready. A scuffle ensued outside the fort, and Squire Boone when about fifteen paces from the council table was shot. The bullet grazed one shoulder, knocking off some of the knobs of his backbone, and lodged in his other shoulder. In spite of his wound he got into the fort safely, and a little later Daniel Boone cut the bullet out. His wife dressed and cared for his wound, but he was unable to take part in the defense of the fort during the siege which immediately followed. However he had a broad-ax set by his bed to use in case the Indians succeeded in getting inside the fort.

The flag at the top of a pole some 40 or 50 feet high became the first target for the Indians. Great was their rejoicing when it fell, the pole cut off just below the flag by their bullets. The men inside the fort soon had it raised again on another pole, and in their turn shouted loudly. At that, the Indians stopped their rejoicing, and did not try again to shoot it down. The siege lasted 11 days in all, two and a half in parleying and the rest in fighting, after which the Indians withdrew.

During this siege one of Squire's favorite cows was shot through the udder with an arrow, but lived for ten years after that and was finally killed by the fall of a tree, in Shelby Co., Ky.

Often Squire went out with hunters to kill and pack in meat at night. Probably early in the spring of 1779, he moved his family by boat from Boonesborough to Harrodsburg. When they arrived at the point of land nearest their destination, needing help to transfer his family and goods overland, he sent a hired man at dusk to the fort for aid. As the man did not return when he was expected, Squire Boone left his family alone, exposed as they were, and himself went for this help, returning about daylight with it. They then took the family and goods into Harrodsburg. The hired man was probably never heard of again. Once when living at Harrodsburg, whether this time or some other, Squire went outside the fort to get his horse and was shot and wounded by the Indians.

It is thought that it was soon after this he moved his family, again by boat, down the Kentucky and Ohio Rivers to the Falls of the Ohio (Louisville). He intended to settle on his pre-emption of 1400 acres on Clear Fork of Brashear's Creek, about six miles above the mouth of Bull Skin in Shelby Co., where he had raised corn as early as 1776. Probably because the Indians were troublesome, he postponed his settlement and instead bought some town lots in Louisville, on high ground near the mouth of Beargrass Creek, where he built a cabin. In that year he took Jonathan his oldest son, then about 13, to Kaskaskia (Ill.) to learn French. There the lad stayed four years.

In the petition of 1779 to the Legislature of Va. for the establishment of the Town of Louisville, appears the name of Squire Boone, and again on a similar petition dated 1 May, 1780, are his and Jonathan Boone's names. It is said that Squire Boone preached the first sermon ever delivered in Louisville by a preacher of any denomination, and was himself a Baptist.

As soon as spring opened up in 1780, he moved out to Brashear Creek and established "Squire Boone's Station," sometimes called "Painted Stone," near where Shelbyville now stands. The Indians harassed them more or less, but really did no great damage until April, 1781. Then while they were clearing up ground for the spring planting, the Indians attacked them, about sunrise one morning. One of the men in this working party managed to get to the fort and give the alarm. Squire Boone, "in his shirt tail" (e), and about ten or twelve others caught up their guns and ran out towards the fields. About twenty Indians had hidden behind brushwood on each side of this path and fired on them, killing some and wounding others. Squire Boone, who was covering the retreat of Alexander Bryan, received two wounds, first in his right arm, then a second in his right side. He was so badly wounded no one thought he could live, but after several months suffering he finally recovered. However his arm was so badly shattered, it was ever after an inch and a half shorter than the other and partly crippled. During the rest of his life splinters of bone would work out occasionally. It is told that afterwards Simon Girty, who had led this attack, used to laugh and boast about how "he had made Squire Boone's white shirt fly." (e)

In 1780-'81 he acted as a justice and married many couples at the Station.

The Indians were so troublesome all that season and the next, that in Sept., 1781, it was resolved to abandon the Station. All the families, with the exception of Squire Boone's and the "widow Hinton's"—there were not enough pack horses to take them too—started off on 14 Sept., 1781, but were ambuscaded by the Indians when 21 miles away and still 8 miles from Linn's Station. No men were left at Squire Boone's Station except Squire himself, still weak from his wounds, and his son Moses, a boy of about 12. After Floyd's Defeat, which occurred on 15 Sept., the Indians followed them no further. (For more complete details of Boone's and Floyd's Defeats on 14 and 15 Sept., see the sketch of Isaiah Boone.) A day or so later about 300 men from the Falls and other settlements along the Beargrass, marched out, buried the dead, and went to the relief of Squire Boone's Station. They reached there probably about the 17th of Sept. and rescued the families of Squire Boone and Mrs. Hinton, together with the stock which had wandered back, and much of the plunder lost by the moving families. About two weeks later, one night after dark, Squire Boone went back on horseback to see if the Indians had molested his station and crops. Finding everything all right he started back. About midnight he reached Long Run, slid off his horse, and holding him by the bridle, lay down and slept until about daylight. On awakening he and his horse at the same time discovered three Indians, who had camped but a few rods away and were then getting up and stirring up their fire. Boone knew if he shot he could certainly kill one of them, but his horse, which was afraid of a gun, would in that case get away. After debating it, he decided the better plan would be to mount and get away as quickly as possible. However he always regretted it as a lost opportunity. He spent the following winter at the Low Dutch Station, on the Beargrass about 3 miles from Linn's and about 15 from the Falls of the Ohio.

Being so disabled he resolved to move to an older settlement, and in the spring of 1781 went to Harrodsburg, where he stayed that season.

While thus disabled from wounds received in these various Indian encounters he was elected as a Representative to the Va. State Legislature from Jefferson Co. Here he made a plea that help be given the frontier defenders. His plain hunting clothes, backwoods manners and earnestness, coupled with his own poor, broken-up body, touched the hearts of his fellow legislators and made an appeal not to be resisted. To the day of his death he cherished the memory of the cordial reception given him by the other legislators and the citizens of Richmond (Va). One of his nephews, Daniel Bryan, son of William and Mary (Boone) Bryan, says, "One night as we lay out together (on some hunt or campaign) I asked Squire Boone to give me a history of his life. He replied that he had been so honored that he had been a member of the legislature and invited to dine with the Governor (Va.); and that he had been so poor he had been obliged to steal hominy from a negro. These were the extremes of his life." (e)

The winter of 1782-'83 he lived five or six miles northeast of Harrod's Station on a place he had bought from Col. John Bowman, on a "run" thought to be Cane Run. Sometime in 1783 he went to Virginia on business and when he returned, in the fall of that year, brought back with him several families, that of his cousin Samuel Boone among them. (This was the cousin from whom he learned gunsmithing.) With a number of them he started to re-establish his old station on Brashear's Creek, for he loved that part of the country and longed to go back there. While moving they were overtaken by a heavy snow storm and cold spell on Salt River, and had to camp there for some time. They finally reached the old station site in the dead of winter, to find all the buildings burned to the ground. A station at that time consisted of a few rude cabins with stockades between, and generally arranged in a hollow square.

That year Linn's was still the nearest settlement, but in 1784-'85 several new ones were built—Samuel Wells' Station, 3 miles west; James Hoagland's, 8 miles northeast; Daniel Ketchum's on an upper branch of Brashear's Creek; Maj. Aquilla Whittaker's, 4 miles below; and several others.

In 1784 Squire Boone built a grist and sawmill at his station, and in Dec. of that year was a member of the First Kentucky Convention, going as a delegate from Lincoln Co.

The Indians still proved troublesome, but they lived on here until 1786. Then because of losses from land claims, he was forced to sell his station at a sacrifice and bought Wells' station, where he moved early in that year. Later on his son Enoch came into possession of this station.

About this time Squire was sent as a delegate from Ky. to the Va. Legislature, which ratified the present Constitution of the United States.

Becoming discouraged because of losses and land disputes he decided to leave Kentucky, and in 1787 with his son Isaiah, his cousin Samuel Boone, and several others went by boat to *Chickasaw Bluffs, intending to make a settlement. They landed and unloaded the boats, but being warned by a friendly Chickasaw that it was unsafe to try to settle here because of the Creeks, Squire reloaded and went on down to New Orleans, where he took Spanish protection, set up a shop, and worked at his trade for three years.

On leaving New Orleans his property was confiscated, and he travelled back alone overland, with little save his gun, having sent Isaiah on ahead some time before. He arrived in Kentucky in 1790. Still dissatisfied and in poor health, he decided to go south. After finding homes for his three eldest sons and his daughter, Squire with his wife and youngest son, Enoch, started out with a team of three horses, a wagon, and $200 in money. They went by way of Crab Orchard, thro' Cumberland Gap down to the Yadkin, where they got a year's supply of provisions; then down thro' South Carolina and Georgia to St. Simon's Island in Florida. (For more details of this trip, see the sketch of Enoch Boone.) Here they lived until the summer of 1792, doing well in a financial way. At that time bits of bone were coming from the wounds in his back, so he decided to go north again.

After selling off his property they sailed for Philadelphia, and went out to Berks County. Enoch, the son, returned to Kentucky that fall, but Squire and his wife stayed on until 1795, when they returned to their son Jonathan's. Jonathan had married while they were at St. Simon's and was living in Shelby County, Ky.

When Daniel Boone moved his family to Missouri in the fall of 1799, part went by boat and part went overland with the cattle. "In the boat was Mrs. Boone (Daniel's wife), Daniel Morgan Boone (son), then unmarried, and Squire Boone (brother). Squire went out and spent the winter and perhaps a year or two." (f) He liked the country so well he took Spanish protection, and received a grant of 700 acres of land a few miles from Daniel's on the Quiver River. Here he began to build a stone house, but when it was about half finished two of his sons went out and persuaded him to go back to Kentucky. His family were tired of so much moving and had refused to go to Missouri, remaining in Shelby Co., Ky.

He returned to Kentucky, and in 1802 "Squire Boone and wife Jane conveyed land on Silver Creek in Madison Co., Ky., to Basset Prather, Obediah Newman, and Polly Meriwether, deceased, of Jefferson Co., Ky." (g)

By this time "land sharks" who "hunted up a better title to his land while he rested in fancied security," had deprived him of all his holdings in Ky., and at one time, about 1804, he was in prison in Louisville for debts which he could not pay. Friends came to his rescue and secured his release, however. (h)

Neither Daniel or Squire Boone were actually Revolutionary Soldiers, but in 1813, in recognition of their services in border warfare during that period, Congress passed resolutions giving them the honor and standing of a Revolutionary Soldier. ("Pioneer Families of Missouri," by Bryan and Rose.)

Discouraged and unhappy, in 1804 or '06, Squire Boone with his sons Isaiah, Moses, Jonathan and Enoch, and the five sons of his nephew Samuel Boone, left Ky. for the last time and went to Indiana. There he established Boone settlement on Buck Creek in what is now Harrison Co., Ind., about twenty-five miles northwest of Louisville. He started in to accumulate new property; built a small mill on his son Isaiah's place, and supplied the neighborhood with meal for a long time. During his spare time he made guns, and cut stones out of the nearby hills to use in building himself a house. On one of these stones, which he intended to place over his front door, he cut the words, "The Traveler's Rest," indicating his truly hospitable nature. On another he carved—

"My God my life hath much befriended, I'll praise him till my days are ended."

"Liberty, property, Congress, America." (i)

Before his house was finished, he died in 1815 from dropsy. He had already made his own coffin, and with the help of his cousin, John Boone, and H. W. Heth, a civil engineer, had prepared a vault in a natural cave near the summit of a cliffy bank, on the east side of Buck Creek, which commanded a beautiful view. This cave is about two or three miles north of Brandenburg, Ky., but on the Indiana side of the Ohio River. It was agreed among these three that they should all be buried here together, but because of opposition by the families of John Boone and Mr. Heth, they were buried elsewhere. So Squire Boone lies alone in this cave, placed there by his sons according to his own requests.

He made Moses and Isaiah promise that on the third night after his death they would visit his tomb, and if it were possible for the dead to communicate with the living, he would do so. The sons did as they had promised, but received no communication from their father's spirit.

Squire Boone was about five feet nine inches tall and well built. He had sandy hair, light blue eyes, with a rather florid complexion, and was always fond of hunting, though not so much so as his brother Daniel. In Draper Mss. 22 C 16, George Bryan of Paris, Ky., an own cousin of Mrs. Daniel Boone, says, "Have seen Squire Boone wear a scarlet vest trimmed with gold lace and gold (or gilted) buttons, and a macaroni hat and a coarse check shirt on. Was sometimes dressed as a British officer, and sometimes as a hunter. A curious oddity."

He and his family were never attacked by Indians when moving from one location to another, and he himself was never made a prisoner by them, though he had several narrow escapes. He never got over being hurt and mortified to think, that after helping so greatly in settling Kentucky and suffering so much in her defense, others who had done so little or nothing, should get all his lands.

30. HANNAH BOONE (Squire[4]; George[3]), born Aug., 1746; died 1828.

Married (1) John Stewart or Stuart (d. 1769 or '70), and (2) Richard Pennington. (a)

Hannah Boone must have been born in Exeter Twp., Berks Co., Pa., but her birth, for some unknown reason, is not recorded in the Exeter Records.

At the time of her parents' removal to the Yadkin District, of N. C. (1750-52), she was a very small child. Here she grew up and married John Stewart.

In 1766 John Stewart was one of a party of four who made a trip westward, crossing over the Appalachian Mts., by some route which remains unknown, and finally reached the Mississippi River.

About the first of March, 1769, a conference was held in Salisbury, N. C., to devise "ways and means" for making an expedition into Kentucky, and it is believed Stewart, John Findlay, and Daniel Boone, must all have been present.

Soon afterwards, on May 1, 1769, a party consisting of Daniel Boone, John Stewart, who was a skilled woodsman, and three others, set out under the guidance of Findlay for Kentucky. They crossed the mountains at "Quasioto" (Cumberland) Gap, and made their first camp on a branch of the Red Lick Fork. Findlay led them to his old trading camp early in June, but found it had been burned to the ground. They spent the time hunting, trapping and exploring, until Dec. of that year (1769), when Stewart and Boone, who were out hunting together, were captured by a large band of Indians, who forced them to lead the way to their main camp. This the Indians robbed of everything of any value, but did leave them a little ammunition. Before leaving they warned the whites to leave this part of the country and stay away, as they claimed it for their hunting ground. Stewart and Boone, much mortified, followed them two days. Coming up to the Indian camp at night, Stewart and Boone slipped in, took two horses, and set off post haste. The Indians quickly discovered the loss of the horses and set out after them, soon overtaking them. They took the bell from one of the horses, putting it around Boone's neck, and making him dance and caper about. A few days later Boone and Stewart made their escape, and got back safely to their own camp, only to find it deserted, and their companions gone. They hurried on, soon overtaking the party, and found Squire Boone, Jr., who with Alexander Neely, had come out with supplies for them. The four, Stewart, Daniel and Squire Boone, Jr., and Neely, decided to stay longer, hunting and trapping, and made a permanent camp at the mouth of the Red River. There Stewart often went out on solitary hunts, and from one of these he never returned. Five years later when cutting out the "Wilderness Trail," Boone and his companions discovered, near the old crossing at Rockcastle, the remains of Stewart in a "standing hollow sycamore." No one ever knew the secret of his death. (b)

After Stewart's death, Hannah was married again, her second husband being Richard Pennington, with whom she moved to Ky., and settled.

Hannah had four children by her first marriage, with John Stewart, of whom nothing, not even their names, is known.

Married Rachael ———.

In all probability John Webb was born in Exeter Twp., Philadelphia (Now Berks) Co., Pa., as his birth is recorded in the Exeter Meeting Records.

In the same records we find:—

From this record we may conclude that John was a Quaker, but that his wife was not.

42. BENJAMIN BOONE (Benjamin[4]; George[3]), born 13 Aug., 1741; died 25 Sept., 1824, aged 83 years, 1 mo. 2 da.

Married 1 Oct., 1771, Eve Lofter, of Exeter Twp., Berks Co., Pa. (d. prior to 1816.)

In 1762, at his father's death, he inherited a tract of land in Exeter Twp. The will of Benjamin Boone, Sr., reads, "I give and bequeath to my son Benjamin Boone that part of my tract of land in Exeter called the Old Place, being the front of said tract." It is not known whether the younger Benjamin lived on this property in Exeter or not, but if so he did not live here many years. He inherited also the Family Bible of his parents, Benjamin and Susanna Boone, but unfortunately this much treasured book was burned about 1850. When his father's will was proven, Benjamin, who was the third executor, was in North Carolina, presumably on a visit with relatives.

In the Records of St. Gabriel's Church, Morlottan, Pa., is recorded the marriage of Benjamin and Eve Lofter, as follows:

"1 Oct., 1771, Benjamin Boone and Eve Lofter. Exeter Twp., Berks Co."

It is said that the minister officiating was Rev. Alexander Murray, Episcopal Minister at Reading and Douglasville.

(It seems that the family name of Lofter became changed in some manner to "Leffel," or possibly "Leffel" was the original spelling. At any rate there is a will of one Balzer Leffel, Amity Twp., Berks Co., dated 25 Apr., 1796, in which a bequest is left to a daughter Eve, wife of Benjamin Boone; also a will of a Catherine Bachtel, same township and county, leaving a bequest to her sister Eve, wife of Benjamin Boone, and to her father Balzer Leffel.)

On 3 June, 1784, we find that Benjamin Boone purchased a homestead in Columbia Co., Pa., from Daniel Rees. (a) This property comprised 295 acres in Fishing Creek Twp., Northumberland Co. (now Centre Twp., Columbia Co.), located eight miles above the mouth of Fishing Creek along the North Branch of the Susquehanna River. Here he conducted large fisheries every spring, employing many men. The log house of several rooms which he built there was standing and occupied in 1918, also a barn of unusual size, of the same material. Land in this same locality was later sold to Samuel Webb by Benjamin Boone, and wife Eve (b), date and amount of land not recorded.

On 23 Oct., 1816, Benjamin Boone, Sr., widower, sold to Samuel Boone and Benjamin Boone, Jr., 307 acres in Center Twp. (homestead lands), for a consideration of 2,000 pounds. From this deed it is seen that his wife Eve must have died previous to that time, although neither the date of her birth nor the date of her death is known.

Benjamin also owned lands near Heidley's Church. This locality in which he owned property, and probably lived most of his life, is not far from Bloomsburg, Columbia Co., Pa. He was buried in Heidley's or Hidley's cemetery, now known as "Briar Creek Union Cemetery." Concerning this cemetery, comes some very interesting information from Miss Mary Josephine Roe, Gilbert, Ohio:—

> " 'Briar Creek Union Church Cemetery,' formerly known as 'Hidley's' or 'Heidley's,' in which a union of congregations were interested and still are, viz: Lutherans, Presbyterians, and German Reformed. Its history begins with the early settlement of the township. In 1798 Henry Heidley gave an acre of ground to the trustees of the Briar Creek Presbyterian Society, church probably built the next year. Among the pew holders, 1807, were Samuel Webb, Benjamin Boone, Josias McClure, among the list of some thirty names. There is no church record of burials."

After Benjamin's death letters of Administration on his estate were issued to Thomas Webb. His sons Samuel and Benjamin had been given lands by deed, 23 Oct., 1816; his daughters do not seem to have been remembered, and but two are known.

44. SAMUEL BOONE (Benjamin[4]; George[3]), born 11 Aug., (O. S.) or 22 Aug., (N. S.) 1746; died 3 Aug., 1811, "aged 64 yr., 0 mo., 0 da." (a)

Married Eleanor or Elinor Hughes (b. 1751; d. 2 May 1809), "aged 57 yr., 9 mo., 0 da." (b), daughter of John Hughes and his second wife Martha Coles, who were married in 1748. (See the Foulke-Hughes Family). A year or more after their marriage Eleanor, who was a Friend, condoned her "outgoings" in marriage, which is recorded in the Minutes of the Exeter Monthly Meeting 2-2, 1775; this being the date of her "condoning," no date for her marriage being given.

Samuel and Eleanor settled in Northumberland Co. (now Columbia), Pa., probably near his brother Benjamin, although Samuel had inherited a part of his father's homestead lands in Exeter Twp. (c). Descendants say that he located in 1785 just below Bloomsburg, Pa. Increase in population produced changes in the name of the Twp., in which Samuel Boone lived, but he did not change his place of residence after 1785. A deed dated 22 Mar., 1785, of "Evan Owen to Samuel Boone of Exeter Twp. Co. of Berks" for a tract of 600 acres at the mouth of Fishing Creek and the North Branch of the Susquehanna River, is recorded. (d)

The homestead farm of Samuel Boone at the mouth of Fishing Creek is now the very garden-spot of all that section for fertility and beauty. It is situated at a broad point where the creek enters the Susquehanna, with the McClure farm adjoining it. It is not far from Bloomsburg. The brick house built there by either his son Samuel or a grandson Samuel, was still standing in 1918, and had been continuously occupied by descendants bearing the surname Boone until a short time before that, when it had been sold to settle an estate. It had been held in the family for nearly 135 years.

Another deed dated 18 Nov., 1793, is from Samuel Boone and wife Eleanor, of Fishing Creek Twp., Northumberland Co., to Richard Willets of Catawissa Twp., for land in Catawissa Twp. (e) Besides these there are other deeds on record.

The will of Samuel Boone, Bloom Twp., Northumberland Co., was signed 1 Mar., 1811; proven 23 Aug., 1811; and recorded in Book of Wills, Vol. II, page 151. Following is an abstract of this will:

To the son James was given the plantation, 115 acres, on the Susquehanna River, in Bloom Twp., on which he was then (1811) living, and which adjoined the land of James McClure. Another son, Samuel, was to have the privilege of cutting logs for a barn from this land. In addition to this James was to have all the personal property which should fall to his share.

To the son Samuel, mentioned in the paragraph above, was given the plantation, 104 acres, on Fishing Creek, occupied by Alex Comvelling (?), and an allowance of 6% for survey. At the time he was probably living on some of his father's land, for he was given also "what is now in his possession," and a share in the personal property.

To the youngest son, Benjamin, was given the plantation on which his father was living at the time of making his will (1811), "with crafts, ferry, and all pertaining thereto." To him was given also some land adjoining, 72 acres, bounded on the east by James' portion, and on the north by Samuel's. This 72 acres was east of Fishing Creek and north of the Susquehanna River. In addition he was given a "stove, and gun and appurtenances, and boards on the place, with a full share of my estate real and personal."

To the daughter Rachel was given a "mare, two cows, my bed, bureau, and buck-table and as much of the china and queensware as she may choose to keep, and one-fourth part of the Winter and Summer Grain my sons Samuel and James may raise for two years, to be delivered in the storehouse of Benjamin, but not to be demanded until after the year 1815."

To a grand-daughter, Peggy McClure, daughter of Josiah McClure, was given 50 pounds, "to be paid her by my sons James and Benjamin in equal parts and at the age of eighteen years. If she should die in her minority and without issue, same is to be paid to my daughters Susannah and Rachel in equal parts."

"Touching all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate real, personal, and of whatever nature I give and bequeath to my daughters Susannah and Rachel (except my wearing apparel to my sons Samuel and Benjamin) to be divided equally between them; property to be sold at public sale and money to be divided."

He appointed his son James Boone, his son-in-law James McClure, and Samuel Webb, Jr., all of Bloom Twp., as Executors. The witnesses were Joseph Menderhall (?), Isaac Kinney, and Richard Biggs.

A codicil provided that ten acres should be sold off James' portion for the benefit of the two daughters, Susannah and Rachel. The daughters Martha and Sarah (McClure) had both died before their father's death.

Descendants of Samuel Boone say that he lost quite a large part of his lands through a bad title.

45. DINAH BOONE (Benjamin[4]; George[3]) born 3 or 10 May, 1749, in Berks Co., Pa.; died 25 July, 1824, near Canal Winchester, Ohio. (Family record gives date of her birth as 10th of May; baptism record of St. Gabriel's Episcopal Church at Morlotton (Douglasville), Pa., gives the date of birth as 3rd of May). Baptized 6 Aug., 1753.

Married 9 Nov. 1764, in Berks Co., Pa., Benjamin Tallman (b. 9 Jan. 1745, in Berks Co., Pa.; d. 4 June, 1820, near Canal Winchester, Ohio), son of William and Anne (Lincoln) Tallman. (See sketch of Tallman Family.)

Benjamin Tallman took the oath of Allegiance in Pennsylvania, 7 Aug., 1777, and served an enlistment in the Pennsylvania Militia. (Pennsylvania Archives, 3rd Series, Vol. 6, p. 314.) In 1779 they removed to Virginia, and settled in Harrisonburg, Augusta Co. (later Rockingham Co.). There Benjamin Tallman joined De Best's Troop of the First Partisan Legion under Col. Armand. (Pennsylvania Archives, 2nd Series, Vol. XI, pp. 140, 145, 146), and took part in the siege of Yorktown. His military service entitled him to bounty land, as shown by records at Richmond, Va., but it seems that he did not avail himself of his rights. About 1810 he and his wife removed to Ohio, accompanied by some of their married children, and settled near Canal Winchester in Franklin Co. The grandchildren of Dinah (Boone) Tallman remembered her as always clad in the gray garb of the Friends, with a small shoulder cape of the same. She and her husband are buried in a family plot on a farm then owned by their son William and located in Walnut Township, Pickaway Co., Ohio.

46. ANNE BOONE (James[4]; George[3]), born 3 Apr. (O. S.), or 14 Apr. (N. S.), 1737 (b); died 4 Apr., 1807; buried in Friends' Burying Ground in Exeter Twp. (a)

Married 10 July, 1760, (b) Abraham Lincoln (b. 1736; d. 31 Jan., 1806). (b) (See Sketch of Lincoln Family.)

In an old family Bible in Reading, Pa., appear these two entries:—

"Anne Boone was born on the first day of the week, about five o'clock in the afternoon, on the 3rd of April, Old Style, A. D. 1737, or A. D. 1737, Apr. 14, New Style."

"Abraham Lincoln & Anne Boone were married on the fifth day of the week, on the 10th day of July, A. D. 1760. When his age was 23 yrs., 8 months and 11 days. Her age 23 yrs., 2 months and 26 days. He being 5 mo., 15 days and 22 hrs. older than she." (c)

In Exeter Meeting Records is the following:—

"Anne Lincoln (Relict of Abraham Lincoln and daughter of James Boone), departed this life on the 4th day of the 4th m. A. D. 1807, aged 69 yrs., 11 mo., 21d., 14 h., 10 m., and was interred at Exeter on the 6th, the 2nd d. of the week."

Abraham Lincoln of Berks Co., the son of Mordecai and Mary Lincoln, was born in Amity Township, Philadelphia Co., subsequently Berks Co., Pa. His father, who died in May of that year, a few months before the birth of Abraham, was the ancestor of President Lincoln. Abraham was brought up on his father's farm. He received a fair education, and became quite prominent in the affairs of his native county. For six years, from 1773 to 1779, he held the office of County Commissioner. He was an active patriot, and was appointed one of the sub-lieutenants of the county, Mar. 21, 1777. He served in the General Assembly from 1782 to 1786, and was a delegate to the Pennsylvania Convention to ratify the Federal Constitution in 1787. He did not sign the ratification. Under the act of March 14, 1784, he was appointed one of the Commissioners of Fisheries. He was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1789-'90, and appears to have been a man of much influence in that body. He died at his residence in Exeter Township, in his seventieth year. (d and e)

The Lincolns were Congregationalists and the Boones Quakers, consequently Anne Boone's marriage to Abraham Lincoln was "out of Meeting," and considered a disorderly act. For this she was disciplined by the Exeter Monthly Meeting, and acknowledged her error to the Meeting on August 27, 1761. (a, e and f)

In Volume II, page 158, of Berks County Wills, is record of the probate on Feb. 17, 1806, of the will of Abraham Lincoln of Exeter: "administered to Mordecai and Thomas, sons, the widow renouncing." In the same volume, page 204, is record of the estate of "Anne Lincoln, widow, Exeter," administered to her sons Mordecai and Thomas Lincoln, Feb. 25, 1808.

50. JOHN BOONE (James[4]; George[3]), born 10 Nov. (O. S.), or 21 Nov. (N. S.), 1745; died 29 Mar., 1773. (b)

Married Sophia Weidner (b. probably about 1748), daughter of Peter and Susanna Weidner.

The following excerpt from records of Orphan's Court, Berks Co., Pa., concerns this family:

> "Orphan's Court, 12 May, 1768. Petition of John Boone, Jr., and Sophia his wife (late Weidner). That Peter Weidner of Cumver (?) deceased, by his will devised to the said Sophia, his daughter, part of his dwelling house, and one moiety of a tract of land in Cumver. That said testator devised the rents, issues and profits to his wife Susanna, until Sophia attain the age of 21. The said Sophia is still under age. That Susanna (the widow) has married James Whitehead. That James Whitehead has committed great waste and destruction to said land, etc., etc."

(The children of Peter Weidner were Sophia, Salome, and Mary, all of whom were said to be under 14 yr. of age on 18 Aug., 1764.)

It is interesting to note that if Sophia was under 21 on 12 May 1768, she must have been considerably under 18 when her first child was born, and that her husband, John Boone, was under 20—a very early marriage compared with others of that time in that community.

After the death of John Boone, who was a tanner, in Mar., 1773, Sophia, his widow, petitioned the court on 6 Sept., 1773, to be allowed to sell the property, in Alsace, consisting of tenement, tan-yard, tan-shop, and 3 tracts of land comprising in all 94½ acres, in order to pay the debts against the estate. The court ordered this done. (c)

The following month, 19 Oct., 1773, at Morlottan, Pa., Sophia married a second time, John Biddle, and on 24 Feb., 1774, they reported to the court that they had sold "all the properties of the said deceased" (John Boone). (d)

(It is interesting to note that these are the only members of the sixth generation whose births are recorded in the old James Boone Genealogy.)

193 Hannah Boone, b. 1 Nov., 1765, "on the 6th Day of the Week, about 4 o'clock in the Afternoon."

194 James Boone, b. 21 Jan., 1769, "on the 7th Day of the Week, 15 minutes after Noon"; m. 1 Jan., 1792, Catherine Williams, a dau. of Joseph Williams of Amity Twp., Berks Co., Pa. They were "married in the house of Daniel Clymer Esq., in the presence of said gentleman, his lady Mary Clymer and Jane Scull." (e) On 3 July, 1786, James, "above 14," chose as his guardian Thomas Lee, Jr. (f)

51. JUDAH BOONE (James[4]; George[3]), born 10 Dec., (O. S.) or 21 Dec., (N. S.) 1746 (a), "about 3 in the morning" (b); died 15 May, 1787.

Married (1) ————, and (2) 15 Nov., 1770, Hannah Lee, daughter of Samuel and Margaret Lee, of Oley (Exeter Twp., Berks Co.), Pa. (a)

The record of Judah's second marriage reads as follows:

> "Boone. 11 mo., 15-1770, Judah, son of James and Mary his first wife deceased, of Exeter Twp., Berks Co., and Hannah Lee, dr. of Samuel and Margaret of Oley Twp. said Co., at Exeter Meeting. Witnesses, James, Anne, James, Jr., John and Joshua Boone, Samuel, Margaret, and Rachel Lee and 38 others." (a)

Hannah Lee was a sister of Thomas Lee, who married Mary Boone, Judah's sister.

(Hannah [Lee] Boone married a second time, 3 Apr., 1800, Samuel Coates, son of Thomas and Sarah Coates.)

Judah Boone "departed this life on the 15th Day of May, A. D. 1787, on the third Day of the Week, at fifteen minutes after midnight, aged 40 years, 4 months & 3 weeks & 5 days, that is, he was in the 41st year of his age; and was interred in the Friends' Burying Ground at Exeter, on the fourth Day of the Same Week." 53. JOSHUA BOONE (James[4]; George[3]), born 24 Mar., (O. S.) or 4 Apr., (N. S.) 1748 (a), "About 4 in the morning" (b); died 2 Jan., 1835, at 2.30 A. M. in his 86th year.

Married (1) about 1781, Hannah Griffith (b. at Oley; d. 29 Aug., 1794), and (2) Jane———(thought to be Jane Thomas, who d. 15 Oct., 1834 aged 59 yr., 9 mo. 13 da.). (a)

In the Minutes of Gwynedd Monthly Meeting, are these two items referring to Hannah Griffith Boone:

> "10-30, 1781. Women produced acknowledgment from Hannah Boone, late Griffith, for marriage by a priest, etc. Accepted and ordered to be read at Gwynedd Meeting."
> "2-26, 1782. Women produce a certificate for Hannah Boone to Exeter, which is approved and signed."

> "7-27, 1774. Joshua Boone to Duck Creek Meeting."
> "2-28, 1798. Joshua Boone from Duck Creek Meeting."

As the births of their children are recorded in the Exeter Monthly Meeting Records, Joshua and Hannah were probably forgiven by the Friends for having been married by a priest.

After Hannah's death, Joshua married within a short time, a second wife, who was without doubt Jane Thomas. The Exeter Records give:—

> "12-30, 1795. Jane Boone, daughter of Isaac Thomas, married by a hireling minister."

Joshua Boone's first son by his second wife was named Isaac.

58. SAMUEL BOONE (Samuel[4]; George[3]), born 22 Mar., 1736, in Exeter Twp.; died about 1805 in Shelby Co., Ky. (a)

Married 1st, 14 Oct., 1760, Rachael Coles (d. 17 Apr., 1763) (b), and 2nd, 9 Dec., 1766, Jane Hughes (b. 22 Dec., 1745 [O. S.] or 2 Jan., 1746 [N. S.]; d. in Ky.), daughter of Hannah (Boone) Hughes (George[4]; George[3]). (No. 63.)

Samuel Boone became a gunsmith and lived in Pa. Later he moved to Maryland, and we find in one account that it was thought, "Squire Boone, Jr. (Daniel's brother) was with Samuel Boone on the Potomac, when the rest of the family moved from Pa., to Yadkin." (a) This would place Samuel "on the Potomac" as early as 1750, which is the year in which Squire Boone, Sr., began his migration that ended in the Yadkin Country in 1752. However, as Samuel was but 14 years of age in 1750, it is not at all likely that he would be established in a trade at any place at that date. It does not seem probable that he located at his new home on the Potomac River until after the death of his first wife and infant son in 1763; possibly not until after his second marriage, which is recorded in Trinity Episcopal Church of Reading, Pa.

After the death of Rachael, his first wife, he married, about three years later, his cousin Jane Hughes, and it is this marriage which is recorded in the Trinity Church Records. Concerning this same marriage we find in the Exeter Records this notice:—

> "2-25, 1767. (25 Feb., 1767) Jane Hughes (now Boone), dr. of John Hughes, dec'd, was reprimanded for marrying out and to kin."

It seems very much more probable it was following this second marriage, that Samuel established his gunsmith shop on the Potomac, and that his cousin Squire Boone, Jr. (Daniel's brother) was not with him there. We know Squire, Jr., had been apprenticed to him about 1759 or '60, (see the Squire Boone, Jr., history, page 73, and reference (c)).

We find that in 1776, (d) Samuel Boone had a gunsmith factory at Frederick, Md., where he manufactured guns and gunlocks, and during the Revolutionary War made gunlocks for the Continental Army. It is said he lost most of his money through this undertaking. A letter written by him at this time is preserved, and is recorded below:

> "Samuel Boone to Maryland Council of Safety.
> By orders of supervisors of the gun-lock factory in Frederickstown I have sent you seventy-nine locks, and have a quantity more all ready to put together. If you must have all the locks sent to you that is made in the factory, please to let me know by the bearer, George Bear.
> I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,
> To the Council of Safety of Maryland." (e)

of Samuel Boone, 2nd and wife Jane Hughes.

Family tradition says that Samuel Boone was quite well-to-do, but lost everything in his gun-lock factory at Frederick, being paid for his locks in Continental Script, while for his material and labor, he had to advance gold.

"In 1782 or '83", says Enoch M. Boone, "Squire Boone (Daniel's brother) went to Georgetown on Potomac, and on his return brought out old Samuel Boone, and family, who settled in Shelby Co. (Ky.)" (a)

Besides the family of Samuel Boone, there were several others, and they all joined with Squire Boone in re-settling his station on Brashear Creek. (c)

Samuel joined Squire in his new undertaking early in 1787, when they loaded up a boat with property and smith tools, going down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to Chickasaw Bluffs, on the east bank of Miss. R. (in what is now northern Miss). Here they landed and started to make a new settlement, intending as soon as that was done to return for their families. Being warned by a friendly Chickasaw that the Creeks (Indians), who were not friendly to the Whites, would cut them off, they reloaded their boat and Squire went on down to New Orleans, at that time Spanish territory; while Samuel remained nearly a year with the Chickasaws, working at his trade. (c) He then returned to Ky.

It is known by descendants that Jane (Hughes) Boone died in Ky., at the home of one of her daughters, Hannah, wife of Moses Boone (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), where she was known as "Little Granny" to distinguish her from "Big Granny", who was Jane (VanCleve) Boone, wife of Squire, Jr. (Squire[4]; George[3]).

Married 10 Oct., 1765, Martha Boone, No. 48 (b. 11 July, 1742; d. 28 May, 1798, aged 55 yrs., 10 mos., 17 days; buried at Catawissa), daughter of James[4]; (George[3]). (a) (See the Foulke-Hughes Sketch for her mother, Mary Foulke's, ancestry.)

(We are told that Martha Boone died "on the 2 day of the week, * * about half an hour after 1 o'clock in the afternoon.") (b)

On 24 Dec., 1766, in the Orphan's Court (Philadelphia, now Berks Co.) George Hughes petitioned the court to divide his father's (John Hughes) estate in Exeter Township, as he (John Hughes) had died a short time before, leaving no will. The heirs were George Hughes, his sister, Jane (Hughes) Boone, and some younger half sisters, who were not Boone descendants. This estate consisted of about 190 acres, and was ordered divided according to the value. (c)

70. ABIGAIL BOONE (William[5]; George[4]; George[3]), born ———; died 14 Mar., 1808. (a)

Married 28 May, 1767, in Exeter Twp., Berks County, Pa., Adin Pancoast of Mansfield, New Jersey, (d. 12 Dec., 1822), (a) son of John and Mary Pancoast.

She may have been the eldest of William Boone's children, as she was married before her father and his family removed to Maryland, and did not accompany them. Her marriage is recorded as follows:-

> "5-mo-28, 1767, Adin Pancoast of Mansfield tp. West New Jersey, son of John, dec'd and Mary, and Abigail Boone of Exeter tp. Berks Co., dr. of William and Sarah of said place. At Exeter Meeting. Witnesses:—Wm., Sarah and Mordecai Boone, John and Joseph Pancoast, Mordecai and Abraham Lincoln and 63 others." (a)

In 1797, Abigail Pancoast, with her four children, moved to Catawissa in what is now Columbia Co., her removal being recorded in Exeter Meeting, June 28, 1797. For some reason the removal of her husband, Adin Pancoast, is not recorded until the following year, Jan. 31, 1798. (b) In Catawissa Meeting Records we find she was received in Nov., 1797.

> "11-26, 1797, Abigail Pancoast produced a certificate from Exeter for herself and her children dated 6-28, 1787." (c)

In this record three children, William, Thomas and Hezekiah are named, while a fourth, Mary, was named only in the "removal" recorded in Exeter. Mary may have either married or died meanwhile. In Catawissa they were associated with the family of Abigail's second cousin Samuel Boone, whose daughter married Hezekiah Pancoast. Abigail (Boone) Pancoast is mentioned in the wills of her father George Boone IV, and her uncle Jeremiah Boone.

Married about 1778, Susanna Parks (d. abt. 1837, aged abt. 65). In Exeter Records we find mention of Susanna being condemned for her marriage.

> "1-28, 1778, Susanna Boone (Dau. of Benjamin Parks) for marrying out and by a Priest."
> (Benjamin Parks received in Exeter Meeting from Newark Meeting 4-27, 1745). This was Susanna's father.

Although William himself was a Quaker, he had previously been disowned for having joined the militia, in Jan. 28, 1778, (a) hence Susanna was considered as having "married out" (of the Society of Friends). However, Susanna was retained as a member, for in 1779 she was given a letter of dismissal to a Maryland Meeting (a). William and his wife were founders and first settlers of Boonesboro, Maryland (b). The land upon which the town is situated and that all around it was granted to George and William Boone of Berks County, Pa., in about 1774. A little later William Boone went to his property in Maryland and resided there until his death in 1798 (b). Family tradition also, claims William and Susanna as founders of Boonesboro, Md., and a letter from a descendant says, "In the old Reformed Church Graveyard at Boonesboro there is a headstone which has on it 'Susanna Boone, Proprietress of Boonesboro.' "

75. HEZEKIAH BOONE (William[5]; George[4]; George[3]), born 1764; died 1 Apr., 1827, aged 63 years.

In Exeter Meeting "5 mo. 25, 1791," Hezekiah Boone was called to account for marrying Hannah Hughes before a justice. Being cousins, they were disowned by the Society for their marriage. Concerning his second wife Elizabeth Boone, we have the following statement from the late Miss Elizabeth Boone (Judah[6]; Moses[5]; James[4]; George[3]), No. 747, of Reading, Pa.

> "Elizabeth, daughter of Moses and Sarah (Griffith) Boone, my blood-aunt, was the second wife of Hezekiah Boone of Roaring Creek, Columbia County, Pa. I well remember her personally; was named in her honor." (Signed) Elizabeth Boone, Stonersville, Pa., 2-20, 1918.

78. DANIEL WILCOXSON (WILCOX) (Sarah[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 13 Mar., 1755, in Rowan County, North Carolina; died 16 June, 1837, in Shelby County, Ky. (See Pension Record.)

Married ——— Faulkner.

In addition to the family tradition that Daniel Wilcoxson's mother was the sister of Daniel Boone, we have the following proof of this fact, from outside sources:

In Draper Manuscript, 22 C 16, p. 27 (Library of the Historical Society of Wisconsin), there is a statement made by George Bryan, son of Morgan Bryan, Jr., and nephew of William Bryan who married Mary Boone. He says, "Israel Wilcox (a cousin of Daniel Wilcox who was a nephew of Daniel Boone) was out in the field at work and his cousin Daniel was on the fence watching for him. (Daniel Wilcox married a Faulkner, older sister to old Henry Wilson's wife, of now Flat Rock. Israel Grant, Wm. Hogan and Daniel Wilcox got married October of that fall, and next old bawling Lockridge.) The Indians shot Israel off the fence, and chased Daniel till he got to the fence that ran between the fort and the cornfield to keep the calves out. As he crossed the fence they were so nigh they struck at him with their tomahawks but didn't reach him. They were then in reach of the guns at the fort. His wife stood at the fort gate and called to him to 'run, Dan'l, run.' This was after I had gone to Boonesboro."

From the context it appears that this incident took place at Bryan's Station in 1780. The account is rather ambiguous as to which of the cousins was on the fence, but that is of minor importance. Its chief value lies in the statement that Daniel Wilcox who married a Faulkner was a nephew of Daniel Boone, thus confirming the family tradition.

See another version of this affair on page 57.

In the Filson Club's History of Bryant (Bryan) Station is also recorded the fact that Daniel Wilcoxson and another man were in the field at work when the other man (not stating his name) was killed and Daniel Wilcoxson barely escaped with his life.

Daniel Wilcoxson served as Lieutenant in the Revolutionary War, both in defence of Bryan's Station and in Gen. Clark's expeditions. His military history is recorded in the Bureau of Pensions at Washington.

Military Record of Daniel Wilcox or Wilcoxson, as contained in a report from the Bureau of Pensions, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., Nov. 21, 1919:

Enlisted Sept., 1778, as Private, under Capt. John Holder, N. C. Served also as Lieut. under Capt. William Hogan and Capt. Robert Johnston. Engaged in the Siege of Bryant's Station and in General Clark's expedition.

Age at date of application; born Mar. 13, 1755, in Rowan Co., N. C.; died June 16, 1837 in Shelby Co., Ky.

The Pension report also states that the name appears as Wilcoxen, Wilcoxon and Wilcoxson.

Will of Daniel Wilcoxson.

"I, Daniel Wilcoxson of the County of Shelby and Commonwealth of Kentucky, being now advanced in years and of course the measure of my days nearly full, but of sound mind and disposing memory; and for the purpose of settling my worldly concerns, do make and publish this my last will and testament in the manner and form following, viz; After all my just debts and expenses are paid, I wish the residue of my property to be disposed of in the following manner, viz; I wish my negro woman, Abigail, to be set free. 79. RACHEL WILCOXSON (WILCOX), (Sarah[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]), died in Callaway Co., Mo.

Married William Bryant (b. 1739 in Wales; died Oct., 1834 aged 95 years, in Boone Co., Mo).

According to well-established tradition William Bryant of Bryant's Station Ky., accompanied by a brother named Benjamin Bryant, came from Wales to the shores of the New World in 1764, when they were young men. Benjamin settled in Virginia, while William Bryant chose North Carolina, in the region of the Upper Yadkin River, for his home. In this region he lived for several years, married and acquired property, and here he became acquainted with the Boones, Bryans, Wilcoxes, Callaways and other pioneer families in that section. Sometime prior to 1775 he accompanied Daniel Boone into Kentucky as far as the North Fork of the Elkhorn Creek, where the two men made camp and hunted and explored several weeks before returning to the Yadkin in N. C. "Early in 1779 William Bryant led a party of emigrants into Kentucky, stopping at Boonesboro for supplies, and continuing to a point about five miles northeast of Lexington, where they erected and fortified a number of cabins, and the place was from that time forth known as Bryant's Station." He was a soldier in the Revolutionary Army, but his service was omitted in 1779, probably because of this migration. No doubt William Bryant's wife Rachel accompanied him to Kentucky, for they settled at Bryant's Station in Fayette Co., and later removed to what is now Estill Co., Ky. From there, in about 1816-20 they emigrated with their younger children to the new and promising land beyond the Mississippi, locating at Femme Osage, Mo., not far from the Boone settlement in Callaway Co. Here Rachel (Wilcox) Bryant died, and her husband removed to Boone Co., in 1821.

William Bryant married a second time a young woman named Nancy Wood, by whom he had children, none of whom lived to maturity. He died in Boone Co., and is buried near the site of the vanished town of Stonesport.

His will is recorded in Deed Record A. P. 292, Boone Co., Mo.

Military Record of William Bryant.

"He joined the Continental forces and served for a time in the War of Independence. While serving as such, he was captured by the British and placed on board a prison ship in Charleston Harbor. One night he dropped silently into the waters of the harbor, swam ashore and returned to the American lines in safety. During the Revolutionary struggle in Kentucky, he held the rank of Captain under Cols. Todd and Boone. The following is found in the Colonial Records copied from the records of soldiers who served in the Revolutionary War, in Philadelphia: 'William Bryant, Private in Blounts Com.; date of Com. or enl. 26 Apr., 1778; period of service 2 1-4 years, omitted in 1779.' 80. ELIZABETH WILCOXSON (WILCOX) (Sarah[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]). Married Benjamin Cutbirth (b. 1767).

"At the close of the French and Indian War there arrived in the Boone settlement a Scotch-Irishman named Benjamin Cutbirth, aged about twenty-three years. He was a man of good character and a fine hunter. Marrying Elizabeth Wilcoxen, a niece of Daniel Boone, he and Boone went on long hunts together, and attained that degree of comradeship which joint life in the wilderness camp is almost certain to produce." The Cutbirths lived in Madison Co., Ky., and it was here at the home of her daughter Elizabeth that Sarah (Boone) Wilcoxson (Wilcox) died in 1815.

86. SQUIRE BOONE (Samuel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 13 Oct., 1760, in South Carolina; died 28 June, 1817, in Todd Co., Ky.

Married 1 Sept. 1784, in Fayette Co., Ky., Anna Grubbs (b. 23 June, 1776; died 26 Aug., 1843), daughter of William and Susanna (Hearne) Grubbs. (Marriage date is from Pension Record.)

Squire Boone was born in South Carolina, whither his parents had moved to avoid the depredations of the Indians on the western borders of North Carolina, where they had formerly lived. There is no further record of Squire up to the time of his enlistment from the Camden District of South Carolina, on the Congaree River, in 1777.

He enlisted June or July, 1777, 3 mo., as Sgt. under Capt. John Cook; Col. Robt. Goodwin, South Carolina.

He enlisted June or July, 1779 for three months as Sgt. under Captains John McChord or Robert McGowan; Col. John Russell.

From 1780 to 1783 he served in Kentucky under Captain William Hays,* and was frequently engaged against Indians in the defense of the frontier.

He also served under General George Rogers Clark in his expeditions against the Piqua towns, and was seriously injured in the Battle of Blue Licks. The record also states that the pensioner was a son of Samuel Boone and a nephew of Daniel, and gives considerable data concerning his wife and children.

In the fall of 1779 he moved with his father's family to Kentucky, and settled at Bryan's Station. (a) Here he continued to serve in frontier Indian warfare until the time of his marriage. A biographical sketch of his son, Dr. Levi Day Boone of Chicago, says that the marriage of Squire and Anna Boone occurred under circumstances characteristic of that romantic period. Kentucky at that time consisted of only two counties, eastern and western, divided by the Kentucky River. As there was no magistrate in the western county to administer the marriage vow, the couple crossed to the east bank of the river, and there, standing under the shade of a large tree, a magistrate pronounced them one. As the book in which this account appears was compiled during the lifetime of Dr. Levi Day Boone, and probably met with his approval, the above incident can be given slightly more credence than the average tradition. (c)

Squire Boone became a Baptist preacher, having been baptized in that faith at Lower Howard's Creek, Ky., sometime between 1785 and 1787. (b) He lived for a time at Lexington, where his son Levi was born in 1808, and later removed to Todd County, near the present town of Elkton, where he located on a farm and built the home in which he lived until his death. He never fully recovered from the wound he received at the battle of Blue Licks, and it is said that the bullet he had received in the hip remained there during the rest of his life.

Anna (Grubbs) Boone, the wife of Squire, went to Kentucky with her parents about 1775. (See Sketch of Grubbs Family.) She was a sister of Higgason Grubbs who was prominent in the early history of Madison Co., Ky. Her obituary was written by her son Higgason G. Boone, and reads, in part, as follows:—

"Died in Todd Co., Ky., on Saturday the 26th day of August, 1843, Mrs. Anna Boone, in the 78th year of her age; in full hope of a glorious immortality, having lived the life of a consistent Christian for more than fifty years. In the early settlement of Kentucky she was married to Squire Boone, on the 18th day of September, 1784, on the bank of Kentucky River at the mouth of Boone's Creek, Fayette Co., Ky., and shortly after was baptised by Elder Redding or Crag (the minister is not certain which), and continued a consistent member of the Baptist Church until the day of her death. She was the mother of fifteen children, many of whom yet live, together with a numerous train of grandchildren."—H. G. B., Elkton, Ky., Oct. 18, 1843.

91. JOHN GRANT (Elizabeth[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 30 Jan. 1754, in North Carolina; died 11 Nov., 1825, on the Licking River in Kentucky.

Married Mary (Polly) Moseby, sister of Maj. Joseph Moseby of Yadkin (N. C.) and afterwards of Fayette Co., Ky.

John Grant (known as Col. Grant) was living at Shallow Ford, N. C., in 1779, when he joined his father and brothers, under Daniel Boone, in their move to Kentucky, where they stopped first for a while at Fort Boonesborough, then went on and helped establish Bryan's Station. After this was built, Grant and Col. William Ellis (from Va.) went five miles farther on towards where Paris (Ky.) now stands, and set up Grant's Station. In 1780 this station was broken up by Col. Byrd with his English forces, and Grant returned with his family to N. C. Here he entered the Revolutionary army for a while, but in the spring of 1782 he returned to Ky. and settled permanently, though at what place is not known. Eventually he located on the Licking River, where he set up salt works, and died many years later.

319 William Grant.
Possibly others.

92. ISRAEL GRANT (Elizabeth[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 14 Dec., 1756, in North Carolina; died October, 1796, in Scott Co., Ky.

Married about July, 1780, in Ky., Susan Bryan, sister of Jonathan Bryan of St. Charles Co., Mo., and a daughter of James Bryan who was an uncle of Mrs. Daniel Boone.

Israel Grant "came out" from Shallow Ford (Yadkin), N. C., in the spring of 1779 with the Grant, Bryan, and Boone families. It is quite probable that he helped his father and the Bryans establish Bryan's Station, and being at the time unmarried he may have divided his time between Fort Boonesborough, Bryan's Station, and his brother John's station (Grant's). About July, 1780, he was married to Susan Bryan, who was one of the six children of James Bryan, all of whom after the death of their mother were taken by their "uncle" Daniel and "aunt" Rebecca Boone to be brought up. It was at the Boone home that Susan was married, possibly at Fort Boonesborough.

Probably after his marriage Israel located at or near Fort Boonesborough, for we find that in October, 1780, he went with Daniel Boone in pursuit of the Indians that had killed Edward Boone. To Israel and his wife were born three children.

(All born in Ky.)

320 James Grant. Their father having died when the youngest child was quite small, James educated his brothers from the proceeds of their father's farm. He was twice married, first to a Miss Easton, and then after her death to Sally Hunt. He settled in Callaway Co., Mo., in 1826, and became an influential citizen. For one term he represented his county in the State Legislature, and was also Judge of the County Court for a time. Later he moved from Callaway Co. to southwest Missouri and settled on the Neosho River. This was his home at the time of his death. Of his descendants nothing is known.

+321 William Grant.

322 Israel Boone Grant; thought to be the youngest son. At the age of 15 he went to Mo. with his uncle Jonathan Bryan, and taught school for one year. Following this he returned to Ky., and began the study of medicine, but tiring of that he bound himself out for five years to a silversmith in Lexington, Ky. After learning this trade he went to St. Louis, where he followed his profession for five years more. At that time he paid a visit to his uncle, Jonathan Bryan, who persuaded him to give up silversmithing and go to farming. Jonathan went with him to Callaway Co. to help him pick out and enter a tract of farming land. This done Israel went back to Ky., and on the 28th of March, 1820, was there married to Lettie Warren, taking her that same spring as a bride to Callaway Co. During his residence in Missouri he was several times elected County Judge, and for two terms was in the State Legislature. About Christmas 1835 be had gone to Fulton to collect some money, and as he returned was waylaid and killed by two of his negro slaves. Both negroes were hanged for this crime, and the skeleton of one, named Jacob, was in a Danville (Mo.) doctor's office for years.

94. WILLIAM GRANT (III) (Elizabeth[5] Boone; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 10 Jan., 1761, in Virginia; died 20 Feb., 1814.

Married Sally Moseby, sister of Maj. Joseph Moseby and of Mary Moseby who married John Grant, William's brother.

During the Indian outbreak of 1759, William's parents, who at that time were living in the Yadkin Country (N. C.), went to live for a time in Virginia, near where Washington, D. C., now stands. It was while they were living there that William III was born. Before September 1764 the family moved back to N. C. and settled again in the Yadkin Country near Shallow Ford. After living there several years William went with his parents in 1779 to Kentucky, and lived at Bryan's Station near Fort Boonesborough.

While out hunting with a party on the Elkhorn River about May 20th, 1780, he was wounded in an attack the Indians made on the party. It is very probable he was one of the defenders of Bryan's Station when it was besieged in August, 1782, by Simon Girty and his band, for at the battle of Blue Licks, which followed within a few days, Grant was under his uncle, Daniel Boone. At the ford of the Licking, he joined Maj. Netherland in checking the Indians. It was here that he saw an Indian tomahawking some of the exhausted men at the edge of the ford and shot him. While doing this he had left his horse, Keplar, untied, and when he went to get him found that he was gone. Going on a mile or two, he overtook one of his friends who had caught Keplar. Mounting and going still farther, Grant came upon Capt. Wood from the south side of the Kentucky River, who was too fleshy and exhausted to mount his own horse. Grant got down to help Wood and a second time Keplar got away, but was again caught by the same man, and Grant this time escaped safely. (Keplar lived to be 32 years old.)

Grant went out on Clark's campaign in 1782, and again on Logan's in 1786. He used to tell his sons about this campaign.

At some time during this period of his life he was married to Sally Moseby, who was one of fifteen children, seven boys and eight girls, who came from the Yadkin Country and settled in Fayette Co., Ky. Both Grant and his wife were Baptists in their religious beliefs. They lived, died and were buried at the Grant homestead on the Elkhorn, which came to William through his father, William Grant II.

Married Lydia Craig, daughter of Rev. Elijah Craig of Scott Co., Ky.

Samuel Grant was killed by Indians on Grant's Lick Creek in Indiana, at the same time that his brother Moses was. He was thought, by his nephew, Col. Samuel Moseby Grant, to have been a Captain under Col. Robert Johnson who led the expedition over the Ohio, which ended disastrously for Moses and Samuel Grant.

Squire Grant commanded a company from Kenton Co., Ky., in the War of 1812. He also probably took part in the Battle of Blue Licks (Revolution), as the name Squire Grant is given in a list of those who escaped, Aug. 1782. He was State Senator from Boone Co., Ky., 1901.

102. SUSANNAH BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 2 Nov., 1760; died 19 Oct. 1800, aged 39 yrs., 11 mos. and 17 days, in what is now St. Charles Co., Mo. (d)

Married in March, 1775, at Blackmore's Station on the Clinch river in Va., William Hays (d. 13 Dec., 1804). (a)

Of the ancestry of William Hays little is known except that he was of Irish descent. (b) He was a weaver by trade, and probably had a better education than most of his associates, for we are told that while living on the Clinch River, he taught Daniel Boone "some in writing and improved hand," and kept Boone's accounts. (c)

They were married just before Susannah's father, Daniel Boone, set out on his expedition for the Henderson Company to mark and cut out the road into Kentucky. Some accounts say that William Hays was a member of this party. In Kentucky Daniel Boone and his party put up a few cabins which were the foundation of Fort Boonesborough, after Bhich Boone returned to Virginia for his family. On April 30, 1776, woone took his family and started again over the new road to Kentucky where he planned to make his future home. In the party were his daughter Susannah and her husband William Hays. The trip through the forest and over the mountains occupied over a month. When they got within four miles of the fort, as night was approaching, the entire party camped, except William Hays and his wife, who hurried on to Boonesborough. That night, in the crude frontier fort, Susannah Hays gave birth to her first child, on June 12, 1776, one month and twelve days after their leaving North Carolina. (e) This child, Elizabeth Hays, was without doubt the first white child born in Kentucky. (f, g & h)

On Feb. 7, 1778, Daniel Boone was captured by Indians and carried away into captivity. (i) While he was a prisoner of the Indians and English, his wife Rebecca Boone and her children, accompanied by William Hays and his wife Susannah, went back to Mrs. Boone's father's (Joseph Bryan's), on the Yadkin River in North Carolina. In the spring the Hays returned to Kentucky, during which journey Elizabeth Hays, their eldest daughter, was carried on a horse by George Bryan, son of Morgan Bryan, Jr. (f)

William Hays took part in the Siege of Fort Boonesborough. At that time, seeing an Indian sitting behind a tree, Hays took a shot at him, breaking the red man's knee and splintering one of his thigh bones. It is said that the Indian lived some time, perhaps weeks, but finally died of his wounds. (c) William Hays was enrolled as a pioneer soldier of Kentucky, on June 10, 1779, in Capt. John Holder's company, at Boonesborough. (m) From 1779 to 1783, Hays was a Captain at Bryan's Station under Colonels Levi Todd and Daniel Boone. (f) When on Aug. 15, 1782, the Indians attacked Bryan's Station, Captain William Hays raised, probably on the second day of the siege, a party of about twelve men at Boone's Station, and hurried to their relief. (c, i & k) Somewhere on the way they met the men from Lexington, and all went on to Bryan's Station together. During the siege Hays, who was on horseback, received a bullet wound in the back of the neck. He was so severely stunned that he was almost insensible, but managed to stay on his horse and escaped. Later Capt. Hays was detailed to attend to the building of canoes and collecting of provisions for Gen. George Rogers Clark's Army in 1781.

Probably about 1785, William and Susannah Hays came into possession of Daniel Boone's Marble Creek farm, five miles west of Boone's Station, and remained there until the fall of 1799, when they moved with Daniel Boone's party to Missouri. Hays and his son, William Hays, Jr., joined that section of the party which went overland from Limestone or some point below, adding their livestock to the rest. Their route was through Lexington, Louisville, Vincennes, and St. Louis. (c) The Hays family settled in St. Charles Co., Missouri.

Captain Hays was a man of high temper, and was killed in a quarrel with his son-in-law, James Davis. He had forbidden Davis to come on his place, but his order was disobeyed. When he threatened to shoot, Davis fired first, and after several hours suffering Hays died. (b) This occurred at Femme Osage, in the district of St. Charles, in the Territory of Louisiana (now Mo.).

103. JEMIMA BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 4 Oct., 1762, in North Carolina; died 1829 in Montgomery Co. Mo.

Married about 1782, Flanders Callaway (b. 9 Dec. 1758, in Va.; d. 19 Aug. 1824), son of James Callaway. (a) (See the Sketch of Callaway Family.)

Flanders Callaway was reared in either Culpepper or Bedford Co., Va., and was the eldest of three sons, his younger brothers being James and Micajah. He ran away from home and went with some other young men at an early date to Kentucky, locating at Boonesborough.

The dramatic capture by Indians of Jemima Boone and the two Callaway girls, is a matter of history. A number of accounts of this event have been left by their contemporaries, all of which are interesting. We are giving here the statement of Jemima's cousin Daniel Bryan, son of William and Mary (Boone) Bryan. He says:—

> "Jemima Callaway was so fond of playing in the water, (till perhaps 14 years of age), that her common name was Duck. I have had a chat with all the girls since their captivity, but more especially with my cousin, Mima Callaway. On July 14th, 1776, (it was on Sunday), the girls had gone down to the river, and for diversion had gotten into the canoe. After some time they discovered that they had gotten nearly out of sight of the fort. They now endeavored to turn their canoe and go back to the fort. This only took them farther into the stream, and till they had gotten within fifteen yards of the other side, when (they discovered) an Indian appeared, came down and swam in, and brought their canoe to. They could only scream, for to jump out was to drown, and their cries produced an alarm at the fort. When the men came down they could not get over. One at length swam over, and brought back the canoe, which the Indians had taken to the other side.
> It was so late, it is my impression they didn't pursue on far that night, but returned to supply themselves with provisions, and came back as soon as they could see to follow the trace next morning. The Indians led the girls immediately up the bank and straight off without any delay whatever. The trail was exceedingly obscure. If they trod down a leaf or broke off a limb it was noticed and the Indians turned it the other way, so as to conceal the appearance. They were also threatened for such, when discovered. The pursuit and flight, on either hand, was only interrupted by night. The girls were taken along for some distance, and their dresses were shortened and the slips (strips?) bandaged around their legs to enable them to walk with more speed. The pursuers could not keep the trail and travel fast. They for a time just struck out to the right, as if they would go before, and then returning, found a trail they could follow at quick speed. The third day the Indians passed a rolling ground that commanded the trail for some 150 or 200 yards, placed a sentry there and proceeded down on the other side about 70 yards; intending to secure the tomahawking of the girls and their own escape should they be surprised. The sentinel, however, became impatient, being hungry, and it is supposed about the time he thought the venison to be boiled down, to have gone down to the fire. Just then the party came in view, and ascending the rising ground, as Boone had ordered, charged on the party of Indians, a part of them shooting and some reserving their fire. Boone hallowed to the girls to fall to the ground, but they, heedlessly, rushed to the whites. The guns were mostly taken. Boone shot one man who dropped his gun. None were fired (of their guns). The Indians were not pursued, and the party returned immediately." (b)

Flanders Callaway, who married Jemima Boone, and Samuel Henderson, who married one of the Callaway girls, were members of the rescue party which overtook the Indians and brought the girls back home. The place where the rescue was effected was near what is now Flat Rock, Ky., on the place now (1921) owned and occupied by Carrol Hamilton, a Boone descendant.

It was thought by their daughter, Mrs. Frances Lamme, that Flanders Callaway and Jemima Boone were married by Flanders' uncle, Col. Richard Callaway. (c) (See Sketch of the Callaway Family.)

At the siege of Boonesborough, "Mrs. Jemima Callaway said she ran many bullets and would take them in her apron too hot to handle, and distribute them. She also aided in putting out the fired roofs, and said that women would dress in men's clothes and parade around to make an increased show of numbers." (d) Flanders Callaway was one of the treaty commissioners at the siege of Boonsborough, and in running to the fort had the little finger of his left hand shot off. (d)

Taking his family Callaway removed to Missouri with Daniel Boone, and settled in what is now Warren Co. With his sixteen year old son, Flanders, Jr., he joined Daniel in driving the stock over the land route from Louisville to St. Louis, while the women and children of the party went by boat down the Ohio and up the Mississippi Rivers. (e) After settling in Missouri Callaway made a practice of going out every fall or early winter to hunt and trap, generally taking with him a negro named Mose who was a good trapper, and sometimes also his son John or son James. On these occasions the Indians would sometimes rob him of skins and horses. Perceiving that the Indians had a great reverence and respect for August Chouteau, a French trapper, Callaway formed the habit of marking his skins with the initials of his own name, "F. C." When an Indian party would appear and demand the skins, he would promptly display the markings and say "Chouteau," thus conveying the idea that the skins belonged to Chouteau. The Indians would receive this very soberly and go away without the skins, as they knew if they took them the marks might betray them to Chouteau, whom they did not care to rob. After that they took only Callaway's horses, but some of these were recovered. These hunting trips occurred before the War of 1812. Callaway went back several times to Kentucky, not only to dispose of his furs and pelts, but also to procure household supplies. (f & g) At an early date, probably before 1808, he and his wife, Jemima (Boone) Callaway, rode all the way on horseback to Kentucky, to visit friends and relatives. (h)

It was at their home in Charette, Mo., that Daniel Boone made his home for a while in his old age. After a long illness Flanders Callaway

died at his home in Missouri, and was followed in death a few years later by his wife. It is said that Flanders Callaway was a "tall, spare, thin-visaged, swarthy man." (h)

104. LEVINA BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 23 Mar., 1766; died in Clark Co., Ky., 6 Apr., 1802, aged 36 years and 15 days.

Married about 1785, Joseph Scholl (b. 1755; d. 1835) (a), son of William and Leah (Morgan) Scholl. (See Sketch of Scholl Family.)

It is quite probable that Joseph Scholl was born in the Shenandoah Valley in Va., as his older brother, Peter, was born there. In 1779 he went to Ky. and settled. No doubt he was in a great many of the Indian fights there, for we know that he was in the Battle of Blue Licks in August, 1782.

"About 1803 or '04 Joseph Scholl Sr., Jesse B. Boone, David Denton and one Van Bibber" went to Missouri to see the country. Joseph Scholl had a fine new rifle made for him by Daniel Bryan (nephew of Daniel Boone) a famous rifle maker in his day. While Scholl was in Missouri, Daniel Morgan Boone (son of Daniel Boone) borrowed this gun to take on a hunt he and his father were planning to make in the fall, promising to return it the next summer when he went to Kentucky on a visit. While on this hunting trip an Indian stole the gun from Daniel M. Boone, and we are not told whether Joseph Scholl, the rightful owner, ever regained his gun. We may surmise that he did, however, from this statement of Joseph Scholl, Jr., who tells the narative:

"As the Indian departed with his illy gotten prize, Daniel Morgan Boone asked his father for his gun, saying he was not disposed to lose his fine rifle." (b)

No doubt a little rifle skirmish brought back the stolen property.

Joseph Scholl died in Clark Co., Ky., leaving a number of children, all of whom except Joseph, Jr., the youngest, died prior to 1868. (b)

105. REBECCA BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 26 May, 1768, in North Carolina (a); died 14 July, 1805, in Clark Co., Ky., at the home of her sister Mrs. Scholl (Lavinia Boone).

Married Philip Goe (b. 24 Mar., 1767; d. in Nicholas Co., Ky., Mar. 1805).

The following brief history of Philip and Rebecca Goe was compiled from various Draper Manuscripts by Miss Alice A. Nunns of the Historical Society of Wisconsin, for Miss Lucy Jane Kemper of Butte, Montana.

In 1788 when Daniel Boone went to Philadelphia on a commercing trip, he left his son-in-law Philip Goe to attend to his business at Limestone (now Maysville), Kentucky. Mrs. Philip Goe apparently went then or some short time before to her husband's parents' home on Little Redstone Creek in Fayette Co., Pa. There her father visited her, and upon his return in the autumn of 1789 she went to Kentucky with him. In 1789 Daniel Boone moved to Point Pleasant in what is now West Virginia. Apparently the Goes stayed in Kentucky. Daniel Boone and his son Nathan returned to Kentucky in 1796, and opened up a new farm on Brushy Fork of Huckston Creek in what is now Nicholas County. This land belonged to Daniel M. Boone, and when he went to Missouri in 1799 he sold it to Philip Goe, who lived there the rest of his life. After Philip Goe and his wife died on this homestead in the same year, leaving seven children, Danile Morgan Boone went to Kentucky and took charge of his orphan nephews and nieces, taking all but the eldest and youngest children back to Missouri with him.

106. DANIEL MORGAN BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 23 Dec., 1769; died in Jackson Co., Mo., (a) 13 July, 1839, aged 71 years, 1 mo., 19 days.

Married in St. Charles Co., Mo., 2 Mar., 1800, Sarah Griffin Lewis (b. 29 Jan., 1786, in Va., died 19 June, 1850), daughter of John and Elizabeth (Harvie) Lewis.

Daniel Morgan Boone settled in Darst Bottom, St. Charles Co., Mo. in 1795, but moved to Montgomery Co., Mo., in 1816. (e)

An account of their marriage was published in the "Springfield Daily Leader," Sept. 18, 1915, as follows:

"St. Charles, Mo., Sept. 18—. An account of the marriage of Daniel Morgan Boone, eldest son of Daniel Boone the famous pioneer of the Ohio Valley, was found today in the vaults of St. Charles Borromeo's Catholic Church here, which was wrecked by a tornado on July 7th.

"The account of the wedding was written by Father Leander Lusson, priest of the church at the time of the marriage.

"The account says:

"'On March 2, 1800, have appeared before me, Frere Leander Lusson, recollect priest and pastor of St. Charles parish in Missouri, Daniel Morgan Boone, the legitimate and oldest son of Daniel Boone and Rebecca Bryan his lawful wife, living at St. Charles, Mo., on the one side; and on the other Sara Griffin Lewis, a younger and legitimate daughter of John Baptist Lewis and Elizabeth Harvey his lawful wife, her parents living at the port of St. Andrew. The which parties have declared to me their intention to bind themselves with the mutual pledge of marriage. After giving their oath on the Holy Bible to answer truthfully to all the points on which I must interrogate them, they have consented to answer.

"'Being asked what religion they professed, the said Daniel Morgan Boone said he was a Presbyterian, and the said Sara Griffin Lewis said that she professed the Protestant religion. Being asked if they would promise to bring the children born of this union to the church of the place near their future dwelling to be baptised, and send them to be instructed in religion, they answered "Yes."

"'Being asked if their parents were related within the forbidden degrees, so that according to their religion they could not contract marriage, they answered "No." Being asked from what country they came, the said Daniel Morgan Boone replied that he was a native of Virginia, in the diocese of Baltimore, and that he was living here with his parents; and the said Sara Griffin Lewis replied that she was likewise a native of Virginia, and that she lived with her father and mother.

"'Being asked whether their parents gave their consent to their marriage, their fathers and mothers, being present, answered, "Yes Sir." Being asked if they had been constrained by violence or threats or by force of authority to pledge their troth in marriage, they answered, "No Sir."

"'After the aforesaid information and after the publication of the bans on eight consecutive Sundays at the door of our Church of St. Charles, and also at the house of Mr. Mackay, Commandant of the said village and post of St. Andrew, the said Daniel Morgan Boone has, in my presence, taken the said Sara Griffin Lewis for his lawful wife, and pledged to her his marriage vow. And in return the said Sara Griffin Lewis has taken the said Daniel Morgan Boone for her lawful husband, and has plighted to him her troth. And I have received their mutual consent, and united them in the bonds of matrimony.'"

His military record reads:

"Daniel M. Boone, Ky., Mo. Capt. rangers 19 July, 1813; resd. 21 June, 1814; Capt. Mo. rangers to Sept., 1814." (b)

In 1816 he moved to Montgomery Co. He held several prominent positions under the Government, and during the Indian War was appointed Colonel of the Militia. He made most of the early Government surveys in the present counties of St. Charles, Warren, Montgomery and Lincoln. At the time of his death he was living in Jackson County. In appearance he resembled his father more than any of the other children. "He was below medium height, and stoutly built, had light hair, blue eyes, fair complexion, and a voice like a woman's." 107. JESSE BRYAN BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 23 May, 1773; died 1820. (a & b)

Married Chloe Van Bibber (b. 13 Aug., 1772), dau. of James and Samoa Van Bibber. (e)

As one of the younger children of Daniel and Rebecca Boone, Jesse Boone was literally cradled in the wilderness, and as a very tiny child probably witnessed some of the harrowing scenes connected with the early struggles of Fort Boonesborough.

"Early Western Travel" by Reuben Golde Thwaites, Vol. IV, p. 156, says:

> "Judge Boone has a good house on the left about three miles farther down, opposite to which on the Ohio side is the beginning of French Grant."

Foot-note by Thwaites says:

> "This was Jesse Boone, son of the well-known pioneer, Daniel, who had removed to Missouri with his other sons in 1798. Jesse Boone remained behind; was inspector of salt-works for West Virginia and Justice of the Kentucky County Court for Greenup." (d)

We know very little of his life, however, until he was married and settled in Missouri, where he became quite prominent and influential. In spite of the disadvantages of his youth, he is said to have had a fairly good education. He was a member of the first Missouri Legislature at the time of his death in 1820.

109. NATHAN BOONE (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 2 Mar., 1781, at Boone's Station, now Cross Plains, Fayette Co., Ky. (a); died in Green Co., Mo., 16 Oct., 1856, in his 76th year. (b & c)

Married 26 Sept., 1799, in Kentucky, Olive Van Bibber (b. 13 Jan., 1783, in Greenbriar Co., on the banks of Greenbriar River, Ky.; d. in Missouri 12 Nov., 1858, in her 75th year), daughter of Peter Van Bibber and wife Margary Bounds. (b) Some say she was a sister of the wife of Jesse Boone (107).

Nathan Boone spent his early childhood in the primitive settlements of Kentucky, and married at the age of eighteen. In September, 1799, he assisted his father in removing the family to Missouri. Draper Manuscript 6 S 18-254, gives an account of this journey as follows:

> "Daniel M. Boone and Nathan Boone started with their mother in the boat (called a pirogue) while Col. Boone started with the stock by land, assisted by a young man named George Buchanan and D. M. Boone's negro Sam. At Limestone (now Maysville) Nathan Boone got his marriage license and returned (75 miles) to Little Sandy, where Mr. Peter Van Bibber then lived, and Sept. 26th was married to Miss Olive Van Bibber; then started out and went all the way by land via Lexington, Louisville, Vincennes and St. Louis."

"The young couple located in St. Charles Co., Mo. In local history we find the following:—

> "From 1800 to 1812 he (Nathan Boone) was employed surveying Government land in what are now St. Charles, Montgomery and Warren Counties. In 1870, he with his brother Daniel surveyed a road from St. Charles to Blue Lick in Howard County, a road that is still in use. In 1820 he finished a large stone two-story house in St. Charles County, Mo. In this house his father Daniel Boone died, September 20, 1820. * * * * Nathan Boone was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1820, and was in the U. S. Army from 1832 to 1853." (d)

> "Capt. Rangers 25 March, 1812; Major Missouri Mtd. Rangers, 10 Dec., 1813; continued Capt. Rangers in 1814; disbanded June, 1815. Mounted Rangers, 16 June, 1832; Capt. 1st. Dragoons, Aug 1833; Major 1st. Dragoons 16 June, 1847; Lieut. Col. 2nd. Dragoons 25 July, 1850; resigned 15 July, 1855."

"A similar record is found in Heitman's "Historical Register." (e) Still another account of his military life reads as follows:—

> "As the war (1812) had now fairly commenced, an act of Congress authorized the raising of six companies of Rangers, three to be raised on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River, and the other three on the Illinois side. The Missouri companies were commanded by Daniel M. Boone, Nathan Boone, and David Musick. The commission of Nathan Boone was dated in June, 1812, to serve a year. * * * * On 15 August, 1813, Capt. Nathan Boone, and a party of spies under his command, while on a scout between the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, were attacked in the night by three times their number, but no lives were lost. About the September following, Maj. Nathan Boone was of the party which accompanied Gen. Howard's expedition to Peoria, where a fort was built. A little later, there were some Indian disturbances, and Maj. Nathan Boone and Capt. Samuel Whitesides scoured the country." (f)

A brief history of Olive (Van Bibber) Boone's early life and marriage is contained in a statement made by her during her lifetime. A newspaper clipping, unnamed and undated, was sent to us, containing an account of this interesting record. Efforts have been made to locate the branch of the family in which this quaint and interesting document is preserved, but without success. It is said to be a statement made by Mrs. Nathan Boone, recorded in the handwriting of Mrs. John C. Boone (her daughter-in-law) and preserved in the family of L. N. Boone of Webster Grove, Missouri. After saying that she was born the 13th of January, 1783; and grew up at the mouth of the Big Kanawha River, Mrs. Nathan Boone continues:

> "After the death of my father, Peter Van Bibber, my mother and I lived with my brother in Ohio, on the Ohio, opposite the mouth of the Big Sandy River. I was married on the 26th of Sept., 1799. On the first of October, without any company but my husband, I started to Missouri, or Upper Louisiana. We had two ponies and our packhorse. After being on our journey some time we were overtaken by a man and woman who travelled with us to Vincennes. We remained there nearly three weeks, in consequence of getting one of our ponies crippled. We travelled alone the remainder of the way, arriving in St. Louis the last of October. My husband was offered eighty acres of land (in the center of what was afterwards the city) for one of our ponies. He laughed and said he would not give one of the ponies for the whole town. We went to St. Charles County, and located about twenty miles above St. Charles. We crossed the Missouri River at St. Charles by placing our goods in a skiff. My husband rowed and I steered and held the horse by the bridle. It was rather a perilous trip for so young a couple. I was just sixteen, my husband eighteen."

In 1837 Nathan Boone located with his family on a farm near Ashgrove, Green County, Mo., where he remained until his death. He and his wife are both buried in the family graveyard of the old farm two miles north of Ashgrove. (g)

120. ELIZABETH BOONE (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born about 1765; died when past 90 years of age.

Married about 1792, Jesse Copher (b. about 1760; died 1822), son of Thomas Copher who was born in Pennsylvania but settled in Virginia.

Jesse Copher was raised in Culpepper Co., Va., and came to Kentucky as a young man. He was rather clumsy in build, so never made much of a hunter, but became a farmer instead.

He was a soldier in the Revolutionary Army; was captured with Kenton and Bullock, and taken to Detroit, where they were all kept a long time. Eventually they escaped thro' assistance given them by the wife of a storekeeper there. Kenton became acquainted with her and frankly said he wished help to escape. She promised to furnish provisions secretly, and arms if she could, but her husband must not be involved, and her life might be the forfeit if it were known she had helped them. She hid some "jerk" in a hollow tree, which had been agreed upon, and one evening, when some Indians had encamped nearby and stacked their guns while they were drinking, she stole three of the guns and hid them. She took ammunition from her husband's store, and one night with a ladder climbed the picketing (the prisoners were confined in some sort of stockade) to give them the guns and ammunition. She had gotten an Irishman who lived in Detroit to tell them, that if he were a prisoner and wished to escape he would take the usual route thro' the Wyandotte, Shawnee and Delaware country, then down to the Falls of the Ohio (Louisville, Ky.). "Profiting by this hint, they steered in that direction," and although they frequently heard guns, they saw no Indians, but supposed they were being pursued. At first they traveled only during the nights. Their "jerk" gave out, and finally they were forced in spite of their fear of discovery to shoot a deer. Just as it fell they discovered a party of Indians at a distance and hid themselves in a thicket. The Indians, however, disappeared and they enjoyed a feast of venison, "jerking" the rest of it. Soon after they reached the Falls of the Ohio. (a)

Jesse Copher and Elizabeth Boone were married in 179-, in Ky., and settled in Clark Co., where he took up a pre-emption of 1400 acres on Stoner Creek, most of which he lost later by a prior location. (a)

In the War of 1812 he was Captain of the Kentucky Militia Volunteers, commanded by Col. Richard Davenport.

Following the loss of his land he moved to Boone Co., Mo., in 1819. For many years he and his wife were members of the Baptist Church.

Both of them died in Missouri, leaving a large family of children, one of whom, Samuel, lived ten or twelve miles north of Columbia, Boone Co. (a)

Jesse Copher and Elizabeth Boone had eleven children, all mentioned in his will, which was signed 5 July, 1822; produced in Boone Co. (Mo.) Circuit Court and proven 21 Sept., 1822; and recorded on 18 Oct., 1822, in Will Book "A" page 120, 1 and 2.

122. WILLIAM LINVILLE BOONE (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 22 Feb., 1768, in North Carolina; died 13 Apr., 1847, in Shelby Co., Ky. (a)

Married 1st, 16 Aug., 1789, Nancy Grubbs (b. 8 June, 1771; d. 22 Mar., 1835 at Fayette, Mo.), a daughter of Higgason and Lucy (Harris) Grubbs (See the Grubbs Family Sketch), and married 2nd, in 1840, Mrs. Ann (Bryan) Perry.

William Linville Boone was the third child of George (brother of Daniel) and Ann or Nancy (Linville) Boone. About 1780, it is said he came from Virginia with his parents, who were among the very early pioneers, to Madison County, Ky., where in 1780, his father founded Boone's Station, about one and one-half or two miles north of the present courthouse in Richmond.

In 1789, he was married to Nancy Grubbs, the marriage rites being solemnized by Rev. Christopher Harris, of Old Baptist Faith, who was a brother of Lucy (Harris) Grubbs, thus being an uncle of the bride.

After his uncle, Edward Boone, had been killed by Indians in 1780, William, his father, George Boone, and his uncle Daniel Boone, were in the party which went out to bring in the mutilated body.

In the fall of 1799, when Daniel Boone moved to Missouri, William L. Boone was one of the party which went by boat, but he did not stay long and returned without trying to get a grant of land from Spain. (Missouri was then Spanish territory.)

During the closing years of the 18th, and the early part of the 19th Centuries there were two men by the name of William Boone living in Madison County, Ky. One is the subject of this sketch, and the other was probably his cousin, William Boone, whose wife was Margaret.

In Deed Book "G," page 431, we find "on 6th February, 1810, Higgason Grubbs, and wife, Lucy (Harris), for 1500 dollars, conveyed to William Boone a tract of land, granted by the Commonwealth of Ky., to Higgason Grubbs, 2 March, 1789, on the waters of Muddy Creek and the Kentucky River."

Again in Deed Book "G," page 533, "on 11 October, 1810, Edward Boone and his wife, Dorcas, of Shelby County, Ky., for 600 pounds, conveyed to William Boone, of Madison County, 185 acres of land on Tates and Otter Creeks in Madison County." The Edward Boone mentioned was probably William Boone's brother Edward, whose wife was Mrs. Dorcas (Simpson) White. It is thought that both of these conveyances were made to the subject of this sketch, son of George and Anne (Linville) Boone, for George Boone, Sr., owned lands near Richmond, on the head waters of the Tates and Otter Creeks. The two creeks head together in the northern part of the city of Richmond, where the ridge divides the head stream of the two creeks. (c)

"On 2 February, 1810, William Boone and wife, Nancy (Grubbs), conveyed to Richard Tunstall Jr., land on Tates Creek in Madison County Ky., adjoining Berry and others." Witnesses to this deed were Rebecca Harris, and their two daughters, Lucy and Mrs. Milly (Boone) Carson, wife of William Carson. The land of Lindsay Carson, father of the William Carson mentioned above, adjoined the William Boone land. James Berry was an uncle of Nancy (Grubbs) Boone and thus a great uncle of William Boone.

In 1811, William Boone and family, including his son-in-law, Andrew Tribble, with his family, moved to Shelby County, Ky. Just how long he lived here we do not know. After a time (1818) he moved to Missouri, settling near Columbia, Boone Co. (a), living there until after the death of his wife, Nancy (Grubbs) in 1835, when soon after he returned to Kentucky, and again located in Shelby County.

In Heitman's Historical Register (1789-19—), page 230, we find the record of William Boone of Kentucky, being 3d Lieut. of Rangers on 1 Aug., 1813, in Illinois Territory; and honorably discharged "15 (Aug.?) 1815." This may refer to the subject, William Linville Boone.

In 1845, he was sent by the Kentucky Legislature to Missouri to gain the consent of Nathan Boone, son of Daniel, for the removal of the bodies of Daniel and his wife, Rebecca (Bryan) Boone, from Missouri to Frankfort, Ky. He was successful in this mission, and was one of the pall-bearers at the time of their removal.

In 1840, at the age of seventy-two he was married a second time to Mrs. Ann (Bryan) Perry. A few years later (1847), he died and was buried on the old Major Andrew Tribble farm in Shelby County. In those days each family had its own private burial ground.

129. "CAPTAIN" SAMUEL BOONE (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 15 Jan., 1782, at Hoy's Station in Madison County, Ky.; died Sept., 1869. (a)

Married in the fall of 1804, Ann Simpson of Kentucky (b. abt. 1788; d. Feb., 1873), a sister of Mrs. Dorcas (Simpson) White, who married Samuel's brother Edward.

In the summer of 1804, James Callaway, William Hays, and perhaps Boone Hays, all grandsons of Daniel Boone, went from Missouri to Kentucky with a lot of furs and pelts. When they started back home, Samuel Boone went part way with them, then turned back, and was married that fall (1804).

In Madison County (Ky.) Court records, Deed Book F, page 601, on 10 Aug., 1807, we find "George Boone and wife, Anna, for 300 pounds conveyed to Samuel Boone 100 acres of land on Otter Creek in Madison County, Ky., part of said George Boone's tract he lived on."

In the battle on the Thames River, 5 October, 1813, Samuel was in Col. James Simrall's mounted regiment, in the reserve on the extreme left. The horses had all been left on the south side of Lake Erie. After the battle, it was reported that Tecumseh, which name is said to mean "meteor" or "flying panther," was killed. Gen. William Henry Harrison said he had often seen Tecumseh, and would know him, by a scar on his face. A young British officer said Tecumseh had been wounded on the wrist, in a skirmish the day before. Gen. Harrison, Shelby, the young British officer, and others went to view the body. Gen. Harrison found the scar on the face; the wound on the wrist; the nicely fringed hunting-jacket, as described by the British officer, and pronounced it to be Tecumseh's body. This was in the evening and a large crowd of soldiers had followed, Capt. Samuel Boone among them. Next morning Harrison and Shelby again examined the Indian's body, and again stated their opinions that it was Tecumseh. This time Col. Simrall's regiment was drawn up closely, and Capt. Boone said he heard Gen. Harrison make this assertion on one or both occasions. Tecumseh's thighs had been skinned for razor strops. In the first part of this battle Johnson's left wing, or troops on the left, gave way, but rallied, and were reinforced by Col. Simrall, who was ordered to do so by Col. Isaac Shelby, in command of twelve Kentucky regiments in this battle. There was no more fighting, however. It is traditionally reported that Tecumseh was killed by Col. Richard M. Johnson of Ky., although it has never been proven.

Some time prior to his moving to Mo., Samuel wrote to his uncle, Daniel Boone, offering him a fine farm in Ky., with all expenses paid, to live on the rest of his life, if he (Daniel Boone) would return and identify some early surveys he had made. This Daniel Boone refused to do, and it is thought never did return to Ky. as long as he lived.

Late in the fall of 1817 Samuel Boone made his first visit to Mo., and found his uncle (Daniel Boone) then living with his son Nathan. (b)

Captain Samuel Boone settled in Callaway County, Mo., in 1818, and in 1820, he assisted in building the first Baptist Church, called Salem, in that county.

He always had his milling done at Charette, Mo., and when he went in the summer of 1820 to have it done, Daniel Boone went with him to make a visit at his son-in-law's, Flanders Callaway. They set out in Samuel Boone's wagon to make the trip, about 40 miles, but were overtaken by nightfall, and camped near the lower or eastern end of Loutre prairie, a mile or two west of the Camp Branch, a noted camping spot for travelers and movers. They spread some bedclothes on the grass, it being a pleasant summer night, tied the horses to the wagon and fed them. After eating their own supper they went to bed. In the night a heavy dew fell on them, and next morning Daniel Boone complained of headache. They went on into Charette, where Daniel Boone decided to stay for a while as he was not feeling well.

After getting his milling done Samuel Boone went on home, and the last part of August went to Ky. on a visit, where he found his own father (George Boone) not at all well. Here he stayed until after his father's death on 14 November, 1820. While he was in Ky., Daniel Boone died.

Samuel Boone was six feet tall, spare in build, light complexioned and mild in his manners.

He and his wife were both Baptists for many years, and on the 12 and 13 of June, 1868, when he was interviewed by Dr. Lyman C. Draper (b) they were living near Williamsburg, Callaway Co., Mo., with their son Tucker, Mrs. Boone being 80 years old at that time.

He probably died and was buried in Missouri.

472 Mary A. Boone.

+473 Elizabeth C. Boone, m. her double cousin Dr. Banton Boone, son of Edward and Dorcas (Simpson-White) Boone. (For their further history and their descendants, see the Edward Boone line, as the line of descent will be traced through the father instead of the mother, when both are Boone descendants. See No. 477.)

474 Maxmilla (Maxemille) Boone.

475 Martha L. Boone, m. — Tuttle, and was the only one of the children who was living on 31 July, 1883. (a)

+476 Tucker Boone, who in 1868 resided near Williamsburg, Mo. His father and mother lived with him. (b)

130. EDWARD BOONE (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born about 1783; died Aug., 1869. (a)

Married Mrs. Dorcas Simpson-White (d. 1844 or '45) (a), widow of Archibald White, the son of John White, a Revolutionary Soldier.

Dorcas Simpson and her (1st) husband, Archibald White, had two sons: (a) Morgan B. White, who m. (1) Mary Ann Marmaduke, of Shelby County, Ky., and (2) Mrs. —(M'Murty) Hughes. (Morgan B. White was a witness to the will of Lynch B. Owen, probated in Madison County [Ky.] Court, 20 July, 1868. Lynch B. Owen must have been related to the Boones, for the name Lynch was given several members of the Boone and Tribble families); and (b) Archibald White, Jr.

In 1809, Edward Boone bought of Jesse Noland and wife, Sarah (Turner), 180 acres of land on Tates and Otter Creeks in Madison County, Ky.

In Deed Book "G," page 533, on 11 Oct., 1810, Edward Boone and wife, Dorcas, of Shelby County, Ky., for 600 pounds, conveyed to William Boone, of Madison County, Ky., 186 acres of land on the waters of Tates and Otter Creeks, in the latter county.

From "Pioneers of Missouri," comes this: "Edward Boone married the widow White, whose maiden name was Dorcas Simpson. She was a sister of Samuel Boone's wife, and at the time of her marriage with Mr. Boone, had a son, Morgan B. White, who was still living in Callaway County, Mo." (Written in 1876.)

Edward Boone went to Mo., shortly after Samuel did (1818), and settled in the same neighborhood, Callaway Co. (b & c). He was said to be living in Green County, Mo., in 1854, then about 71 years old. (b)

132. MARY BOONE (Edward[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born about 1764; died 28 Sept., 1825. (a)

Married about 1782, Peter Scholl (b. 15 Sept., 1754; d. 11 Sept., 1821, in Clark Co., Ky.), a native of the Shenandoah Valley, and a son of William Scholl and wife Leah Morgan.

Their son John gave the following information to Dr. Draper in 1868:—

"Peter Scholl, a native of the Shenandoah Valley, died on waters of Stoner, Clark Co., Ky., Sept. 11, 1821. He was born probably about 1754. In about 1782 married Mary Boone, daughter of Edward Boone (bro. of Col. Daniel Boone), she perhaps about eighteen at that time and he about ten years her senior. Hence Peter Scholl when he died was about 67 years old. Mrs. Mary Scholl died at same place Sept. 28, 1825.* * Peter Scholl was in Blue Lick Battle." (a) He was also in the battle at Point Pleasant, W. Va. He wore short breeches, long silk stockings and queued his hair; wore large knee and shoe buckles, long vest and coat. He memorialized Congress for a pension, but got none because he was in good circumstances. (b) Peter Scholl was a Lieutenant under Daniel Boone with General George R. Clark in 1782. (c)

He also mentions Mrs. Norris and Mrs. Mikel as sisters of Ed. B. Boone and granddaughters of Edward Boone. (d)

138. JONATHAN BOONE (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 30 Aug., 1766; died 9 March, 1837.

Married 11 April, 1793, Mrs. Catherine (Rice) Fullenwider (b. 9 Dec., 1768; d. 19 Jan., 1842, aged 73 years, 1 month, 10 days). (a)

Jonathan, the eldest son of Squire, Jr., and Jane (Van Cleve) Boone, was born "on Saturday, about 10 o'clock in the morning," in the Forks of the Yadkin River, N. C. In 1775 or '76, when Squire Boone's family moved to Fort Boonesborough from N. C., Jonathan, then a boy of about nine, was brought along. As a small boy, he was present at the Siege of Boonesborough, and in the spring of 1779, went with the family in their move to the Falls of the Ohio (Louisville). In that same year he was taken by his father to Kaskaskia (Illinois), where he was left to learn the French language. Here he remained four years.

About four years after his return from Kaskaskia, which would be in 1787, he was sent to Berks County, Pa., to stay with relatives and attend school. Here his father's cousin, James Boone, gave him instructions. When he returned home to Kentucky, the next year, he brought with him the "Boone Genealogy" written by James Boone and dated 21 March, 1788. (b)

After this there is no further record of him until his marriage in 1793, to Mrs. Catherine (Rice) Fullenwider, who was a daughter of Jacob I. and Anne Rice. Her first husband, Henry Fullenwider, died of malaria, leaving her with several children. The marriage of Jonathan and Mrs. Fullenwider took place while his father was away on his trip to St. Simon's, Fla., and his visit into Pa. For a while they lived at Rice's Fort, Shelby County; then moved to Brandenburg, Ky., (c) from which place they eventually moved to Crawford County, Ind. (possibly to Alton or near there), where he died in 1837.

Jonathan Boone was a man who loved a life of adventure and was clever in many ways, besides being a fine hunter. "One of his descendants has a book which he wrote, quite a wonderful piece of workmanship, binding and all most remarkable, made entirely by him, written in a fine style of penmanship, and exhibiting much scientific knowledge, and for that day and age (more than a hundred years ago) is marvelous. The binding is bear-skin; the leaves are very thick and fastened to the cover with leather strings; the book measures 16 x 10 x 1 inch, and on the first page are the words, "Jonathan Boone, his book, A. D. 1787." The subject is surveying; there are no family records in the book. It has been handed down to the oldest grandchild of the Boone name and is now (1910) owned by Charles Boone of Texas (Brandon), and will pass to his baby, little Daniel Boone." (d)

CHILDREN:—

+495 Frances Anne (Fanny) Boone, b. 16 Jan., 1794; d. 4 July, 1820; m. her cousin Col. Hiram C. Boone (Samuel[5]; Samuel[4]; George[3]), b. 3 July, 1789. Their descendants are given under his name, No. 221.

496 Isaiah Boone, born 25 Sept., 1795; died early.

497 Sophia Boone, died in early womanhood; married Lewis Carrol. She was said to have been very beautiful.

139. MOSES BOONE (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 23 Feb., 1769; died 8 Mar., 1852.

Married 20 Dec., 1786, in Jefferson County, Ky., (a) Hannah Boone (Samuel[5]; Samuel[4]; George[3]), b. 6 Feb., 1770 (No. 214).

Judge Moses Boone, the second child of Squire and Jane (VanCleve) Boone, was born "on Tuesday, about 6 o'clock in the morning" (b) in Rowan County, N. C., near the Forks of the Yadkin, and not far from Bear Creek. He was taken as a child with his family when they moved to Kentucky in 1775 or 1776, and was with them in their subsequent movings about. He himself related that in making this move to Kentucky, once when they were going down into a stream which they had to cross, he fell off his horse into the water. As he remembered it, Daniel Boone's family and others were in the party.

At the time of the Siege of Boonesborough he was a small lad about nine, but seemed to remember a great deal about it. In Draper Mss. 19 C 1-56, which is an interview Dr. Lyman C. Draper had with him in 1846, he gives quite a detailed account of this siege. One very amusing incident which he relates in this connection is given here. During the first alarm and scuffle, which followed the council with the Indians, a "Dutchman" named Matthias Prock, who probably lived with Colonel Callaway's family, ran and hid under the bed at Colonel Callaway's. Mrs. Callaway took the broom stick and punched him out, telling him to go and fight. Prock, routed out from this secure (?) hiding place, ran into Squire Boone's gun-smith shop, which adjoined, and hid under the bellows. From this hiding place Mrs. Callaway drove him out also. Then he ran out and jumped into a new well which was being dug somewhere near the old one, and on which he himself had probably been working. He kept exclaiming, "Sure, I was not made to fight, I ish a potter."

At the time of the abandonment of Squire Boone's Station in 1781, Moses and his father, Squire Boone, who was still weak from severe wounds received in a fight with Indians, were the only men folks left to protect their family and Mrs. Hinton's in case of attack by Indians. (For a more detailed account of this abandonment of the Station, see the sketch of Squire Boone, brother of Daniel, No. 29.)

When John Callaway returned from Indian captivity about 1785, Moses Boone accompanied him from Squire Boone's Station to Boonesborough, where his (Callaway's) mother lived. (c)

In Clark's campaign of 1786, he was in a Company of lighthorse under Major Acquilla Whittaker. He himself gave to Dr. Draper the following account of the capture of Vincennes by General George Rogers Clark. (b)

They crossed the river at Clarkville, getting within three miles of Vincennes and making camp without being discovered. From here Clark sent Major Daniel Sullivan, with a party of about twenty, on ahead to Vincennes. They went in at night and captured some dozen or fifteen Indians who were loitering about. The next morning when Clark approached town all the leading French went out to meet him. The Indians captured the night before were examined and dismissed, hastening off to give warning of Clark's coming. After this Clark crossed the Wabash River at Vincennes, and went up the river some two days march. Here the Lincoln men called "Loganites" revolted, and after holding a general council it was decided, as provisions, which were sent up by boat, were nearly gone, to go no further. Following this decision they did return home, but with no regularity.

In the spring of 1787, a party of Indians came into the settlements near Whittaker's and Wells' Stations, evidently to steal horses and harness. Major Acquilla Whittaker raised a company of eight or ten men, Moses Boone among them, and followed. They overtook the Indians in a "beech bottom on the waters of Floyd's Fork," where they had stopped to cook. The men singled out Indians to pursue. Moses Boone was chasing one, who "treed" when he found he was about to be overtaken. Boone jumped from his horse and also "treed," both watching for a chance to get a shot at the other. Finally Boone saw his chance, shot and broke his Indian's arm, and a moment or two later Nathan Garret, another member of the pursuing party, succeeded in getting a shot which killed the Indian.

In the fall of 1787, Joseph Carman, Vincent Robbins, and Aaron VanCleve started off to hunt buffalo. When west of Drennon's Lick they were attacked by Indians. Carman was captured, but Robbins and VanCleve escaped. As soon as they reached the settlements on Bullskin and Brashear Creeks, a party under the leadership of Robbins was raised, one of the men being Moses Boone. This party followed the Indians and found Carman's body "shockingly mutilated," it being dismembered. They gathered it together and took it back to Wells' Station, his home, for burial. (c)

On Sunday, the 23d of May, 1790, Moses Boone, John Kline, Matthew Smock, Captain James and Henry Hoagland (Kline and the Hoaglands having guns), and Miss Betsy VanCleve(about 20 years old) were attacked as they returned from church near Boone's old Station on Brashear's Creek, when about one and one half miles from the meeting and in sight of a settlement. The attacking party consisted of six or seven Indians who had hidden behind logs. The Indians fired on them from about 30 paces distance without injuring any of the party, but the horses were frightened and threw Boone, Smock, and Miss VanCleve. The others tried to keep the Indians at bay, but were uusuccessful, and themselves had to retreat. All escaped with the exception of Miss VanCleve and Kline, who was shot. Smock was of heavy, clumsy build and a poor hand in an emergency or he might have helped Miss VanCleve on her horse, as he was near her, and enabled her to escape. However, he did nothing but get himself off safely. Miss VanCleve was captured, and a few minutes later another party returning from the same church found her body, tomahawked and scalped. Life was not extinct when she was found, but she died very soon after. She was a daughter of Ralph (or Rutliff) VanCleve, a brother of Mrs. Jane (VanCleve) Boone, and so was a cousin of Moses Boone. (b)

On the 20th of December, 1786, on Brashear's Creek in Jefferson County, Kentucky, Moses Boone was married to his cousin, Hannah Boone, daughter of Samuel and Jane (Hughes) Boone.

He went with his father to settle in Indiana about 1805. In 1808, he was appointed a Judge of Harrison County, Indiana Territory, by Governor William Henry Harrison, and re-appointed by Governor Thomas Posey. He was also one of the three commissioners who directed the building of the first State House in Indiana, which is still standing in Corydon, Ind.

In 1846, he was living near Manhattan, Putnam County, Indiana, and it was probably here he died in 1852.

140. ISAIAH BOONE (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 17 Nov., 1772 Married — — (name of wife unknown).

Isaiah Boone, third child of Squire, Jr., and Jane (VanCleve) Boone, was born "on Friday, about 4 o'clock in the morning," in the Forks of the Yadkin, not far from Salisbury, N. C.

As a very small boy, he was taken to Kentucky, when his parents moved there about 1775 or '76, and was at the famous Siege of Boonesborough. He went with his parents in their various moves, and was with them when they settled Boone's Station.

When it was decided to abandon Boone's Station in 1781, he, being a boy about nine years old, was put in the care of Captain Hall, as his father remained at the Station.

On this first day (14th September, 1781), after leaving the fort they had a fight with the Indians which Judge Moses Boone, an older brother of Isaiah, designates as Boone's Defeat. Beginning at the "13 mile tree," which was eight miles from Linn's Station and about twenty-one from Squire Boone's, and extending to the "14 mile tree", the Indians were lying in wait for them. About half way between these two "trees" was a stream called Long Run, which will be mentioned a little later.

When attacked the men held the Indians in check long enough to cut the packs from the horses, and mount the women and children so that they might have a better chance to escape. For a mile the packs were scattered along the way.

In the beginning of the fight, Isaiah Boone who was riding one of the pack horses dismounted and retreated with the others, quite likely taking a man's part in the flight, for children in those days learned at a very early age to use a gun and help in defense. At the crossing of Long Run, Isaiah was keeping an Indian in check, although he had gotten his gun wet in crossing and it would not go off. A man by the name of George Yunt came to his aid, shooting the Indian and saying to Boone, "Now you dog, throw away your gun and clear yourself." Isaiah hated to lose his gun, but obediently threw it down and ran. While running he took off his shot pouch, which was a fine one, and was holding it in his teeth by a strap while he stripped off his coat. Dropping it accidentally he did not have time to stop to pick it up. Soon after he was put on a horse, and while using his three cornered hat, sent him by his brother Jonathan from Kaskaskia, dropped and lost that too. The loss of these three valued possessions was probably more serious to the boy than the actual danger he had been through. In this fight several were killed: a grown daughter of old Mr. Hansbury; Mrs. John VanCleve, a sister-in-law of Squire Boone's wife, with two of her small children; and two or three children of Mrs. Holt, a widow. Rachael VanCleve (about 18) and one of her little sisters, daughters of John VanCleve, were taken prisoner but later were rescued unharmed. The night following this fight the Indians camped on the east bank of Long Run.

Floyd's Fork is about two miles from Long Run, and the battle which took place here on the following day (15 Sept.) is called Floyd's Defeat. In this fight about nine were killed. As they were trying to escape across this stream Isaiah was but a few feet from Captain Hall, who saved his life by shooting the Indian who was reaching for Isaiah.

(For further details of these two fights see the sketch of Squire Boone, brother of Daniel.)

In 1787, he started with his father to make a settlement at Chickasaw Bluffs, but finding it unsafe they went on down to New Orleans where they took Spanish protection and set up a gun-smith shop. Here they remained three years, Isaiah coming home some ahead of his father, but how is not known, though it was probably by boat up the Mississippi.

In 1794, he and his brother, Enoch, both went on Wayne's Campaign, in Bland Ballard's Company, Isaiah as a sergeant. They both took part in the fight, being in the left wing, but they did not get into so much of the battle as some of the others, only about one-third of the company getting to fire off their guns.

The time of his marriage, the name of his wife, and the time and place of his death are all unknown.

In the fall of 1846 he was living near Mauckport, Indiana, so he died subsequent to that time.

141. SARAH BOONE (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 26 Sept., 1774; died 1847. (a)

Married 1 March, 1790 or '91, John Wilcox (born 6 Sept., 1766).

Sarah Boone, fourth child and only daughter of Squire, Jr., and Jane (VanCleve) Boone, was born "on Monday about 4 o'clock in the morning," (b) in the Forks of the Yadkin, N. C. As a child she moved to Ky. with her parents, and saw much of pioneer life. At the time of the Siege of Boonesborough she was only about four years old. When her parents moved to Louisville in 1779, she was then only about five. It is supposed that she went with them in all their various movings about. In 1790, when her father and mother went to St. Simon's, Fla., for his health, Sarah and her three older brothers were left behind with relatives or friends, Jonathan, the eldest, at this time being in Kaskaskia, Illinois.

In 1790 or '91, when only a little over 15 or 16, she was married (c) in Jefferson Co., Ky., to John Wilcox, said to be a connection of the John Wilcox who married Daniel Boone's sister Sarah. "They settled upon, surveyed and improved lands, patented in the name of Sarah Boone by her father, Squire Boone, four miles north of Shelbyville, Shelby County, Ky." (d)

John Wilcox died in Ky., after which his wife and children moved to Boone Co., Mo., where it is probable she died and was buried.

Following is the known list of their children, but since we have no dates of their births, they are probably not given in the correct order.

142. ENOCH MORGAN BOONE (Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 16 Oct., 1777, died 8 Mar., 1862 (a) (or 8 Feb., 1862, according to Collins' History of Kentucky).

Married, 8 Feb., 1797, Eliza (Lucy?) Goldman (b. 1775; d. 1855). (a)

Enoch Morgan Boone, (b) the fifth and youngest child of Squire and Jane (VanCleve) Boone, was born "on Tuesday, about ten o'clock in the afternoon (?)," "in a canebrake" (c) at Fort Boonesborough, Ky. His parents, and especially his mother, claimed that he was the first white male child born in Boonesborough. At least two white female children were born there before he was,—Elizabeth Hays, and a Miss Finley, who was living at Crab Orchard in 1795. (b)

He was brought up to know no other life than the dangerous and hard one of the frontiersman, moving about with his parents from place to place, and being present at many Indian fights and sieges.

When his father and mother went to Florida in May, 1790, for Squire's health, Enoch was the only one of the five children taken along. He was then a lad of only 13. They started out in a wagon, with three horses and $200.00, travelled down through Crab Orchard and Cumberland Gap to the Yadkin (S. C.), where they stopped for a while with the Bryan, Wilcox, David and George Webb families, all relatives. Here they laid in a year's supply of provisions before proceeding on their way, which led them down through South Carolina, Georgia, and on to the mouth of the Altamaha. From here they went to St. Simon's Island, where they bought a lot in a little village called Frederika, and stayed about six months. Then they went higher up on the island where they bought four acres of land, on which was a small shanty. They built a new house, and made fine wages teaming and hauling rice and cotton for their neighbors. Here they lived for two years very comfortably—having plenty of sea fish, oysters, oranges and other foods.

At the end of two years, or in the summer of 1792, Squire Boone's wounds began to trouble him again, so they sold off all their holdings,—"property, team, cow, goats and other stock," (b) and sailed for Philadelphia. From there they went out into Berks County to visit friends and relatives.

That fall (1792) Enoch started back to Kentucky alone. At Reading he met Ben Applegate and his family, who had a team and were also starting to Kentucky. Enoch joined them and helped Applegate drive the team to Pittsburgh. From there they went on a boat down the Ohio River to Limestone (Maysville), and Boone proved to be a better boatman than Applegate. They made this trip in about six days without seeing any Indians. Enoch stopped for a while at Point Pleasant with his uncle, Daniel Boone, from whom he obtained some bear meat. From there he went for a while to Jacob Boone's, at Limestone, where he was treated very kindly, and then on to Cincinnati. From Cincinnati he went down to the mouth of the Kentucky River, and then across the country to Shelby County. Remember, at this time he was only between fifteen and sixteen years old.

He became a soldier before he was seventeen, and in 1794 was on Wayne's campaign under Bland Ballard, who, when Boone offered to go with him, agreed to take care of him, and did so as carefully as if he were Enoch's father. From this time on Enoch took part in many Indian fights.

In 1797, in Shelby County, Ky., he was married to Eliza Goldman, who may have borne the name Lucy also. Her descendants call her Eliza, while historians call her Lucy. Collins' "History of Kentucky," page 600, says, "He was married in Shelby County, Ky., 8 Feb., 1798 to Lucy Galman."

In 1798 he rented Wells' Station, of which he had gotten possession probably about the time of his marriage, to Joseph Bryan, the father-in-law of Daniel Boone, his uncle.

He moved to Indiana at the same time his father did (1804-'05), and we find that from 1808-1816 he lived in Grassy Valley, Harrison County, Indiana (then Indiana Territory), and held a Captain's commission from General William Henry Harrison, who was then Governor (c), which commission he received in 1805. (b)

From 1810-1827 he engaged largely in boating down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

At some subsequent date he moved back to Kentucky, to Meade County, for on Mar. 10, 1829, his mother died at his home "at the mouth of Otter Creek, Kentucky." (b) and digging a race from said dam through his land where the old race formerly began," etc. (b) Benjamin built and ran a gristmill which was later sold by his Administrator. This mill was still running in 1918, and the masonry under it was as fresh and strong as if recently built. A stone structure across the mouth of Fishing Creek, built by Benjamin Boone for mill purposes, is now utilized as a trolley bridge.

"On his wedding anniversary, 8 Feb., 1862" (c) he died aged 84, at the home of his son-in-law, Judge Collins Fitch, on the Ohio River, near Garnettsville, Meade County, Ky.

He was a tall, spare man, nearly six feet in height; and a Baptist. All of his children with the exception of Jane Boone Fitch died prior to Aug. 1858.

171. SARAH TALLMAN (Dinah[5] Boone; Benjamin[4]; George[3]), born 12 Apr., 1769, in Berks Co., Pa.; died 3 June, 1844, in Peru, Indiana.

Married in Rockingham Co., Va., 1784-85, Thomas Henton of Rockingham Co. (b. 17 Aug., 1764, in—probably—Berks Co., Pa., died 1 July, 1829, at his home near Hillsboro, Ohio), son of William Henton.

(William Henton [or Hinton, as the name is sometimes spelled], father of Thomas who married Sarah Tallman, came of English ancestors who settled in Berks Co., Pa. Before the Revolution, William Henton went from Berks Co., Pa., to what is now Rockingham Co., Va., where he died about 1786. He had sons William, Evan, Joseph, Peter and Thomas, and three daughters, one of whom was named Rebecca. The son Peter had a daughter Phoebe, thought to have been the one who married William Tallman, brother of Sarah. With the exception of Thomas, the children of William Henton, so far as known, remained in Virginia, where many of their descendants still live.)

Thomas and Sarah Henton moved from Rockingham Co., in 1803, to the west fork of Brush Creek in Va., and the next year (1804) went to Ohio, and settled on a farm near Hillsboro, Ohio., where he died.

In about 1842 his widow, Mrs. Sarah (Tallman) Henton, removed to Peru, Ind., after the arrival there of her sons Benjamin, Sylvester, Thomas and Elam.

221. HIRAM CASSEL BOONE (Samuel[5]; Samuel[4]; George[3]), born 3 July, 1789, in Kentucky; died in Meade Co., Ky., on his farm known as "Sandy Farm."

Married 1st, Frances Ann Boone (Jonathan[6]; Squire[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]) No. 495 (b. 16 Jan., 1794; d. 4 July, 1820). He married 2nd, August, 1821, Mrs. Sarah (Hairston) Staples, widow of Major John Staples (b. 22 Feb., 1798, in Va.), daughter of Captain Joshua Renfro and Jane Hairston, and granddaughter of Captain Robert Hairston who served with Patrick Henry on the Peace Commission during the Revolution. Her uncle Samuel Hairston was at one time the wealthiest man in the United States, and the largest slave-owner the world has ever known.

He was the richest and most influential man in the county; among his friends were Jonathan Jennings, Governor; John Tipton, Senator; Ratliff Boone, Representative in Congress, of Indiana; and Henry Clay, Senator from Kentucky. He was urged to go to Congress, but refused to be a candidate. He owned a large farm on the Ohio River, with a fine brick house, which is still standing and owned by his son, Hiram C.

Boone 2d. He was a man of education and refinement. His pictures show a very striking resemblance to his distinguished cousin Col. Daniel Boone, a grand-niece of whom was his first wife. At the time Squire Boone, Jr., left Kentucky (about 1807), taking with him all of his own family and all of Samuel Boone's, Hiram C. Boone moved to Indiana with the rest. In 1811 a Captain Smith was sent to Harrison County to raise a company of soldiers to go to the relief of Fort Harrison. Hiram Boone entered actively into the work of securing the men. When finally organized the men objected to Captain Smith, who generously told them they might select their own captain, and that any one could offer who chose. Boone, who was then but a boy, stood for election. The men were drawn up, and instructed by Captain Smith, that at the command of "March" they would line up with the man they wished to command them. Every soldier, save one—a relative of Smith—marched to Boone. Boone was commissioned Captain of the 1st Regiment of Militia of Indiana Territory, by William Henry Harrison, Governor and Commander in Chief, June 26, 1811. This service is officially known as "The Campaign of the Wabash." (See Act of Congress, approved April 10, 1812, for the relief of the officers and soldiers.) February 27, 1813, he was commissioned Major of the 5th Regiment of the Militia of Indiana Territory; his service was that of fighting the Indian allies of Great Britain in the War of 1812. (See Act of Congress approved March 3, 1813.) Commission signed by John Gibson, Acting Governor. April 26, 1817, he was commissioned Colonel of the 5th Regiment of Militia of the State of Indiana. From then until his death he was always called Colonel Boone. Commission signed by Jonathan Jennings, Governor.

She was first married at her father's home near Elkton, Ky., and lived in Kentucky until her first nine children were born. She and her husband then moved to Illinois and located in Montgomery Co., near the present town of Hillsboro. Here their tenth and youngest child was born. Within three or four years after their removal to Illinois, Moody Grubbs died, leaving his wife with a large family of children and but slender resources. After her marriage to John Tullis she moved with him to a farm a few miles west of Hillsboro in Montgomery Co., Ill., where she remained until her children were grown. The house which they built on this farm has the unique distinction of never having had a death occur within its walls. It is still occupied (1921) by descendants of Moody and Cynthia Grubbs. Its present occupants, William Grubbs and his widowed sister, Mrs. Cynthia Stoddard, have among their house furnishings a tall grandfather's clock and a cherry bureau which Moody and Cynthia Grubbs brought with them from Kentucky. During the last years of her life Cynthia (Boone) Grubbs made her home with her son, Samuel Moody Grubbs of Litchfield, Ill. She died there at the age of 92, and is remembered by her grandchildren and great-grandchildren as a dainty, refined little woman who bore but little trace of the hardship and adventures which she must have lived through.

Married 1 Sept., 1833, Martha Maria Edwards (b. 26 July, 1817; d. 29 Jan., 1911), daughter of Elisha Beal and Martha (Upshaw) Edwards,

Higgason G. Boone was a man of fine natural ability, practical, prompt and judicious in the management of his worldly affairs, and a man of strong religious convictions. In 1833, the year he was married, he united with the Baptist Church of Elkton, Ky., and in this church held the offices of deacon and clerk for more than half a century. He represented Todd Co., in the State Legislature for two years, and except for this period of absence from home on official duty, his record of church attendance was unbroken. In 1883 he and his wife celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary, surrounded by their children and grandchildren. His wife, Martha Maria Boone, was a woman of splendid education and culture. She took much interest in genealogical matters, and carefully preserved and recorded the records of her husband's branch of the Boone family. She lived to be nearly ninety-four years old, so it is to her, as well as to the Boone family, that her children are indebted for their remarkable longevity. Of their nine children, all except the eldest, who was drowned in youth, were living in 1921.

Married Mar., 1833, Louisa Matilda Smith, daughter of Theophilus Smith.

In early life Levi Day Boone took up the study of medicine, and began his practice in that profession at Edwardsville, Ill. In 1836 he located in Chicago, where he established a medical practice and became interested in politics as well. He was alderman there for three terms, and although there was a large foreign element in Chicago, he was in 1855 elected 19th mayor of Chicago on the Know-Nothing ticket. Shortly after he assumed office, the so-called "Beer riots" occurred which marked a period in the turbulent history of Chicago, and which were due in part to Dr. Boone's attempt to enforce the state temperance laws.

During the Civil War Dr. Boone was arrested (because of his southern connections) and charged with helping the southern prisoners of Fort Donaldson to escape. He was finally cleared, and many personal letters were published showing that he had refused to move back to Kentucky among his "dearly beloved kinsmen" because his heart was with the northern cause, although his "loved ones" lived south. (From "The Leading Men of Chicago," a rare volume in the art department of the Chicago Public Library.) (b)

Dr. Boone was the first secretary of the Chicago Cook County Medical Society (founded 1836), and was its first president when in 1850 it was reorganized and became the Chicago Medical Society. In 1853 he was publisher of the "Christian Times." When Chicago University was organized he was one of its incorporators. In 1852 he was president of the Merchants and Mechanics Bank, and was also extensively engaged in real estate and insurance. For many years he was at the head of a life insurance company, and through that and his other activities amassed a considerable fortune. In spite of his many and diverse interests, he became a most successful physician and was particularly noted for his bravery during epidemics of contagious diseases. It was greatly regretted when he gave up his medical practice.

"He was a kindly-mannered man, gentle and courteous to all, of perfect integrity, hospitable as became his southern origin, and beloved by all who knew him." (a) A portrait of Dr. Levi Day Boone hangs in the library of the Historical Society of Chicago.

In the War of 1812, William Grant enlisted as a private, but was soon promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. In the battle of Dudley's Defeat near Fort Meigs in Ohio (1-5 May, 1813) on the third day, which would be May 3rd, he was killed. In "Pioneer Families of Missouri" is given this vivid description of his death:—

> "After the defeat and capture of the American forces, they were driven under guard into an enclosure, where the Indians began at once to rob them of their money, watches, etc. Grant still had his sword, which had not been taken from him, and was standing with it in his hand conversing with a friend, Capt. Micajah McGlenny, when an Indian came up and demanded the weapon. Grant turned to McGlenny and said, 'They will kill us anyhow, and I intend to sell my life as dearly as possible,' and dropping the point of his sword to the level of the Indian's breast, he plunged it through his body to the hilt, killing him in his tracks. The next instant Grant's body was pierced by a hundred bullets, and he fell dead at the feet of his friend. McGlenny was not hurt; was afterwards exchanged, and lived to be an old man."

347. ELIZABETH HAYS (Susannah[6] Boone; Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), born 12 June, 1776, at Fort Boonesborough in Ky.; died 3 Aug. 1828. (a)

Married 1797 in Kentucky, Isaac Van Bibber (b. in Greenbriar Co., Va., 20 Oct., 1771; d. 30 Sept., 1840, in Montgomery Co., Mo.) (a) Another account gives his death as in 1836, at the home of his son-in-law, George Burt, at Williamsburg, Callaway Co., Mo., "his wife having died some time before." (b) See sketch of Van Bibber Family.

Undoubtedly Elizabeth Hays was the first white child born in Kentucky. Statements in proof of this are found in several old papers preserved by the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, in its Draper Collection of Manuscripts. One of these papers is a letter to Dr. Draper from Samuel Boone, nephew of Daniel Boone and hence a first cousin of Elizabeth's mother. A reproduction of this letter is shown facing this page. Another letter, written by Mrs. Sarah Hunter, daughter of Edward Boone and niece of Daniel, contains the following statement:

> "The first white child born in Kentucky was Elizabeth Hays, daughter of William Hays and granddaughter of Daniel Boone." (c)

In a statement of George Bryan of Bourbon Co., Ky., we find the following paragraph:

> "I always understood Boone, that as soon as they got the houses up in 1775, he went back after his family." x x x x x x "When Boone came out, they got within four miles of the fort (Boone had put up a cabin or two at Boonesborough and then gone for his family). They were not able to reach the fort, except William Hays, whose wife was expecting to be confined. He took her on to the fort, and she was confined that night. This was the first white child born in Kentucky. This child Van Bibber afterwards married. Lived up here on the Kenawha, where Boone went and staid some time." (d)
> (There were probably no white families living in Ky. prior to that.)

Elizabeth Hays as a very small child made a journey back to North Carolina with her parents, for it is recorded that when they returned to Kentucky in the spring of 1779, she was carried all the way back on horseback by George Bryan, a relative of her mother. (d)

Isaac Van Bibber was the son of Isaac Van Bibber who was killed at the battle of Point Pleasant in 1774, as Captain of his Company. It is said that Isaac, Jr., was adopted and reared by Col. Daniel Boone, and at the early age of thirteen years acted as a scout against Indians in Virginia. During the Indian War he was a Major of Militia under Col. Boone. After his marriage in 1797 he went to Missouri with Nathan Boone, son of Daniel, and settled in Darst's Bottom, St. Charles Co., Mo. In 1815 he and his wife located at Loutre Lick, now in Montgomery Co., Mo. There he built a log house which was used as a tavern or inn, and which became a popular stopping place for the many travelers who were on their way to new homes in Missouri. An account of this tavern and its history can be found in "The Missouri Historical Review," Jan., 1913, page 106. The tavern was still standing in July, 1917.

An interesting story of Isaac Van Bibber is also to be found in the "Missouri Historical Review," which reads as follows:

> "Isaac Van Bibber was very eccentric. He omitted no opportunity to declare and enforce his belief that every six thousand years there was a recurrence of the same events in the world's history and of course in the history of its inhabitants. He was active and persistent in the defence of this peculiar philosophy.
> "One morning three young Kentuckians, having spent the night at the tavern and having heard Van Bibber's philosophy boldly declared, concluded to subject his professed faith to a business test. According they said, 'Now, Mr. Van Bibber, you believe we will all be here again, just as we are now, six thousand years hence. To test your belief in this doctrine we propose to give you our joint note for the amount of our bills, at ten per cent interest, payable six thousand years after date.'
> "For a moment Van Bibber was in an embarrassing dilemna, but soon recovering, he replied, 'You are smart young fellows all the way from old Kaintuck, and I would at once accept your note and let you keep on, but I remember that all three of you were here six thousand years ago and left without paying your bills, and now I am afraid to trust you. So you will have to shell out.'
> "And 'shell out' they did." (e)

He lived in St. Charles Co., Mo., where he was Justice of the Peace and Judge of the County Court for many years. Captain Callaway was killed in an Indian ambuscade which took place on Prairie Fork, a branch of Loutre Creek, in present limits of Montgomery Co., Mo. He was shot in the back of the head while swimming the creek, and his body was not recovered until several days after his death. The body was wrapped in blankets and was buried on the side of the hill overlooking Loutre Creek. Several months afterward the grave was covered with stones and a flat slab laid thereon on which was engraved:

Capt. Jas. Callaway,

Lilburn W. Boggs was married first to Julia Ann Bent, daughter of Judge Silas Bent, by whom he had two sons, Angus and Henry. His second wife was Panthea G. Boone, by whom he had ten children. She was born in Greenup Co., Mo., and was the daughter of Jesse Boone, son of Daniel Boone.

At the age of 18, Lilburn W. Boggs went to St. Louis, and was cashier of one of the first banks in that city. Later he engaged in merchandising up and down the Mississippi River, and finally settled in Independence, Mo., Jackson Co. Was Lieut. Governor of State of Missouri and later (1836-'40) the Governor. During his term as governor there was trouble between citizens of Jackson Co., and some Mormons who had settled there. As Governor, Boggs was induced to call out the Militia, and had the Mormons removed from the State. They settled in Illinois, founding the town of Nauvou, at which place their prophet and leader, Joe Smith, prophesied from their temple that the Ex-Governor of Missouri would die of violence inside of 12 months. As though in fulfilment of the prophesy, Governor Boggs nearly lost his life at the hands of an assassin a short time later. The Boggs home was in Independence, Mo., in which place a stranger appeared and hired out as a hostler. After familiarizing himself with the Ex-Governor's habits and family residence, he slipped up one dark rainy evening in 1842 and shot through the window at Lilburn W. Bogg as he sat reading his paper after dinner. The other members of the family were still with their mother (Panthea G. Boone Boggs) in the dining room finishing the evening meal. While severely injured by the shot, L. W. Boggs recovered and lived for nineteen years.

In 1846 he and his family emigrated to California, where he settled in the Sonoma Valley. He had expected to retire from public life, having held various public offices for thirty years, but was persuaded to accept the position of Alcalde of the Northern District of California under the U. S. Military Governor, Gen. Bennett W. Riley.

Their descendants still live in California.

Married 18 Dec., 1822, at Franklin, Mo., Maria Louise Roberts (b. 1805 in New York; d. Sept., 1870, in Mobile, Ala.).

In the year 1818 he moved with his father's family from Kentucky to Loutre Island, in what is now Montgomery County, Mo., where his father, William C. Boone, engaged in mercantile business. Young Hampton Boone assisted his father for about two years. Meanwhile he began the study of law, but later gave up the idea of entering that profession. He gave much thought to religious matters, and having joined the church in 1828, he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he continued as a local preacher until 1840. Having studied closely the religious tenets of the different denominations, his convictions led him to sever his relations with the Methodist Church and become a minister of the Christian Curch, in which denomination he continued for the remainder of his life.

At that time and in new frontier countries, it was necessary for ministers of the gospel to seek additional means of providing for their own support. Hence we find Hampton L. Boone alternating between the pulpit and secular employment, and often doing service in both for years at a time. At one time when a young man he was employed as clerk under Capt. Whitmore, the Government agent appointed to make certain payments to the Indians. While thus employed he made several trips up and down the river.

About 1832 he went to Fayette, Mo., and a year afterwards entered the mercantile business at that place, which he engaged in until 1840. Meanwhile he was appointed registrar of the land office at Old Franklin and later at Fayette, which position he held for about twelve years, and until the inauguration of President Harrison in 1841. In 1842 he was appointed clerk of the supreme court at Jefferson City, to which city he removed his family in 1844. He was clerk of the supreme court for about six years. For several years during his official term in Jefferson City, he was editor of the "Metropolitan," a Democratic newspaper which under his editorship was the first paper in the state to take a stand against Thomas H. Benton.

The winter of 1849-50 he spent in St. Louis, but on account of failing health he returned to his old home, Fayette, in March 1850, resuming work in the Christian Ministry, until his death in 1851. Notwithstanding he led an active business life, he never lost sight of his duties as a minister, and his life and business relations followed the high principles which he preached from the pulpit. Married Elizabeth Harney, daughter of Dr. John Milton Harney and granddaughter of Judge John Rowan, distinguished lawyer and statesman, by whom she was reared.

William P. Boone was educated at Corydon, then the capital of Indiana, until his seventeenth year, when he began studying law, at the same time teaching a district school in Boone township. His legal education was completed under the tutelage of Judge William A. Porter of Corydon, a leading lawyer of Indiana. He was admitted to the bar Oct. 16, 1836, and was taken into partnership with Judge Porter. He later located in Louisville, Ky., and began practice there in 1836 as a member of the law firm of Thomasson and Boone, which firm was dissolved when Mr. Thomasson was returned to Congress, and the firm of Boone and Clark continued the business. Subsequently William P. Boone and his relative Col. Charles D. Pennebaker formed a partnership and enjoyed a valuable practice until 1861, when both members were elected as Union candidates to the Legislature. In the Legislature both Mr. Boone and his partner were effective aids in securing Kentucky to the Union.

At that time Boone was a member of the Union Democratic State Central Committee, a member of the board of Aldermen of Louisville and the president of a large Union club. He originated and organized one of the first, if not the very first, Union military bodies in the state, called the Louisville Home Guards. As Colonel of this organization, Boone was one of the committee which met Lieut. Nelson in Cincinnati, and received the arms furnished to them secretly by the United States Government. He was elected colonel of the first Regiment formed out of this Home Guard. A little later Col. Boone recruited a regiment for the Union forces, called the Twenty-eighth Kentucky. On Nov. 6, 1861, this regiment was assigned to duty in the Army of the Ohio, the name of which was afterwards changed to Army of the Cumberland. From this time until he was disabled in June, 1864, Col. Boone, whether as regimental, post or brigade commander; of infantry, mounted infantry or cavalry; rendered service which was conspicuously meritorious and which was commended by his superior officers. He resigned June, 1864, on account of physical disability, and returned to his family and business affairs in Louisville.

Col. Boone was never an office seeker, yet served at the head of political organizations, as councilman, alderman, legislator, corporation council, and as member of the conventions of 1851 and 1870, which framed new charters for the city of Louisville. He was a man of fine presence, very tall and straight, with broad shoulders and soldierly bearing. He was an open, fearless and courteous gentleman who attracted the confidence and commanded the esteem of those with whom he came in contact. He was buried in Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville, Jan. 25, 1875. (a)

(William Brewer, father of Mary [Brewer] Grubbs, was born in Chatham Co., N. C., in 1803; died 1883, in Hillsboro, Montgomery Co., Ill. He was a son of William and Milly [West] Brewer of North Carolina, who moved to Kentucky about 1808. His wife Delilah Hough [b. in Va., 1807; d. 1869] was a dau. of Samuel and Peggy [Haight] Hough. William and Delilah Brewer located in Montgomery Co., Ill., about 1839.)

Samuel Moody Grubbs was born not long after his parents moved to Illinois from Kentucky, being the youngest of ten children and the only one born in Illinois. When he was only two years of age his father died, leaving his mother with a family of children to care for alone; so Samuel Moody Grubbs, after receiving his education at Hillsboro, began at an early age to make his own way in the world. His first position was with the mercantile business of the Hon. William Brewer. He boarded at the home of his employer, whose daughter Mary he afterward married.

In 1856 he went to Litchfield, Ill., a few miles from Hillsboro, and took a position in the store of McWilliams and Paden, but returned to Hillsboro within a few months and there entered the drug and mercantile business. In 1865 he again went to Litchfield, which from that time on was his permanent home. He became a member of the firm of Brewer, Seymour and Co., bankers. The firm later became Brewer and Grubbs; then S. M. Grubbs and Co.; and in Jan., 1889, was organized as the First National Bank of Litchfield. Mr. Grubbs was the president of this bank until 1914, when he retired from active business.

Politically he was always an active and ardent Republican. He was elected mayor of Litchfield in 1874 and served two terms as city treasurer. He was a generous and public-spirited citizen; was connected with every movement to promote the welfare of his community; and was actively identified with the growth and development of the town. For nearly fifty years he was an untiring and devoted worker in the Methodist Church of Litchfield, maintaining an active interest in church work up to the time of his death. Possessing an unusual charm of personality and beauty of character, he was adored by his family, loved by his friends, and respected and admired by all others who knew him.

Married Cyrenus Cox, of New York State. He was a carpenter by trade, and went to Missouri by way of the Ohio River from some point near Cincinnati. In company with a man named McFarlane, a blacksmith, he started out for Booneville, Mo. On the way they stopped over night at Isaac Van Bibber's tavern. Van Bibber was erecting a new building, and being sadly in need of a carpenter, he persuaded Cox to remain and assist him with the work. Cox did so, and later married Van Bibber's daughter Fanny (Frances), at about the time the new building was completed. By that time, it is said, Cox's clothes were so badly worn out that he walked to St. Louis, ninety miles away, to buy new clothes in which to be married. He was accompanied by McFarlane, who had also remained at Loutre Lick. After his marriage Cox built a home near Van Bibber's tavern, where they lived until their children were all grown. Cox never went to Booneville, his original destination.

Married 12 July, 1842, Elizabeth Ann Offutt.

William Boone Wilson, son of William and Matilda (Boone) Wilson, was a man of rare qualities. In private life he was thoughtful, polite, and courteous; in business, energetic, progressive, and eminently successful; in religion, a Baptist. He thought nothing that might better his fellow men, and advance his church, too much for him to undertake. Just before the Civil War, Dr. Campbell, the President of Georgetown College, addressed the association, of which the Eminence Baptist Church is a member, for an endowment fund of $1,000.00. Although he made the appeal in person he failed to secure the amount. He returned home with Mr. Wilson, downcast and discouraged, talking far into the night of plans and needs. The next morning Mr. Wilson asked Dr. Campbell to give him a day or two to look around. At the end of that time he had secured from the Eminence Church alone the amount asked of the whole association. In early life he was a successful merchant in Shelbyville, Ky. His health failed and he moved to a farm near Eminence in 1847, but in a year or two he was back in mercantile business. He had established himself in the eyes of the community as the best business man there, and when the Deposit Bank was organized in 1867, he was made its Cashier, which office he held until he retired from business in 1900. Almost every progressive business man in Eminence owed his financial or moral success to William Boone Wilson's aid at the critical period of his career. At the age of eighty-six he died, loved and honored in the community where he spent the best years of his life.

Married Sallie Walker (b. 15 Mar., 1846, in the White House, Washington, D. C.) of Memphis, Tenn. (a)

Capt. Hampton Lynch Boone attended Bethany College at Wheeling, W. Va., of which Alexander Campbell, founder of the Campbellite Church, was then President. After his graduation from this college, he studied law in the law school at Lebanon, Tenn., and practised his profession for a time. When the gold fever broke out, he joined a western expedition and was one of the original forty men who located and named the city of Denver, Colo.

Before the Civil War, he was an Editor at Jefferson City, Mo. (b) During the War he was a Lieutenant under General Sterling Price, in the Confederate Army at Fayette, Mo., and was at the battles of Boonesville, Carthage, and many others. When General Nathaniel Lyons, U. S. A., was killed, Hampton L. Boone was the officer detailed to bury him.

He was captured several times during the Missouri campaign, but succeeded each time in making his escape. Later on he became Quartermaster on the staff of General Earl Van Dorn, and after Van Dorn's death, was put on the staff of General Frank C. Armstrong.

He married, at Memphis, Tenn., Sally Walker, who was born in the White House at Washington, D. C., and was a daughter of J. Knox Walker. (J. Knox Walker was the nephew of and secretary to President Polk, and had a son, who was born in the White House and said to be the only boy ever born there [?]. This son was killed by being thrown from a horse.)

In 1868 Hampton L. Boone was living in Howard Co., Mo. (b) He died at Ardmore, Indian Territory, and was buried at Carthage, Mo., where his widow and children continued to live. Following his death the Sterling Price Camp of Veterans (Confederate) drew up and published most complimentary resolutions of respect and esteem.

Married 4 May, 1843, Carlisle Harris (b. 1825; d.1859. See sketch of Harris Family), and 2nd, about 1862, Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt-Kay (d. 1901.)

He was born in Kentucky and moved to Texas. At the time of the Civil War he joined the Confederate Army, was captured and in prison at New Orleans for several months. Probably was exchanged, for we find that some time after his sister Minerva and her husband, Gen. "Dick" Williams, had gone back to Ky., he married Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt-Kay, and went to Ky. They took with them her daughter Lulu Kay, and all of his children except Tillitha and Lillie, who had gone with their Aunt Minerva, and the son Overton, who had joined the Confederate Army. His father, George Washington Stoner, Sr., was living in Montgomery Co. (Ky.), and when the War became severe and feeling ran high, Michael L. and some of his family had to be sent to Va. through the mountains by carriage. In the party were Michael L. Stoner, his wife, her daughter Lulu Kay, two of his children, Lillie and Nannie, and the negro driver. It is probable they remained in Va. until the close of the War, as Ky. was much debated country. Michael L. Stoner died and was buried in Texas where he has many descendants living today.

He settled on a farm about midway between Mt. Zion and Macon, Ill. During the Civil War he served in the Confederate Army under Gen. Zollecoffer, and many interesting and laughable incidents of his war experiences are told by his relatives. About the most humorous is the one of his chasing a Union soldier into his own lines, and then returning to his own (Confederate), during one engagement.

He, more than any other member of the family, inherited the Boone love of hunting and adventure. He was once heard to say, "I'd rather have seen Old Grandfather 'Mike' Stoner than any human who ever lived." It was he who visited, near the end of the Civil War, "Mike" Stoner's grave near Monticello, Wayne Co., Ky.

William Myrtle Boone was born and reared in Putnam Co., Ind. He remained at home with his parents, helping with the work, until he became of age, when he took charge of the home place and farmed it for ten years. He was married in Putnam Co., in 1841, to Miss Nancy Parker, a native of Ky., and ten years later, in the fall of 1851, moved to Iowa, settling near old Boonesboro. He bought a claim of 240 acres, which he later entered from the Government and secured his title. In 1853 he traded this for a farm of 160 acres in Worth Township, in order to be near his parents and look after them. This farm he developed into one of the best in the County. Here he continued to live until 1896, when his wife died. He had already divided a large part of the farm among his children, and now he rented out the rest, making his home for the balance of his life with his children. In early life he voted with the old Whig party, and when it broke up, he joined the new Republican party from which he never wavered. In 1908, at the age of 85, he had then lived for 56 years in Boone County, which he had seen grow and develop from a "barren, uninhabitable prairie, into one of the richest and most prosperous agricultural districts in the world," and the town of Boone grow from a mere hamlet into one of the most thriving cities of Iowa.

Married 1870, Carrie Belle Morris of Louisville, daughter of the Hon. George W. Morris.

He was reared in Louisville, where he attended school until his sixteenth year, when he entered the University of Indiana at Bloomington, Ind. When the call to war was sounded he left school in June, 1861, to take part in the stirring activities of that period. He returned to Louisville and joined the "Boone Guards" of that city, so named in honor of his father, Col. William P. Boone. He soon progressed to a lieutenancy, and with his company responded to the call of General Anderson early in September, 1861, when the Union State of Kentucky was invaded by Confederate forces and the capture of Louisville threatened. Later he joined the 28th Kentucky Regiment, of the Army of the Cumberland, and for his efficiency was rapidly promoted until he reached the rank of full Colonel on July 5, 1864, being at that time only twenty years of age. He served with great distinction throughout the war taking part in the battles of Chickamaugua, Lookout Mountain, Mission, Ridge, Graysville, Ringgold, Pine Mountain, Franklin, Nashville, and at Kenesaw Mountain, Georgia, in 1864, when he was severely wounded. He was breveted by the President "for gallant and meritorious service" and was mustered out in June, 1866, having been in military action since 1861.

After his army service terminated Col. John Rowan Boone studied law, and in 1869 began practice in partnership with his father. After his father's death in 1875, he successfully continued this practice alone, making Louisville his permanent home.

Their residence is in Washington, D. C. Mr. Douglass is a United States Surveyor with offices at Sante Fe, New Mexico, his work being largely in that locality. He was appointed United States Cadastral Engineer, on July 1, 1818.

William Boone Douglass was a graduate of the School of Law of Georgetown University, from which he received the degree of Master of Laws in 1888; and was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of Indiana, and to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States.

On August 14th, 1909, Mr. Douglass, then Examiner of Surveys of the General Land Office, discovered the World's greatest natural bridge, in southern Utah, which he named "The Rainbow Natural Bridge."

Upon his recommendation it was created a national monument by President Taft, and the pen with which the President signed the proclamation was presented to Mr. Douglass. In the government publication "General Information Regarding the National Monuments," Gov. Printing Press, 1917, page 1, he is officially credited with the discovery of this great bridge, which Theodore Roosevelt called one of the world's greatest wonders.

One adventure which Mr. Douglass had upon the occasion of this discovery, was a capture by Indians; an experience not uncommon among the early Boones, but very rare in the present generation. Accompanied by an Indian guide, Jim, he attended a secret midnight dance by the Navajo Indians, although the guide had tried to restrain him from going. A party of Paiute Indians were visitors at the dance, and upon discovering that a white man was a spectator they were greatly incensed at his intrusion upon the sacred ceremony. The Paiutes captured Mr. Douglass and planned to take his life, but were diverted from their purpose by the Indian guide Jim, who told them that Mr. Douglass was in the service of the United States and that his death would bring trouble upon them. After considering the matter from this point of view, his captors finally released him.

In New Mexico and elsewhere Mr. Douglass has conducted extensive scientific explorations, and has proven himself to be an archaeologist of much ability. He has made a particular study of the prehistoric homes of the Tewa and other Pueblo Indians of New Mexico, and the results of his research on this subject have been published by the government and by scientific associations. Some of his archaeological writings are; "Structural Orientation of Pre-Historic Indian Pueblos and Shrines"; "A World-Quarter Shrine of the Tewa Indians"; "Notes on the Shrines of the Tewa and other Pueblo Indians of New Mexico"; "The Land of the Small House People."

He is a member of the International Congress of Americanists, and is General Secretary of the National Park Association of New Mexico, an organization which has for its object the formation of a vast national park in the southwest for the preservation of its many natural beauties, its cliff-dwellings and other archaeological wonders. From "The New Mexico Journal of Education," March, 1916, we quote Mr. Douglass' own words on this subject:—

> "If we are ever to know our country or its earliest people, here is the field where we must learn it. The great universities of the east, with their great wealth and their accumulated libraries, will overshadow us save in one thing; all must come to New Mexico to study mankind. The creation of this proposed national park is a national duty; not for the benefit of the United States alone, but rather as our contribution to the University of the World."

Mr. Hubert enlisted as a volunteer, 326 Labor Battalion, in Washington, D. C., and was a sergeant with the army in France, at the close of the war. He is now head of the Income Tax Unit, Internal Revenue Bureau, Washington, D. C. No children.

3370 William Boone Douglass, Jr., b. 7 Apr., 1898; served in Great War as member of 472nd Engineer Corps of U. S. A. He enlisted as a volunteer, July 7, 1918, at St. Joseph, Mo., in 472nd Engineers, but seeing no chance to get "over sea" service, he secured a transfer to the Chemical Warfare Service, as he was specializing in chemistry at Cornell University, at the time of his enlistment. (His military services are recorded in the Cornell Class Book of 1920.) He was an instructor in the use of gas masks and the manufacture of gas bombs, having been given a special course of training in these subjects. He was listed for over-sea service when the war closed, and honorably discharged, 23 Dec., 1918. He will be graduated from Cornell University in 1922. William Henton's parents moved to Indiana before he was a year old and died while he was quite young. At the age of about 21 he went to the territory of Nebraska, to what is now Red Willow County, almost the center of the great American desert. The years between 1873, and 1879, were mostly spent by him in farming, fighting grasshoppers, hunting buffalo for their pelts, and in the intervals freighting between Sidney, Neb., and the Black Hills. In the spring of 1875, when on the verge of starvation, as Mr. Henton himself expressed it, he set out on foot across a wild, trackless country for North Platte City, 110 miles northward, in search of work. Here he joined a government expedition as teamster and assisted in building Fort Sheridan on the site of the Spotted Tail Indian Agency, on the boundary between Nebraska and Dakota. In 1879, Mr. Henton settled down on a farm near Danbury, Neb., which he had homesteaded at an earlier date, and where he now (1904) lives with his family. The land has been added to until the property is a handsome one, abundant success having attended the owner's business of farming and stock-raising. Mr. Henton was twice elected County Treasurer.

Married 16 Sept., 1890, Mary Cassell Gregg, daughter of Samuel and Maria A. (Bryant) Gregg, pioneers of Missouri.

Mr. Crump's residence is in Independence, Mo. He is vice president of the Kansas City Title and Trust Company of Kansas City, Mo., and in that city is considered without a superior in the matter of adjusting complex title problems.

For many years he has devoted his leisure hours to the study and collection of data on his illustrious ancestor, Daniel Boone, and his descendants, sparing no labor and expense to obtain all available information on that subject. The valuable result of this careful and thorough research he has kindly contributed to this book, preparing for it the interesting biographical sketch of Daniel Boone which appears on page 561. Mr. Crump insists, however, that he is not an historian or biographer, making no claim to being other than a "title man." Being interested in his family history, and a great admirer of Daniel Boone, his object has been to collect and preserve for posterity, all records of the sturdy old Pioneer and his descendants. In this he has most admirably succeeded, and through his courtesy we are able to present in this volume much heretofore unpublished information on that subject.

The following is from a sketch of Mr. Crump's life which appears in the "Centennial History of Missouri, 1820-1921," Vol. III.

"Jesse Procter Crump pursued his education in the public schools of his home county and began his business career as a boy in the abstract office of John A. Sea at Independence, Missouri. His characteristic industry and ability soon won him recognition as the best abstractor in that city. He has been active in the same line throughout the intervening years until he is without doubt one of the best title men in Kansas City. In 1902 he became identified with the title business in this city and in 1915 assisted in the organization of the Kansas City Title and Trust Company, which was formed through the consolidation of five abstract companies. It is capitalized for seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and was incorporated in 1915, since which time Mr. Crump has been the vice president. He is also the secretary of the Fidelity Savings Trust Company of Kansas City, and is connected with various other financial and commercial interests which place him in a prominent position in business circles. Nature endowed him with keen intellectual force and he has used his talents wisely and well, his faithfulness and industry featuring prominently in the attainment of success in his chosen line.

In 1890 Mr. Crump was married to Miss Mary C. Gregg, daughter of Samuel and Maria A. Gregg, pioneers of Missouri. * * * * * * * * Mrs. Crump is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and is very active in charitable and social service work. Mr. Crump turns to hunting and fishing for recreation. He belongs to the City Club, to the Real Estate Board, and is a member of the Palestine Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templars, at Independence, Mo., where he resides. Both he and his wife are very active in the Christian Church, doing all in their power to promote its growth and extend its influence. Mr. Crump is a musician of much natural ability who possesses a fine and highly cultivated voice. He has long been a choir singer and is much sought for solo work. He is a gentleman of broad and liberal culture, well descended and well bred, whose high character is indicated by his hosts of friends among the leading residents of Kansas City."

FAMILY OF CATHERINE ROSANNA BOONE (COULTER).

CATHERINE[1] ROSANNA BOONE, born in Pennsylvania within or near the period 1730-40, died in Lincoln County, North Carolina about 1813; married Martin Coulter. She was probably a daughter of Joseph Boone (No. 6), (son of George Boone III) and wife Catherine. The following evidence of this connection exists:—

An old piece of time-worn paper written by Catherine's son, Martin Coulter Jr., and bearing the date June 6, 1846, is preserved by descendants. It reads:—

> "My father was Martin Coulter. He came to this country from Germany in 1750. My mother was Catherine Rosanna Boone, cousin of Daniel Boone—Squire's Daniel. Brothers John and Philip, sister Catherine." (Signed) Martin Coulter.

Because of Catherine Rosanna Boone's early date of birth (her first child born in 1759) she was probably a grandchild of George Boone III and thus a first cousin of Daniel Boone, rather than a member of a later generation. Record has been found of the children of all of Daniel Boone's uncles except those of the uncle Joseph (born 1704), and not one of this long list of cousins bore the name Catherine. Therefore, if Catherine Rosanna Boone were a first cousin of Daniel Boone, her father could have been no other than Joseph. In addition to this evidence we have the significant fact of the Christian names used in this branch of the family. Catherine is not a name commonly used among the Boones of that period, but the wife of Joseph Boone, son of George Boone III, bore that name. It can then be reasonably supposed that Catherine Rosanna Boone was named for a mother Catherine. Martin and Catherine Rosanna (Boone) Coulter had a daughter also named Catherine, who named her first son Joseph Boone Lowrance, presumably for his great-grandfather. All of these facts indicate descent from Joseph and Catherine Boone, and while no record of Joseph Boone's children has been found, there seems little doubt that one of them was this Catherine Rosanna (Boone) Coulter.

Martin[1] Coulter (originally Kolter) was born in Germany and emigrated to America, landing at Philadelphia September 26, 1749, on the Ship Dragon, George Spencer, Master. (Rupp's Collection of Names of German, Swiss and Other Immigrants in Pennsylvania, pages 211-212). The date of his marriage to Catherine Rosanna Boone is not known, but may be approximated by the date of the birth of their eldest child, Feb. 11, 1759. The first known record of his name in North Carolina is found in a Land Grant from King George III to Martin Coulter dated April ——, 1765.

In the Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. 22, page 722, his name is found on a "committee of Defense" (15 names), which met June 12th, 1779, "to consult on some plan to defend our frontier from the enemy" (meaning the Indians). On page 425 of the Index appears—"Coulter Family, Pioneers," Vol. 8, pages 753 and 756. These references are under the general heading—"Early German Reformed Settlements in North Carolina." FAMILY OF JACOB BOONE OF MAYSVILLE, KY.

JACOB[1] BOONE, born in Berks Co., Pa., 15 Aug., 1754; died at Maysville, Ky., 4 May, 1827, in his 73rd year. (Draper Mss. 1S 33, 34, 40, 44.)

Married Mary DeHart (b. 10 Oct., 1753; d. 30 July, 1828).

It was stated by Jacob Boone's daughter Mrs. Nicholson, in 1858, that her father was a son of Joseph Boone. (Draper Mss. 1S 33.) He is referred to by historians as a cousin or "favorite cousin" of Daniel Boone, with whom he was closely associated in Kentucky. Naturally we might infer that he was therefore a son of Daniel's uncle Joseph Boone (No. 6), son of George Boone III, but this seems highly improbable because of the discrepancy in their ages, the first Joseph Boone having been born in 1704 (see page 24). Jacob Boone was more probably the son of a Joseph Boone of Berks Co., Pa., who died prior to 1779,* leaving a widow and several children, several of whom were minors at the time. In the records of the Orphan's Court of Berks Co., Pa., are found entries to the following effect:—

> "Orphan's Court, May 7, 1783. Petition of Jacob Boone, eldest son and heir at law of Joseph Boone of Exeter, yeoman, deceased; that his father lately died intestate, leaving a widow (Elizabeth) and ten children, to wit,: the petitioner, Joseph Boone, Thomas, Ovid, Abner, Johab, Ann, Catherine, Sarah, and Hannah, several of whom are yet in their minority."
> The widow, Elizabeth, had previously filed petition in May, 1779, regarding the estate of her deceased husband Joseph Boone, and again in 1783 she petitioned court for a guardian to be appointed for her children, three of whom were under fourteen at that time. (a)

If Jacob Boone of Maysville, Ky., was a son of the above Joseph Boone who died prior to 1779, it is quite possible that he was the son of an earlier marriage of Joseph, and not of the wife Elizabeth who had young children in 1783, at which time our subject Jacob Boone was twenty-nine years old and had a wife and children. The Quaker records of Berks Co., Pa., reveal the fact that a Joseph Boone, Jr. was called to account in 1751 for having married contrary to regulations. This might have been a first marriage of the above Joseph Boone, his second marriage being to Elizabeth who was mother of the minor children at his death. It at least seems reasonable to suppose that the Joseph Boone whose estate was settled in Orphan's Court was a son of Joseph Boone, son of George Boone III, but lacking the will of the first Joseph, or any record of his children upon which to hang this supposition, it is impossible to state definitely that this was the case. Nor is it possible to say positively that Jacob Boone of Maysville, Ky., was the one who filed the petition in the Orphan's Court in Pennsylvania, although it seems most probable, especially as the brothers who accompanied him to Kentucky were named Thomas and Ovid.

*The estate of one Joseph Boone was administered to a widow Elizabeth Boone, May 10, 1776.—Berks County, Pa. Wills.

Jacob Boone lived in Pennsylvania until 1785, when he removed with his family to Kentucky. Sometime prior to that time Daniel Boone had visited Berks County and had induced Jacob and his brothers Ovid and Thomas to go to Kentucky. Accordingly in the fall of 1785, the three brothers, having sold their farms, started with their families to the new country where Daniel Boone was already so much at home. On the Monongahela River, at the mouth of the Sewickly, they wintered and built a boat, in which they embarked in the spring of 1786 and descended the Ohio River unmolested to the site of Limestone, Ky., where they arrived the eleventh of May, 1786. (Draper Mss. 1 S 33, 34, 40, 44, a statement of Mrs. Annah Nicholson.)

After reaching Kentucky, Jacob Boone and his brothers helped Daniel Boone lay out the town of Limestone (now Maysville) on the Ohio River. (b) and (c) The place was used as a trading post for parties going up and down the river, and also later as a starting point for journeys by boat to Missouri. For a time Daniel Boone carried on a little business of flat-boat hauling from this point.

From Maysville, then called Limestone, Ovid Boone, brother of Jacob, went on into Bourbon County, Ky., and Thomas, the other brother, eventually settled in Ohio, where he died at Round Bottom, a few miles above Cincinnati. (Draper Mss. 1 S.) Jacob Boone, however, continued to live at Maysville until his death, evidently not sharing the roving spirit of his kinsmen. He built a house on Front Street, now known as Limestone Street, which was still standing in 1921. In this house he and his wife lived until his death. He often went out on scouting trips, and was a quarter-master of militia, furnishing grain for St. Clair's and Wayne's troops. He kept a tavern and ferry at Maysville.

After his death, his widow went to live with her daughter and son-in-law, Ann and Capt. F. Nicholson, at whose house in Maysville she died. Quaint old funeral invitations of Jacob Boone and his wife are preserved among the family heirlooms.

FAMILY OF JEREMIAH BOONE

(From "The Boones in America," by Dr. R. N. Mayfield, a small booklet giving some early history of the family; and data furnished by Mrs. M. A. Thomas of Jasonville, Ind.)

JEREMIAH¹ BOONE was born in Pennsylvania, 29 Feb., 1760; died in Lawrence County, Indiana, 10 June, 1832. He married in Lincoln County, Ky., Joyce Nevel (born in Virginia; died in Lawrence County, Ind., 26 June, 1861, aged 93 years, 1 mo., and 12 days) who went to Kentucky with her parents when eleven years old.

Dr. Mayfield says in the book above-mentioned:—

> "I have failed after careful search to find the father of Jeremiah Boone, born in Pennsylvania, Feb. 29th, 1760; died June 10th, 1832. Am told that his father's name was Solomon, but I cannot verify the same."

This is strengthened by the statement of Jeremiah's descendant Mrs. M. A. Thomas of Jasonville, Ind., who says that the father of Jeremiah Boone was Solomon Boone, and further states that she is not familiar with Dr. Mayfield's book.

In 1785 Jeremiah Boone went to Kentucky, where he bought a farm on July 1, 1800, from G. Stepp, on Pittman Creek, five miles northeast of Somerset and two and one-half miles east of Science Hills. On this farm stands a pear tree seventy feet high which was planted by Jeremiah Boone while residing there over a hundred years ago. Later he removed to Lawrence County, Ind., where his son Noah had gone previously. Jeremiah took up land there and remained in Indiana until his death.

FAMILY OF JESSE BOONE

(Data furnished by Mrs. J. Clarence Rudisell, Jessup, Ga.)

In John Preston Arthur's "History of Western North Carolina" we find mention of three Boones, brothers and sister, who were named Jesse, Israel, and Anna (p. 181). The name of their father is not given, although it is stated that they were nephews and niece of Daniel Boone. The above history gives the following information regarding Anna and Jesse Boone:—

ANNA BOONE, sister of Jesse and Israel, married William Coffee. She lived to be nearly 100 years old. Had a grandson Patrick Coffee, who built a house on Mulberry Creek, Caldwell Co., N. C., in 1877, at which time Anna (Boone) Coffee was living, and talked to the man building the house (p. 84-85).

JESSE BOONE, brother of Anna, is mentioned as having lived four miles from Schull's Mills and two miles from Kelsey Post Office, Wautauga Co., North Carolina. The house is no longer standing, but the chimney foundation is still shown as his. There is also record of a Jesse Boone having lived just west of the Blue Ridge one mile west of Kelsey P. O. on Boone's Fork of Wautauga River. On 8 July, 1823, Jesse Boone conveyed to William and Alexander Elrod for $600, 350 acres of land on Flanner's Fork of New River. (Deed registered in Book "M," page 391 of Ash Co., N. C.; recorded in 1841.) Jesse Boone married Sarah McMahan (p. 180).

Jesse Boone, according to his great-grandson or Smith Coffee (b. 1832 in Caldwell Co., N. C.), had three daughters; one of these, named Celia Boone, married Buck Craig; another, Hannah Boone, married Smith Coffee; and the third is not named. Smith Coffee moved to Cherokee Co., in 1838, and settled on Hiwassee River four miles above Murphy, after which he moved to Peach Tree Creek, where he died a year later (1839), his family returning to Caldwell. Smith Coffee had a son Smith Coffee (b. 1832), who returned in 1858 to Cherokee and lived on a farm adjoining that of George Hays on Valley River. Here he had a fight with Hays concerning a sow, just before the Civil War. Nevertheless when the war began he joined Hays' Company, which became Co. "H" of the 2nd N. C. Cavalry (p. 84-85).

2[3] Squire Coffey.
3[3] Lee Coffey.

FAMILY OF JOHN BOONE, NEPHEW OF DANIEL

John Boone, b. in York Co., Pa., abt. 1755; d. 17 July, 1835; m. 1787 or 1788, in Augusta Co., Va., Elizabeth Alford (d. 15 Feb., 1841).

The pension report of John Boone states that he was a nephew of Daniel Boone. Consequently he must have been a son of either Israel or Jonathan Boone, as Daniel's other brothers had no sons John. At the date of his enlistment he resided in York Co., Pa.; enlisted in 1777 and served three years under Capt. Spanzler, Pa.; engaged in the Battle of Camden. On 20 Aug., 1833, when a resident of Monroe Co., Va. he applied for a pension, which claim was allowed. At that time he was 78 years old, and he died 2 years later.

Ratliff Boone, born 18 Jan., 1781, in North Carolina; died 20 Nov., 1844, in Louisiana, Mo.; married 13 Aug., 1801, Delilah Anderson, daughter of Baily and Mary Anderson of Kentucky.

It is said that the parents of Ratliff Boone were Jesse and Kessiah Boone, and family tradition indicates a close relationship to Daniel Boone. When Ratliff was a boy his father emigrated from Georgia to Warren Co., Kentucky, where the son learned the gunsmith trade in the town of Danville. In 1809 Ratliff moved to the Territory of Indiana, locating in what is now Boone township, Warrick County. His home in Boonville, Ind., is still standing (1921).

Ratliff Boone was elected the second Lieutenant Governor of Indiana, with Jonathan Jennings as Governor of the State. On Sept. 12, 1822, Governor Jennings resigned his office to accept a seat in Congress, and his unexpired term of six months was filled by Lieutenant Governor Boone as Acting Governor. Boone was re-elected Lieutenant Governor on the ticket with William Hendricks in 1822. He served in this office until the close of the legislative session in 1824, when he resigned to become a candidate for Congress in the first district. He was elected a member of Congress and represented his district six terms in that capacity. In politics he spoke of himself as being a Democrat of the true Jeffersonian stamp.

In 1839, his congressional career ended, he removed to Missouri, where he settled in Pike County, and at once became active there in public life and affairs. Regarding his appearance, a contemporary writes:-

> "Boone was a lithe, active man when I last saw him. In height he was about five feet ten inches, spare in person and as straight as an Indian. Without doubt he was closely related with the Boones of Kentucky" (Charles H. Test in his Recollections of Prominent Men of Indiana).

Ratliff Boone died rather suddenly at his home in Missouri, after having anxiously awaited the news of James K. Polk's election to the Presidency, in which occurrence he was intensely interested.

FAMILY OF SARAH BOONE (BROOKS) (MONTGOMERY)

(Records furnished by Mrs. S. L. Leeka, 613 Center St., Marion, Ohio, and Mrs. W. M. Gardner, Russellville, Ohio)

Sarah¹ Boone, born 24 Nov., 1763; died in Adams County, Ohio, 31 Dec., 1848. She married, first, probably at Boonesborough, Ky. (a) on 13 March, 1782, Thomas Brooks (b. about 1760; d. 15 Apr., 1800); and second, on 10 June, 1802, David Montgomery (b. 20 Jan., 1772; d. 12 Feb., 1853). (b)

In proof of this connection may be presented the following statements:

1. Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, youngest daughter of Sarah Boone by her first husband, stated to Dr. Lyman Draper in September, 1863, that her father Thomas Brooks married Sarah Boone, daughter of Samuel Boone, brother of Daniel. (c)

2. Mrs. Sabina Ellis, daughter of William Brooks and niece of Thomas Brooks, stated to Dr. Draper in 1858 that her uncle Thomas Brooks had married a Boone who had a brother Squire. (d) (There were only two members of the sixth generation named Squire Boone, living in Kentucky at that time: one a son of George Boone, the other a son of Samuel Boone; both nephews of Daniel.)

3. A tradition in the family of Sarah Boone is that an uncle Thomas Boone was killed at the battle of Blue Licks. A yellow time-worn paper preserved in the family bears the statement that Thomas Boone was killed by Indians and was buried at Flat Rock (now Little Rock, Bourbon County, Ky.). It is known that Samuel Boone, brother of Daniel, had a son Thomas killed at Blue Licks.

4. A descendant unfamiliar with the above proofs states that Sarah was a daughter of Samuel Boone, brother of Daniel the pioneer.

Thomas Brooks, first husband of Sarah Boone, was a well-known scout and Indian fighter. His family was from Farquier Co. Virginia. He went to Kentucky in the early days of its settlement, and with Daniel Boone, Jacob Boone and others laid out the town of Limestone (now Maysville), where he lived until his death. He served three years as a private in the Virginia Continental Line, for which he received a grant of land. (e) In Mason Co., Ky. are records of land transfers signed by Thomas Brooks and Sarah Boone Brooks in 1791.

After the death of Thomas Brooks his widow Sarah (Boone) married David Montgomery and moved across the Ohio River to Adams Co., Ohio, where she lived until her death. She was buried at Decatur, Ohio. One branch of the family has a tradition that Sarah Boone as a young girl carried water at Fort Boonesborough during the siege. If this is so she must have gone to Kentucky in advance of her parents, Samuel and Sarah (Day) Boone, who went there in 1779 and settled at Boone's Station; or else the tradition refers to Boone's Station, which was besieged in 1782. Her children were:— (b)

5³ Joseph C. Montgomery.

In connection with the above family, it may be stated that there was a Sarah Jane Brooks, born 5 Sept., 1811, who married Abraham Bloomhuff, 19 Sept., 1832. She was probably a granddaughter of Thomas Brooks and wife Sarah Boone, although it is not known which of their sons was her father. She and a younger brother Squire Boone Brooks (born 12 June, 1813; married Hester Brance) were left orphans when small children and were reared in the family of an Ellis Palmer of Maysville, Ky. Unfortunately the children lost touch with their Boone relatives, and retained no knowledge of the family except the tradition that Daniel Boone was their uncle. They also remembered a visit from Daniel Boone in their early childhood. Both Sarah Jane Brooks and her brother Squire Brooks reared large families. The children of Abraham Bloomhuff and wife Sarah Jane Brooks were: Sydney, Mary Ann, Elizabeth, William, Samuel Ellis, Abram Wallace, Emily Jane, Franklin, Sarah Louisa, Leonard, John Wesley, and Florence Josephine, who married Carl August Miller and resides at Valparaiso, Indiana. Mrs. Miller has record of the descendants of this branch of the family.

He died on his steamboat, after a few years of married life, and was buried in New Orleans. Mrs. Boone lived on in her little cottage at West Middleton, Pennsylvania, with her maiden daughter Elizabeth, until the mother's death in 1874. A FEW OTHER FAMILIES OF TRADITIONAL RELATIONSHIP

Naming the first known Boone ancestor

HANNAH BOONE, born 1 Nov., 1786; died 28 Jan., 1862; married in 1800 James Barnhill (b. 18 Aug., 1780; d. 1 Jan., 1825). They lived for a short time after marriage at Fort Boonesborough; later in Shelby Co., near Lynch's Fort; in a few years moved to Oldham Co. (then part of Henry Co.); and in 1824 settled in Daviess Co., Ky. It is stated in a history of Daviess County, published in 1885, that Hannah (Boone) Barnhill was a daughter of Josiah Boone, and that she was born at Fort Boonesborough.

A descendant of Hannah Boone is Mrs. J. L. Goss, Clinton, Mo.

ISAAC BOONE, of Berks County, Pa., had a daughter Mary who married Michael Kern (d. 11 Feb., 1850, buried at Amityville, Exeter Co., Pa.). Their children were: 1. Samuel Boone Kern, b. 1797, m. Elizabeth Boone, 2. William Boone Kern; 3. Jacob Boone Kern, settled in Ohio or Indiana; 4. Jeremiah Boone Kern, m. —— Small; 5. Josiah Boone Kern, b. 26 March, 1804, m. Susannah Srark. The will of Isaac Boone, their grandfather, was dated 1794, and is recorded in Berks Co., Pa. It shows that he had a wife Sarah and a brother Hugh Boone whose son was named Owen.

Hugh Boone, brother of Isaac, left will dated 1805, recorded also in Berks Co., Pa. It provides for wife Frances; sons Jonathan, Isaac, William, Mordecai and Owen; and daughters Hannah Evans and Elizabeth Jones. There was a Hugh Boone appointed guardian for the minor children of Joseph Boone, dec., of Exeter Twp., Berks Co., Pa., in 1783. (Orphans' Court Records, Berks Co.)

For descendants of Isaac Boone address Mr. H. G. Schull, 808 Paxinosa Ave., Easton, Pa.

OVID BOONE, married Catherine—and had daughters: Leah Boone, b. 1775, who married James Parker (b. 1774) of Harrison Co., Ind; and Mecca Boone, b. 1798-9; d. 1815-20 in Greentown, Howard Co., Ind., married Benjamin Woods; and sons Randall and Ovid Jr. There are indications that Ovid Boone was a brother of Jacob Boone of Maysville, Ky., and possibly a son of Joseph Boone of Berks Co., Pa., who died before 1779. (See page 481). Ovid lived near Lexington, Ky., until about 1815-20, when he moved to Wayne Co., Ind.

Descendants of Ovid Boone are Mrs. J. M. Sewell, 4231 15th Ave., N. E., Seattle, Wash.; and Miss Kimberly, Librarian of Public Library of Marshalltown, Iowa.

WILLARD BOONE, born Feb., 1788; died Dec., 1870; married 7 Oct., 1809, Deborah Davis (b. 1790, d. Aug., 1864), daughter of George Davis. They settled in Granville, Washington Co., N. Y. and had children: Harriet, b. 1810, d. 1901, m. 1829 Charles Tingue; Samuel; Delis (or Delia) and Rhoda who both died young; Arelda, m. Horace Harris; and Lorenzo Dow. Willard Boone had brothers Moses and Aaron, and a sister Patty.

A descendant of Willard Boone is Mr. C. E. Tingue, Sunset Lodge, Cambridge, N. Y.

PRUDENCE PETERS, said to have been a cousin of Daniel Boone, had two sisters, Patience (called Patty) and Temperance (called Tempy) and a brother, possibly called Sam. Prudence was born in St. Petersburg, Va., about 1758, and moved to Kentucky with her parents. She died near St. Mary's, Marion Co., Ky., 22 Oct., 1851. She was twice married: first, to Zachariah Taylor, by whom she had a son Zachariah Jr.; and second, to Nicholas Ray, by whom she had a son Samuel Taylor Ray.

A descendant of Prudence Peters is Miss Cora Ray, 822 Cottage St., Belton, Texas.

RHODA BOONE SMITH, born 3 Jan., 1795, married Abraham Skaggs. She is said to have been a grand-niece of Daniel Boone,—her mother, Mrs. Smith, possibly a daughter of Jonathan Boone, brother of Daniel. Rhoda Boone Smith had brothers Samuel Smith; Dr. David Ewing Smith; Jesse P. Smith; and sisters Polly Smith, b. 1790; Cynthia Frances Smith, b. 1797; Katherine Smith, b. 1800, m. Smith Taylor; and Kessiah Smith, b. 1804, m. Peter Downey. There are strong family traditions regarding the Boone relationship, and old letters indicate a close connection to the family of Ratleff Boone of Indiana (see page 495).

A descendant of Rhoda Boone Smith is Mrs. J. F. Cahill, 726 West Summitt Ave., San Antonio, Texas.

THE BRYAN FAMILY

Perhaps no pioneer family has a history so similar to that of the Boone family and so closely identified with it, as the Bryan family. Beginning with their early residence on the Yadkin River, the association between the two families has continued almost up to the present day, strengthened by many intermarriages and by the strong friendships formed in the frontier settlements.

From an article written by Dr. J. D. Bryan, a descendant of Morgan Bryan, comes this interesting account of the origin of the family:—

> The name Bryan has been spelled in every way in which the letters could be transposed, as "Brian, Bryen, Bryon, Brion, Brien, Briant, and Bryant," but there is evidence that they are all one people, sprung from the same source, viz., Bryan, King of Munster and All Ireland.
> In 978, Kennedy, King of Munster, was succeeded by his son, BRYAN, who was born about 927; consequently was 51 years old when he became king of Munster. As a general in his father's army he had become one of the most noted princes in Ireland, and after becoming king, he drove the Danes from his kingdom of Munster. His fame became so great that he was crowned at Tara in 1002 "Ard Righ," or supreme monarch of all Ireland. He was a man of broad intellect, and instituted reforms that made him the most noted monarch of Ireland. Schools and colleges were revived; roads built, a navy built up and an efficient army organized.
> During the wars of conquest which began about that time, many native princes were killed, were forced to flee, or were executed. In 1115, Pope Adrian IV conferred the sovereignty of Ireland on Henry II, of England. Some of the Bryans must have gone to Denmark with friendly Danes, for there a descendant of Bryan, believed to be William Bryan, was born about 1630. He lived in Denmark until he married a girl whose name is thought to have been Sarah Bringer, and had a son born about 1671, whom he named Morgan. After that they returned to Ireland.
> When MORGAN BRYAN grew to manhood he left his parents in Ireland and went to Pennsylvania. In Chester Co., Pa., 1719, he married Martha Strode, a Hollander, who is said to have been a descendant of Sir William Strode, one of the five members who condemned Charles I and signed his death warrant. (a)

From another source comes a rather different story of the ancestry of Morgan Bryan who married Martha Strode:—

> "William Smith Bryan was deported from Ireland by the British Government as a rebellious subject, and at that time was thought to be the only lineal descendant of 'Bryan Borou,' King of Ireland. The English Government shipped him with his family, goods and chattels (consisting of a ship-load) and dropped them off on Gloucester Beach, Virginia. William Smith Bryan had eleven sons and three daughters, the record of whom is lost, excepting that of;
> Francis Bryan, who returned to Ireland in 1650 and made an endeavor to regain his hereditary title and estates. Being greatly persecuted by the English government, he was forced to flee to Denmark, where he married, and where his sons Morgan and William, were born. * * * Morgan Bryan removed to Ireland with his father, who was standard bearer to William and Mary of Orange, and was present at the battle of Boyne, 1690. Francis Bryan died at Belfast, Ireland, in 1694.
> Morgan Bryan was born in Denmark in 1671; his mother was a Danish woman. He had a brother, William Smith Bryan, of whom no record has been preserved. In the year 1695, Morgan Bryan removed to Pennsylvania. On the ship crossing the ocean he met Martha Strode, a Holland woman and refugee Huguenot; they were married shortly after the ship arrived, and resided at a place near the present city of Reading, Pa. In the year 1710, Morgan Bryan removed to Virginia and settled on Opequan Creek, about twelve miles from Winchester, Va., where most of his children grew up and were married and where he remained until the year 1748. His wife died in Winchester, Va., in 1747, and in 1748, he removed to the Yadkin River Country, North where he died in 176— (3?)." (b)

Each of the two accounts given above, brings us down to Morgan Bryan and wife Martha Strode. They differ radically as to dates and names, although both follow the general migration from Ireland to Denmark, back to Ireland, and thence to America. As neither account gives authority for statements, in the way of public or family records, it is difficult to say which, if either, is correct.

However, we know positively that a Morgan Bryan and wife Martha Strode of North Carolina, were the ancestors of William, Martha and Rebecca Bryan, and of Anne Linville, all of whom married Boones.

On file in the Bureau of Pensions, Department of the Interior, at Washington, is the pension record or application of Samuel Bryan, son of William Bryan, who married Mary Boone. "It is stated in the claim that the soldier's great-grandfather was a Dane, and lived in Denmark until his son, Morgan, was born; then moved to Ireland. His name and that of his wife are not stated. Morgan, when he became of age, emigrated to America and settled in Pennsylvania, where he married Martha Strode, a Hollander whose parents had moved to France to escape persecution because of their religion (Protestant), started for Pennsylvania and died at sea, leaving three children, Jeremiah, Samuel and Martha, who were provided for by their shipmates until of age, when the above named Martha married Morgan Bryan. Their children were Joseph, Elenor, Mary, Samuel, Morgan, John, William, James and Thomas." (c)

An interview with George Bryan, son of Morgan Bryan, Jr., and grandson of Morgan and Martha (Strode) Bryan, which is preserved in the Draper Collection of Manuscripts, gives the "Old Stock" of Bryans, (children of Morgan and Martha) as follows:— Joseph, Samuel, Morgan, Ellender (Mrs. Linville); John, James, and Thomas. (d)

Dr. J. D. Bryan, quoted above, says that Morgan Bryan continued to live in Chester Co., (Pa.) until four or five of his eldest children were born. "About 1728 or '30, Morgan Bryan, Alexander Ross, and other Friends (Quakers) obtained a grant of 100,000 acres of land on the Potomac and Opequan Rivers in the colony of Virginia. He (Morgan Bryan) moved to this land and settled near the present site of Winchester about 1730. Here the rest of his children were born. * * * * Martha Strode Bryan died about 1747 and was buried at the home near the present site of Winchester, Va. After her death Morgan Bryan sold his interests in Virginia, and in the fall of 1748 moved his family to North Carolina and settled in the Forks of theYadkin River." (a)

An early pioneer traveler over the road the Bryans followed from Winchester, Va., to the Yadkin country, left this statement:— "People had told us that this hill was most dangerous, and that we would scarcely be able to cross it, for Morgan Bryan, the first to travel this way, had to take the wheels off his wagon and carry it piece-meal to the top, and had been three months on the journey from the Shanidore (Shenandoah) to the Etkin (Yadkin)." (e)

The new home of the Bryans was then a frontier about sixty miles from the nearest settlement, where they went to buy corn and supplies. The sons all became hunters; all settled in the same neighborhood and had the choice pieces of land in that section, afterward called Bryan's Settlement. This is in what is now Rowan County. Morgan Bryan had been living on the Yadkin about two years, when Squire Boone came from Pennsylvania and settled nearby, thus becoming a neighbor. It was here in Rowan County that Morgan Bryan died in 1763, at the age of 92, and was buried in Mocksville (now Davie) Co.

1² Joseph Bryan Sr., d. abt., 1805; m. (1) ——; and (2) Alee— (d. it is thought prior to 1805). Of the first wife nothing is known, only that Joseph Bryan Jr., was her child. When his father moved down on the Yadkin, Joseph Bryan remained at Winchester, Va., where he had married and settled. Later we find he was living about 4 miles from where his father was living on the Yadkin.

In 1797, he with his brother Samuel, visited Ky., and in 1798, he rented Well's Station in Shelby County from Enoch M. Boone. In a year or so he and his family, two sons and a son-in-law, bought land on Floyd's Fork, in Shelby County, and settled there. He had been in the country some little time before settling at Well's Station, and had brought negroes, teams, and money into Kentucky with him.

At the time he visited Ky. (abt. 1797) he was seen by Col. Samuel Boone (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), who was also on a visit to Ky., and who gives this description of him: "Joseph Bryan, the father-in-law of Col. Daniel Boone, was a tall, raw-boned man,—an old man." (d)

He was living on Floyd's Fork when he died about 1805, and it is thought his wife, Alee, died a little before he did.

In Jefferson County, Ky., in Will Book I, page 158, we find a copy of his will, which was dated 20 November, 1804, and probated 4 March, 1805. Following is a copy of this will.

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Joseph Bryan of the County of Jefferson and State of Kentucky, being weak in body but of sound and perfect mind and memory, blessed be Almighty God for the same, do make and publish this my last will and testament in manner and form following (that is to say) after my lawful debts are settled, I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife Alee, a gray mare, a bed, and furniture, and thirty dollars either cash or property. I also give and bequeath to my sons, Samuel, Joseph, and John Bryan, the sum of fifty dollars each, either cash or property. I also give and bequeath to my youngest son, John Bryan, one Negro man named James and all the farming tools. I also give and bequeath unto my daughters, Martha Boon and Rebecca Boon, the sum of twenty dollars each, either cash or property. I also give and bequeath unto my other daughters, Mary Howard, Susannah Hinkle, Aylee Howard, Phebe Forbis, and Charity Davis, the sum of fifty dollars each, either cash or property. I also give and bequeath unto my daughter, Elenor Adams, a Negro woman named Jean, I also give and bequeath unto my grand-daughter, Aylee Adams , one Negro girl named Sarah. I also give and bequeath unto my grand-son, Noah Adams, one Negro boy named Sapio. I also give and bequeath unto my grandson, Jacob Adams, one Negro boy named Bob. I also give and bequeath unto my grandson, Wilah Adams, a Negro Girl named Lotty. And I do hereby appoint my two sons, Joseph and John Bryan, Executors of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills and testaments by me made.

In witness Whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this twentieth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and four.

They settled within about four miles of William Bryan on Sugartree Creek, where they lived until the growth of their family and the scarcity of game caused them to move to the head of the Yadkin and later into Ky. Their further history and lists of their descendants are given under the heading, Daniel Boone, No. 25.

3² Mary Bryan.

4² Samuel Bryan. In the proclamation issued 1 July, 1776, by Governor Martin of North Carolina, Samuel Bryan and William Bryan were named and appointed to "raise, levy, muster and array in arms all of his Majesty's loyal subjects in Rowan County." Samuel Bryan raised 800 men on the Forks of the Yadkin River and marched them to the British at Anson Court House. As Colonel Bryan, he was one of his Majesty's most loyal subjects during the Revolutionary War, and was with Lord Cornwallis on his march through the state. In 1797, together with his brother Joseph, he visited George Boone, son of Squire and Sarah (Morgan) Boone. It is thought he never afterward returned to Kentucky. In 1783, after his return from Bryan's Station in Ky., to North Carolina, he was arrested, tried for treason, and his property confiscated. After his release he moved to New York, where he left numerous descendants. He visited England about some claims from the British Government, but was entirely broken up by the War. Carruther's says, "Colonel Bryan and Colonel Hampton were men of unimpeachable character, and had nothing to be laid to their charge, except that of bearing arms against their country." Samuel Bryan of Syracuse, N. Y., Congressman in 1902, a great grandson, had in his possession at one time the sword carried by his great-grandfather in the Revolutionary War. (b)

C., Mary Boone (*Squire*⁴; *George*³) born 3 Sept., 1736, in Philadelphia (now Berks) Co., Pa., a sister of Daniel Boone. William Bryan was with the party which explored the North Fork of the Elkhorn (R.) in Ky., as early as 1774, and '75, where Bryan's Station was later located—called both Bryan's and Bryant's Station. (g) After his marriage, he lived in N. C. until 1779, when they moved to Ky., and settled at Bryan's Station. (For their further history and descendants see Mary Boone, No. 26.)

1[3] David Bryan, b. 29 Oct., 1757; m. Mary Powell (or Power?) and moved to Mo., in 1800, where he settled near the present town of Marthasville in Warren Co. He reserved half an acre of ground near his house for a graveyard, and it was there that Daniel Boone and his wife were buried. Bryan and his wife were buried directly at the feet of Boone and his wife. The tombstone that was placed at their head was lying in the old graveyard near the grave at the time of the unveiling of the "Boone Marker." David had a large orchard which he grew from apple seed that he had carried from Ky., in his vest pocket. (h) Children:—

9[2] Thomas Bryan, the youngest son, of Morgan and Martha (Strode) Bryan, m. Sarah Hunt, dau. of Rev. Jonathan Hunt, a descendant of Robert Hunt, the first Episcopal Minister in Va., who erected a church in Jamestown in 1607. "If any other Bryan took the British side it was his (Colonel Samuel Bryan's) brother, Thomas." (a)

He inherited his father's manor home near Bryanville, Iradell Co., N. C., and is said to have fitted out John Finley and Daniel Boone for their trip west, when they went into Kentucky. (b)

By some there is said to have been another child:—

10² Martha Bryan, who m. (1) Stephen Gano, in Rowan Co., N. C.; and (2) ——Forbes or Forbis, of Kentucky.

"Neddy (Edward) Boone, George Boone and the old Col. (Daniel) all married cousins of mine. All brothers. Neddy and the Col. married sisters. George married a daughter of Aunt Linville's." (d)

Another interesting bit about the children of Morgan Bryan reads:—

"During the Revolutionary War six of the sons served in the American Army, and one (evidently Samuel, H. A. S.) cast his lot with the Tories. He was promoted to the position of Colonel, and served with Tarleton during his campaign in the Carolinas. * * * *

Two of the brothers, who were in the American Army (James and Morgan), were at the bloody battle of King's Mountain, and from the best information we can obtain, their Tory brother fought against them in the same battle. The war feeling ran so high that they would have shot him if he had come within range of their rifles.

Three of the brothers (James, William and Morgan) followed Daniel Boone into Ky., and built Bryan's Station near Lexington." *(h)

THE BURRIS AND TRIBBLE FAMILIES

THOMAS BURRIS, the head of this family, died in Orange Co., Va., about 1789. He married Frances Tandy.

From the "Quisenberry Genealogy," by Anderson Chenault Quisenberry, we learn that Frances Tandy who married Thomas Burris was the daughter of Roger Tandy, whose mother was a Miss Colby, a descendant of Sir Edward Colby, a member of the original London Company that settled Jamestown (Va.). The will of Thomas Burris was probated March 1789, in Orange Co., Va. In it he bequeathed to his daughter, Sarah Ann Tribble, one negro girl named Agnes, and all her increase; also one feather bed and furniture. Thomas Burris and Frances Tandy had several children, those who are known being listed below:

1[2] Frances Tandy Burris, m. "Billy" Bush.

3[2] Sarah Ann Burris, b. 30 Sept., 1753; d. 15 Dec., 1830; m. 1768, Rev. Andrew Tribble (b. 22 Mar., 1741; d. 30 Dec., 1822), a native of Orange Co., Va. He was a Baptist; preached at a little church near Monticello, and was a personal friend of Thomas Jefferson. They moved to Ky., in 1785. Their children were:—

1[3] Frances Tribble, b. 3 Nov., 1769; d. 11 May 1852; m. George Michael Stoner (b. 1748; d. 3 Sept., 1813 or '15). See the "Stoner Family" and the sketch on George Michael Stoner.

4[3] Nancy Tribble, m. 1739, David Chenault (b. 30 Sept., 1771 in Albermarle Co., Va.; d. 9 May, 1851 in Ky.). "He joined the Baptist Church at Mt. Nebo, in Madison Co., Ky., about two miles north east of Richmond, on a prong of Otter Creek, in 1795, and was baptised by Elder Peter Woods. He was for twenty years a Justice of the Peace of the County, an extensive farmer, and accumulated a considerable fortune. For a period of more than fifty years, he served four churches as pastor, preaching much through the mountains of Ky., even down to old age." (W. H. Miller's "History & Genealogies," page 450.) They had a number of children of whom the 10th:—

10[4] Nancy Chenault, b. 1819; m. 26 Oct., 1843, her cousin Alexander Tribble (Mary[6] Boone; George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), (b. 10 Apr., 1810; d. 1885 or '86). She died in Richmond, Ky., where both are buried. They had no children.

5[3] Silas Tribble.

THE CALLAWAY FAMILY

We know nothing of the Callaway Family further back than the father and uncle of Flanders Callaway. These two brothers were:

1[1] JAMES C. CALLAWAY, died in Virginia. His name does not appear in early Kentucky history, in which some of his sons were so active. His sons of whom we have record were:

1[2] James Callaway, d. Aug., 1835, aged about 74; m. Susan White, daughter of Stephen White. James Callaway was captured by Indians with Daniel Boone and others, and spent three years in a Quebec prison. He had sons, John and Charles.

2[2] Micajah Callaway, had a son, Noble Callaway.

4[2] (Possibly) William Callaway (23 S 185-6; 199-201, an interview with Mrs. Susan Howell).

5[2] Flanders Callaway, b. 9 Dec., 1758; d. 19 Aug., 1824; m. Jemima Boone (Daniel[5], Squire[4]; George[3]), (for their descendants see No. 103).

1[2] Frances Callaway.

2[2] Elizabeth Callaway, who married Samuel Henderson. This was the first marriage ceremony performed in Kentucky. Squire Boone, Jr., brother of Daniel, officiated.

3[2] John Callaway. (a) At one time, about July 1782, (b) Captain William Hays and some others had gone out to cut a race-track near Hoy's Station. Indians crept between them and the Station, intercepting two small boys, John Callaway and Jones Hoy, the latter a little the older, who were going out to where the men were working. The Indians took the boys prisoners and hurried off with them, being pursued by a party, one member of which, was Major Hoy, the father of Jones.

When the Indians stopped to cook a meal soon after, they sent one of their number to watch their back trail. He soon returned with word that the whites were approaching. The two boys, under guard, were sent on out of the way, while the rest of the Indians "treed" ready for the battle, in which they soon defeated the whites.

The boys were kept several years, returning about 1785, so grown up that they were not easily recognized until they were well washed. When they came home, they stopped first at Squire Boone's Station (c) on Brashear Creek, from which place they were accompanied by Moses Boone to Fort Boonesborough, where John Callaway's mother lived. Young Callaway could speak English, but was quite an Indian in many ways.

THE DAVIS-WATTS FAMILIES

I. The first known member of this family was Louis Cave Davis, who came from England, and had seven sons. All of these sons served in the Revolutionary War and War of 1812, five of them losing their lives. One son was,

II. Leonard Davis of Pa., whose children were:—

2³ Augustus Cave Davis, b. 1767 in Va.; d. 30 June, 1837, aged 70 years, at his farm 4 miles from Old Franklin, and 1 mile from Boonsboro, Mo. From Missouri he moved to Kentucky where he met and married in 1800, Mary Colson Halliday (b. 1785 in Ky.; d. 13 Feb., 1845 on her farm). Augustus Cave Davis and his wife were one of the 150 families who colonized Boone's Lick Settlement (Howard Co., Mo.) in 1810. They lived in Cooper's Fort and he engaged in battle with Indians in the War of 1812. Mary Colson Halliday was the daughter of Benjamin Halliday (son of Capt. Joseph Halliday of the Continental Va., line and of one of the Colonial families of Va.), and his wife, Sarah Hampton, a member of the Hampton family of Va. (See "Colonial Families of U.S." by George McKenzie.) Augustus Cave Davis and his wife are buried in the "John I. Callaway burying grounds" across from the Davis farm.

THE DOUGLASS FAMILY

I. William Douglass, son of William, was born in Scotland of the old Douglass family, and married Jane——. He moved to Ireland, where the following children were born:—1st, William; 2nd, Adam, who came to Virginia about1760 and had two children named Sallie and Parker; and 3rd, a daughter known as "Aunt Steel," who lived to be of great age.

II. William[2] Douglass, first son of William I. and wife Jane, was born in Killinchy, Down Co., Ireland, 1746; died at Brookfield, near Belfast, Ireland, 1832 of apoplexy. Married Margaret Waker or Walker, who was born of Scotch parents at Killinchy, Down Co., Ireland, 1763; died at Brookfield, near Belfast, Ireland, Hallow Eve, Oct. 31, 1846. William Douglass was a Captain in the Irish Rebellion of 1799 under Theobald Wolf Tone, or Archibal Hanable Bowen. Their children, all born in Belfast Ireland, were:—1st, Jane, b. 1786, married William Gamble and lived to the age of 78; 2nd, Anne, who married a Mr. Dunval and lived to the age of 77; 3rd, Dorcas, who married a Mr. Tripp and lived to the age of 66; 4th, Adam, b. 1790; and 5th, William, b. 1799.

III. Adam Douglass, fourth child of William and Margaret, was born in Belfast, Ireland, Nov. 1, 1790; and died at Laconia Indiana, U. S. A. June 28, 1849. When seven years of age, just after the failure of the Irish Rebellion, he came to the United States with his uncle Adam, but returned to Ireland in 1812. There he joined the Irish Regiment and took part in the Battle of Waterloo (1815), where he was twice wounded and had his horse shot from under him. Soon afterward he returned to America and settled at New Market, Va., where he taught school and did surveying. He wrote two books, one of which, "The Irish Emigrant: An Historic Tale Founded on Fact," was published by John T. Sharrocks, at Winchester, Va., in 1817. On April 27, 1819, Adam Douglass married Nancy Pennebaker (or Pennybaker) daughter of Benjamin, granddaughter of Capt. Dirk Pennebaker of the Revolutionary War, and sister of Isaac Pennebaker, U. S. Senator from Virginia. She was born in New Market, Va. 1834, and died at Laconia, Ind., Nov. 9, 1843. They moved to Laconia, Ind., where both Adam Douglass and his wife are buried in the old Goshen Cemetery one mile north of Laconia on the Corydon road.

1[4] Benjamin Pennebaker Douglass, born 22 July, 1820; died 31 Dec., 1904, at Corydon, Ind; a school-teacher, surveyor and lawyer by profession. For the War with Mexico, 1845, he organized a company of which he was made Captain, but was not mustered into service. He was a representative in the Indiana legislature in 1857; Auditor of Harrison Co., Ind. and the Democratic nominee for State Auditor, 1867; Clerk of Court 1871; Judge of the 3rd Judicial District; member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Indiana; U. Of this marriage there were two children Sallie, b. 26 Oct., 1856, d. in infancy; and Edward Pendleton, b. 31 July, 1858, d. in Leadville, Colo., unmarried.

Benjamin P. Douglass married 2nd, on 2 June, 1863, in Meade Co. Ky., Victoria[7] Boone (b. 11 July, 1838; d. 30 May, 1885), daughter of Hiram[6] Cassel Boone (Samuel[5]; Samuel[4]; George[3]). Their descendants will be given under Victoria Boone, No. 775.

THE EDWARDS FAMILY

I. The first of this line was Hayden Edwards of Stafford Co., Va. who married Penelope Sandford. Before the close of the eighteenth century he moved with his wife to Kentucky, where each died at the age of ninety years. They had been reared in the Episcopal Church, but later became Baptists. They had several daughters and four sons, of whom one was:

II. Benjamin[2] Edwards, born about 1753 in Stafford Co., Va., and died 13 Nov., 1826, in his seventy-fourth year, at his home in Elkton, Todd Co., Ky. He married at an early age Margaret Beal, daughter of Ninian Beal of Montgomery Co., Md. For nearly 25 years they resided at their farm, "Mount Pleasant" in Montgomery Co., Md. about nine miles from the county seat. About 1800 they moved to Kentucky. Benjamin Edwards was a man of excellent mind and of extraordinary force and decision of character. He was a natural orator, and was only restrained by his unconquerable diffidence from becoming a widely known public speaker. Before leaving Maryland, he rose to considerable distinction in public life. He represented the County of Montgomery for several years in the State Legislature of Maryland; was a member of the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution; and was afterwards a member of the first Congress (1794-5) during Washington's second administration. Two of his sons were;

1[3] Ninian Edwards, b. Mar., 1775, Montgomery Co., Maryland; d. 20 June, 1833, in Illinois. He was the first Governor of Territory of Illinois, taking oath of office, 11 June, 1809.

2[3] Elisha Beal Edwards, m. (1) Mary Richardson, by whom he had one daughter:

1[4] Mary Edwards, m. Judge Livingston Lindsay.

Elisha Beal Edwards married (2) Martha Feliciana Upshaw of Virginia. Of this union there were four children, one of whom died in infancy. The other three, who lived to old age were:

2[4] Dr. E. B. Edwards.

3[4] Margaret L. Edwards. Never married.

4[4] Martha Maria Edwards, b. about 1817: d. 1911, when nearly 94 years old. Married Higgason G. Boone (Squire[6]; Samuel[5]: Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 315.

THE FOULKE—HUGHES FAMILY

In 1698, Edward Foulke left Coed-y-foel, a farm on the river Toreweryn, not far from Bala in Wales, and accompanied by his wife and nine children, journeyed to Liverpool, where they arrived two days later, on the fifth of April. There they met "divers others who intended to go the voyage." They all set sail for America on the ship "Robert and Elizabeth," touching first at Dublin. On board were among others Hugh Griffith and family, and John Hugh and family, also from Wales. Edward Foulke left a graphic account of the voyage. They landed at Philadelphia the 17th of July, 1698, some three months after leaving the little home in Wales, and all settled in Gwynedd township, Philadelphia Co. (now Berks), Pa. (Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. 8, page 174-183).

An autobiography of Edward Foulke who came to America in 1698 with wife Eleanor, can be found in "Welsh Settlements of Pennsylvania," by Charles H. Browning, p. 596. The same book states (p. 302) that Edward Foulke was a direct descendant of Edward I. of England, and refers to Burke's "Royal Families," Vol. II; Dwnn's (or Dwin's) "Welsh Pedegrees" or "Visitations," and Dugdale's "Baronage of England."*

Tradition in two distinct branches of the Boone family traces back to one Edward Foulke who came from Wales, as the father of Jane Foulke, b. 1684, whose son John Hughes married Hannah Boone. If this tradition can be accepted the line will be as follows:—

I. Edward Foulke, of Wales, married Eleanor or Ellin Hughes. ("Welsh Founders of Pennsylvania" Vol. I, p. 150, by Thomas Allen Glenn says that Edward Foulke of Gwynedd, Pa., b. 1651, married Eleanor, and had children Thomas, Hugh, Cadwalader, Evan, Grace, Jane, Catherine and Margaret.)

II. Jane[2] Foulke, daughter of Edward and Eleanor, was born 10 Jan., 1684 (Old Style); died 7 Oct., 1766 (Old Style); married Ellis Hughes (1687-1764), son of John Hughes or Hughs (1652-1736) and wife Martha. This marriage, which occurred 5 June, 1713, is recorded in "Abstracts of Records of Radnor Monthly Meeting" p. 290, to be found in the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. The marriage record says that Ellis Hughes was the son of John Hughs of Gwynedd, County of Phila., and that Jane Foulke was the daughter of Edward Foulke of Gwynedd. The ceremony was witnessed by Edward Morgan, Ellin Foulke, Ellin Hughs, John Hughs, Ed. Foulke, Row. Hughs, Thomas

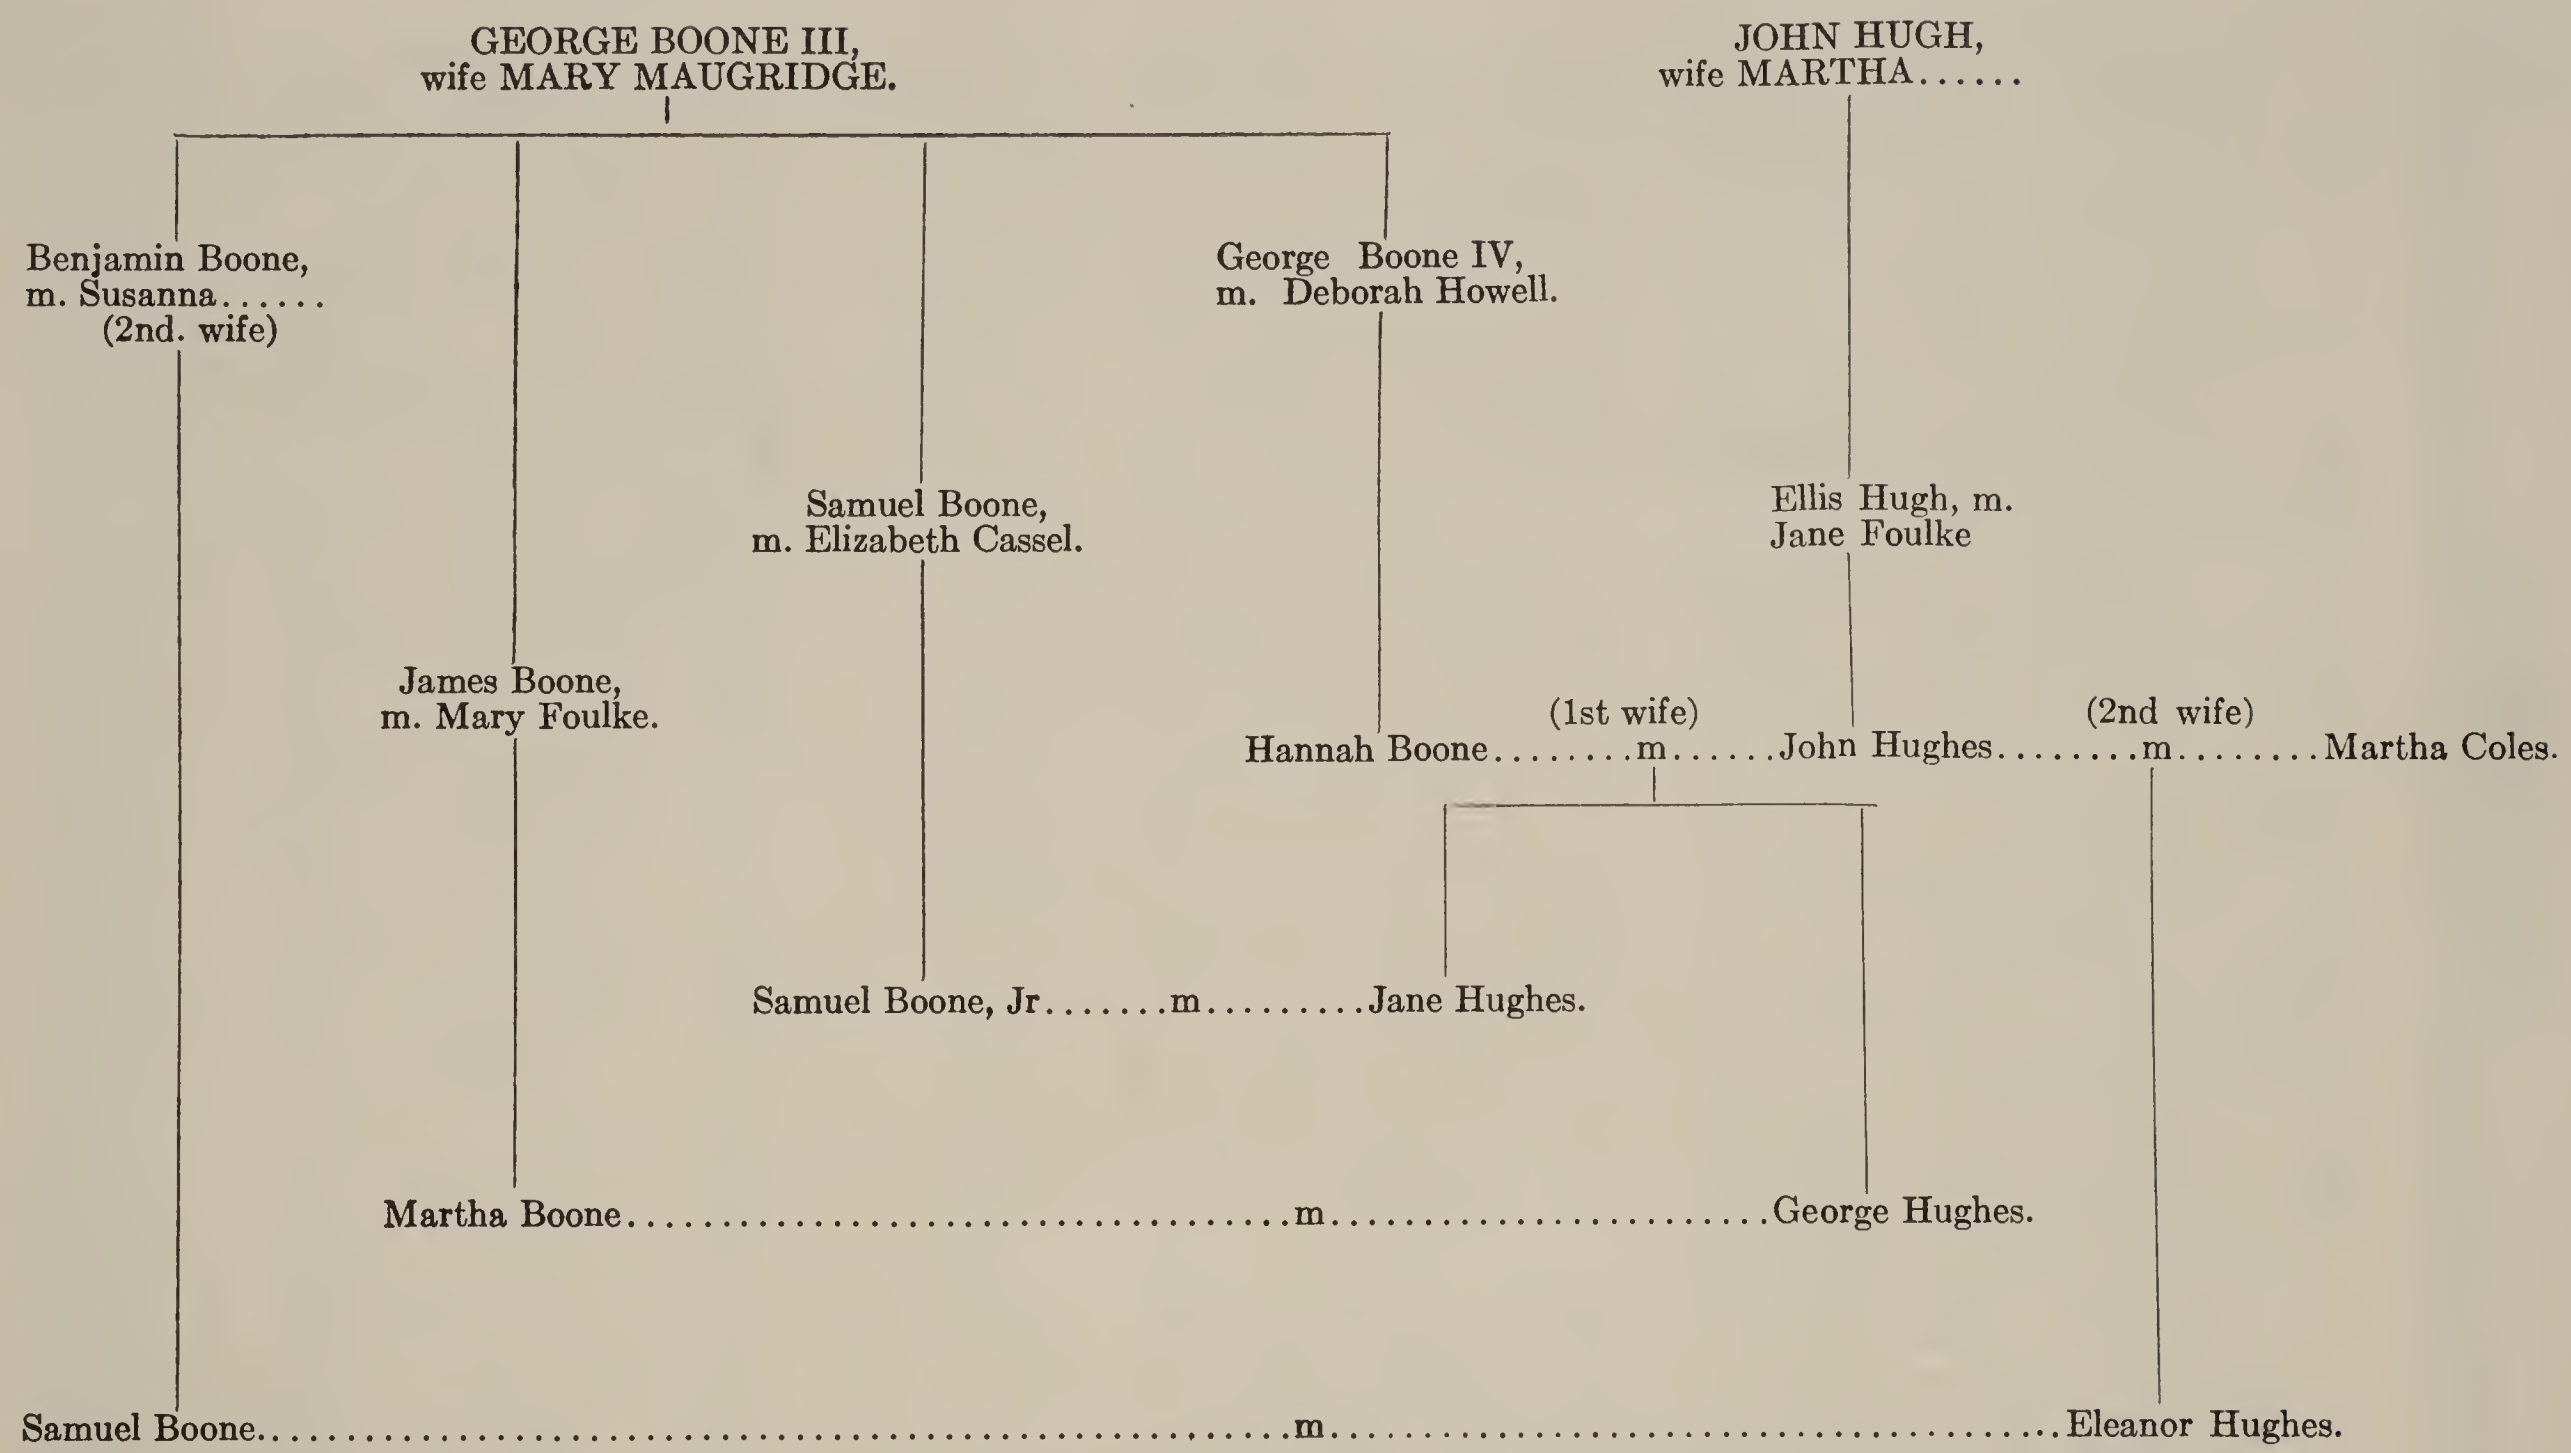
"Edward Foulke, 1651-1741, removed from Coed y Foel, 2 Feb., 1698, to a tract of 700 acres of land which he had bought in Gwynedd tp., Phila Co., with his family. He married Eleanor or Ellin Hughs, daughter of Hugh Cadwalader Rhys of Yspytty, or Spytu parish, Denbighshire, and had by her, who d in 1733, nine children."

Mr. Browning traces the ancestry of Edward Foulke of Gwynedd back through nineteen generations to Edward I, king of England; and that of Edward's wife, Ellin Hughs, back through eighteen generations to John, king of England. (pp. 298-302).



BOONE—HUGHES CHART.

Foulke, Cadwalader Foulke and others. In the records of Exeter Monthly Meeting we find that Jane, the wife of Ellis Hugh, was born in Merionithshire, in the north of Wales, and came to Pennsylvania with her father Edward Foulke and family in about the 14th or 15th year of her age. She was an elder of Exeter Meeting for about thirty years. The approximate date of her arrival in America tends to confirm the tradition that she was a daughter of Edward Foulke. She died at the home of her son-in-law, Samuel Lee, in Oley Twp. Berks Co.

Ellis Hugh (Hughs or Hughes) who married Jane Foulke was no doubt the son of John Hugh who came with his family in the ship Robert and Elizabeth, in company with Edward Foulke and family.

1[3] John Hughes, born 19 May, 1714 (Old Style); died prior to 1766. Married 9 mo. (Nov.) 1742, in Exeter, Berks Co. Pa., Hannah Boone (George[4]; George[3]). Hannah died 8 July, 1746, aged 27, and John married a second time in May, 1748, Martha Coles. Both marriages are recorded in Exeter Records.

For descendants of John and Hannah see No. 12.

We will note here only John's children who married Boones.

1[4] George Hughes, son of John and first wife Hannah, married Martha Boone (James[4]; George[3]). See No. 62.

2[4] Jane Hughes, daughter of John and first wife Hannah, married Samuel Boone (Samuel[4]; George[3]). See No. 58.

3[4] Eleanor Hughes, daughter of John and second wife Martha, married Samuel Boone (Benjamin[4]; George[3]). See No. 44.

Other children of Ellis and Jane Hughes were:

3[3] Rowland Hughes, b. 18 May, 1720; d. 30 Apr., 1738. (O. S.)

6[3] Margaret Hughes, b. 14 Apr., 1726. (O. S.)

Mary Foulke, who married James Boone, son of George Boone III, was born in North Wales, Phila. Co., Pa., 5 Dec. 1714 (New Style).

She was a daughter of Hugh and Anne Foulke. It is not known what relation they bore to the emigrant Edward Foulke. Possible Hugh was a son of Edward, and Mary a granddaughter.

THE GENTRY FAMILY

(This history was compiled from the "Gentry Family in America," by Richard Gentry; with a few additions.)

I. The first known member of this family was called Nicholas Gentry, "The Immigrant" of Hanover Co., Va., and first mention of him is found in "Old Land Books of the Colony of Va., 21 Oct., 1684." He had a number of children, one of whom was a son:—

THE GRUBBS FAMILY

William[1] Grubbs, who died 1775, was the first known member of the family. He married Susanna Hearne, and went to Kentucky from Albermarle County, Virginia, about 1775, with eight or nine daughters and one son Higgason, and made claim for land. William Grubbs died a few days after reaching Kentucky and is buried at Bryan's Station. After his death his wife and children went to Madison County, where Mrs. Susanna (Hearne) Grubbs died later and was buried on Tate's Creek Pike about three miles west of Richmond.

1[2] Sarah (Sallie) Grubbs, married James Berry.

2[2] Elizabeth Grubbs, m. Christopher Harris, a preacher, son of Christopher Harris and his 1st wife Agnes McCord. (See the Harris Family history on p. 531, for his further ancestry.)

4[2] Mary (Mollie) Grubbs, married Robert Moore.

5[2] Susan Grubbs married John Moore.

6[2] Anna (Annie) Grubbs, b. 1766; m. Squire[6] Boone (Samuel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]), a baptist preacher. See No. 86.

9[2] Frances (Fannie) Grubbs, m. Joshua Barton.

10[2] Higgason Grubbs, d. 30 June, 1830; married Lucy Harris, of Albemarle County Virginia, a daughter of James and Mary Harris. (See the Harris Family history for her ancestry.)

The date of the birth of Higgason[2] Grubbs, the only son of William[1] and Susanna (Hearne) Grubbs, is not known. Some time prior to 1780, in Albermarle County, Virginia, he married Lucy Harris, a daughter of James and Mary Harris. (For her ancestry see article on Harris family.) After his death his wife survived him but a short time. He had many land transactions, amassed quite a fortune for those days, and became a prominent and substantial citizen of newly settled Kentucky. He possibly remained in Virginia until after his marriage, and emigrated to Kentucky about 1780, when it was still a part of Virginia and known as Kentucky County. He settled in Madison County, where he lived until his death, with the exception of a few years in Estill County, and possibly some short time in Lincoln County.

The earliest record of his being in Kentucky is found in a deposition in Madison County, given 14 March, 1801, in which he locates a corner tree on a survey. He testified that in October, 1780, while he and Jesse Copher were hunting Buffalo, they camped under a beech tree on which they carved their initials, "H. G." and "J. C." and the date "1780." He also testified that this was the tree called for in the Shelton survey concerned. It seems that he established two forts in what is now

Madison County; Grubbs Station in 1781, on Tates Creek two miles west of Hoy's Station, and Grubb's Station on Muddy Creek. (See Collin's History of Kentucky.) Grubbs' Station was established in the fall of 1791 by a few families under the leadership of Higgason Grubbs. The following summer a crop was raised there, but because of Indian depredations the Station was deserted for a while during the summer, and reoccupied that same fall.

Higgason Grubbs belonged to the Minute Men of Virginia but not to the regular army, and acquired the title of "Captain." No record has been found of his being a commissioned officer, however. The records of Madison County (Ky.) show that he had a good education, writing a good hand and spelling correctly. These records are documents and depositions, which seem to be made in his own handwriting, made while he was surveyor. He was prominent in the early settlement of Kentucky, having rendered this public service:

2. Represented Madison County in the two famous Conventions at Danville (1787and 1788).
3. 1790-91—Member Virginia Legislature from Madison County, Kentucky.
4. 1792—Member from Madison County at the 1st. Constitutional Convention at Danville, called on the 2d of April 1792 to make a Constitution for the new State of Kentucky, which was to be admitted to the Union on June 1st, 1792.
5. In May, 1792, Isaac Shelby was chosen Governor of Kentucky by forty electors who represented the people and who also elected the first Senators, one of these electors being Higgason Grubbs.
6. 1792—He was also a Representative in the first Legislature, which Convened at Lexington.
7. At various times from 1792 until 1802, he was a member of the House of Representatives (Madison County) Kentucky. About the latter date he forced to retire from public life to look after private interests. Records of Madison County reveal that in later years he lost most, if not all, of the wealth he had amassed in his younger days.

1[3] William Grubbs.

2[3] John Grubbs, d. March 27th, 1872 in Logan County, Ky., aged about 86; married (1) Lucy Gooch, daughter of Thomas and Lucy (Grubbs) Gooch. She died in Mercer County, Ky. prior to 1819, quite a young woman, John Grubbs married (2) Miss —— Fort; (3) Miss —— Chastien; and (4) Miss —— Morgan.

3[3] Thomas Grubbs (who was the eldest son) m. 28 November 1798, Kate Howard, daughter of Benjamin and Rebecca (Turner) Howard.

4[3] James Grubbs, married Polly Oldham.

5[3] Jesse Grubbs, m. 24 Dec. 1818, Nancy Oldham, a daughter of Captain John and Annis (Rice) Oldham. Jesse Grubbs was in the War of 1812. They moved to Montgomery Co. Ky. and made their home there until their deaths.

The children of Jesse and Nancy (Oldham) Grubbs were:

1[4] Joel H. Grubbs, married Mary Green.

2[4] Mary Grubbs, married Andrew Fesler.

3[4] John Waller Grubbs, b. 19 April, 1821 d. 14 June, 1854; m. 23 February 1843 Minerva[8] Tribble Stoner (Nancy[7] Tribble; Mary[6] Boone; George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]) (b. 17 March 1825; d. 17 September 1906). See No. 1315.

4[4] Thomas Higgason Grubbs, married Eliza Jarman.

5[4] Sarah Elizabeth Grubbs, married William H. Winn.

6[3] Nancy Grubbs (6th. child of Higgason) born 8 June, 1771; d. 22 March, 1835; m. 16 Aug. 1789, William[6] Boone (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). He was b. 22 Feb. 1768 in North Carolina; died 1847. See No. 122.

7[3] Mourning Grubbs a daughter of Higgason and Lucy (Harris) Grubbs, m. Squire[6] Boone (George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 124.

8[3] Lucy Grubbs, a daughter of Higgason and Lucy Grubbs m. ——Barnes. (Col. S. M. Barnes of Estill County Ky., and Thomas H. Barnes of Madison County were grandsons of Higgason and Lucy Grubbs.)

NOTE:—There is record of an old deed made by Higgason Grubbs dated July, 1812 in which he gives the name of his eight children as Nancy Boone, Thomas Grubbs, Mourning Boone, James Grubbs, John Grubbs, William Grubbs, Jesse Grubbs and Lucy Grubbs.

There is also record of a deed dated July 9, 1812, the opening sentence of which is, "I, Higgason Grubbs of Madison County and State of Kentucky, do hereby relinquish all my claim as husband to my wife Lucy Grubbs, daughter of James Harris deceased, of Albermarle Co., Va."

John Grubbs Family

It is a tradition that the head of this family was closely related to William Grubbs who married Susanna Hearne, but the records which might verify this connection have not been found. Family Bible records give the dates of birth, death and marriage of John Grubbs and wife, but nothing of their ancestry.

JOHN[1] GRUBBS, born 26 April, 1751; died 6 Nov., 1819.

Married 21 Dec., 1769, Sarah Hopkins (b. 7 May, 1754; d. 30 June, 1832).

"Dear Son:—

"I embrace the present opportunity of writing to you to inform you we are all in tolerable health at present, thanks to the giver of all our mercies, hoping these lines may find you and yours enjoying the same blessing. I can't at present inform you when I can come down. I want to come with Br. Warder when he comes, if I should be well enough. I saw him yesterday at our meeting and he informed me he expected it would be four or five weeks before he could come down. When I first spoke to him about coming down he said he thought it would suit him to come the first of this present month, but something has transpired that prevents his coming now.

"We have had Br. Walter Warder down with us; he preached at my house and at the meeting house likewise. I went over to our Association and from thence I went to see your Aunt Gillum. I found them in tolerable health, tho' I find your Aunt is often complaining. She would have come home with me but the weather was so catching and wet we thought it would be imprudent for her to turn out, tho' one of her sons came home with me to find the way, and she intends coming as soon as the weather gets cooler. I think it about 30 miles from my house.

"I expect Br. Warder will send an appointment down sometime previous to his coming down.

"John Grubbs."

The children of John and Sarah Grubbs were:

1[2] Susanna Grubbs, b. 9 Jan., 1771.

2[2] Anderson Grubbs, b. 28 Sept., 1773 m. Susanna Winston (b. 10 Dec., 1774), daughter of Peter and E. (Perry) Winston. Susanna was a descendant of John De La Fontaine. (See Va., Historical Collections—Vol. 5, page 141.) In 1824 Anderson Grubbs was living in Virginia and had two sons, John and Peter, and a daughter who was married to a man named Reeves.

3[2] Mary (Polly) Grubbs, b. 16 Oct., 1777. Never married.

4[2] Frances Grubbs, b. 11 Nov., 1780.

5[2] Thomas Grubbs, b. 1786; m. a Mrs. Perkins, whose maiden name was Clopton; and settled near Russelville, Ky. He had a daughter who married Oscar C. Rhea.

6[2] Moody Grubbs, b. 1791; d. 26 July, 1837. m. about 1814, Cynthia[7] Ann Boone (Squire[6] Samuel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]) (b. 1795; d. 1887). See No. 309.

We have the following very interesting tradition concerning Moody[2] Grubbs, which is quoted from a letter written by Mrs. Cynthia Stoddard of Hillsboro, Ill., a granddaughter of Moody and Cynthia (Boone) Grubbs. The letter says in part:—

"The Grubbs family to which Moody belonged came from Tennessee into Kentucky, when he was a young man, and I remember Grandmother telling me about the first time she saw him. She was going to church one Sunday morning and saw a tall handsome young man standing in a group of men. She said to the girl beside her, 'There is my husband!'

"She immediately 'turned down' the young man to whom she was engaged at the time, and set her cap to catch Moody. It wasn't long before she became acquainted with him, for being a kinsman of her mother's he soon came to their home.

"Squire Boone lived not far from Elkton (Ky.) and Grandmother was married there, but I do not know the date. It was a large two-story log house with plenty of room for all that family. I used to beg my father to take me to Kentucky, when I was a child. I so longed to see the relatives there, especially his uncle Thomas Grubbs, who was such a fine old gentleman. He lived in Russelville and had a son who was a noted physician there for years."

7[2] Reuben Grubbs. "In a letter written by Anderson Grubbs of Hanover, Va., dated 3 Dec., 1824, to his brother Thomas Grubbs in Kentucky, he sends love to his brother Moody Grubbs and adds this postscript,

"Rubin (?) sends his love to his brother Tom; says he hopes the Lord has pardoned his sins, and his wife also. If he never should see him in this world again, he hopes to meet him in a better one."

8[2] Lucy Grubbs (Bush) d. April 1820. Death recorded in the family Bible.

THE HARRIS FAMILY

I. The first known member of the family was MAJOR ROBERT HARRIS (born 1630; died 1700), who emigrated from Wales during the period from 1652-1659, and settled on the James River, near Weyanoke, in Virginia. By some it is thought that he was employed in the tobacco house of a man named Rice, who soon died, and that Harris married his widow. At any rate about 1650 he married Mrs. Mary (Claibourne) Rice, whose mother was Elizabeth Butler, and her father, William Claibourne (b. 1587; d. 1676). (a)

(William Claibourne came to Virginia in 1621, and was of royal descent. Through the De Toneys and Cliffords, he was descended from Edward III, King of England, Duncan and Malcom (b), Kings of Scotland, Odin and other kings of Escardia and Eric, King of the Goths 751 B. C. He was appointed Surveyor General at the solicitation of his cousin Ann, Countess of Pembroke. He was a member of the Virginia Council; Secretary of the Colony from 1625-1635, and again from 1652-1660. In 1642 the king (Eng.) describing him as "My well beloved servant," appointed him Treasurer of the Colony for life. Four ancestors of William Claiborne signed the petition demanding of King John the Magna Charta.) (c)

Robert[1] Harris and Mary (Claiborne-Rice) Harris had a son:

II. WILLIAM[2] HARRIS, b. 1652, who also engaged in the tobacco trade. He married Temperance Overton, a daughter of Mary Walters and William Overton, a wealthy tobacco grower, the son of Colonel—— Overton, who commanded a Brigade of Ironsides under Oliver Cromwell. William Harris died 8 Mar., 1687, at the age of 35, and was buried in an old Colonial Church at Weyanoke. A bronze tablet marked his burial place. The church long ago went to ruins, and on 1 July, 1875, the tablet was taken to Norfolk, Va., and placed in the wall of St. Paul's old church. The tablet is engraved as follows:—

who departed this life ye 8th day of March, 1687
Aged 35 years.

On the 1st day of July, 1875, this stone and tablet was brought from Weyanoke, on the James River. It was found among ruins of an old Colonial Church."

1[3] Christopher Harris, I.

2[3] Overton Harris, m. Ann Nelson.

3[3] Major Robert Harris, II, b. 168-; d. between 18 June, 1765 and 8 Aug., 1765. (His will is dated 18 June, 1765 and was probated 8 Aug., 1765.) M. Mourning Glenn. In 1750, he took up land in Brown's Cove, Albermarle Co., Va., and was one of the early settlers on Doyle's River. To him and his wife were born ten children, but we are interested particularly in:—

1^4 Christopher Harris II, m. (1) Mary Dabney, and (2) Agnes McCord. He emigrated from Albermarle County, Va. to Ky., sometime in the period 1780-1790. He travelled over a great part of Ky., and entered lands on the Licking River, but settled in Madison County, where he owned lands on Silver, Muddy, and Downing Creeks, in addition to a large body of land in Albermarle County, Va. He owned a large number of slaves that he had brought to Ky.

(Mary Dabney, the first wife of Christopher Harris, was descended from Theodore Agrippa D'Aubigne, a French Huguenot, born 1550 in France. Her father was Cornelius D'Aubigne or Dabney [d. 1764 or '65]. He was the eldest of three brothers, who after the Edict of Nantes, left France and went to Wales. In 1715 the three brothers emigrated to America and Cornelius settled near Piping Tree Ferry, on the York River in Hanover Co., Va. Mary's mother was Sarah Jennings, the 2nd wife [married Apr., 1721] of Cornelius Dabney. Sarah, said to be the niece of the Duchess of Marlborough, was the daughter of Charles Jennings; granddaughter of Robert Jennings; and great granddaughter of Sir Humphrey Jennings of County Middlesex, England.

(The information contained in this sketch was all taken from the "Ancestry of Abraham Lincoln," by Les and Hutchison.)

For many years nothing was known of the Lincoln family prior to their emigration to this country, from England, in 1637. Later, through the fortunate finding of some old court records, the family history was traced back to:

I. ROBERT[1] LINCOLN, of Hingham Co., Norfolk, England, whose will, dated 1540, was probated 3 Sept., 1543; married Johan (Cowper?). Their son was:

II. ROBERT[2] LINCOLN, of Hingham and Thetford, eldest son and heir of Robert (I); will dated 14 and probated 29 Jan., 1556; m. Margaret Alberye, and had a son:

III. RICHARD[3] LINCOLN, of Hingham, Swanton Morley, and Great Witchingham, eldest son and heir of Robert (II), was under age in 1556; buried 23 Dec., 1620; will dated 3 Jan., 1616, probated 24 Feb., 1621; m. (1) about 1574, Elizabeth Remching, eldest daughter of Richard Remching (d. 1567, buried in Carbrooke Church; Lord of Manor of Carbrooke) and his wife, Elizabeth (d. 1595, at Wymonham). Their second daughter was baptised 23 Sept., 1549, so Elizabeth must have been born at least a year before that. She died soon after her marriage, leaving one son, Edward, and her husband, Richard, married three times more before his death.

IV. EDWARD[4] LINCOLN, second son and heir of Richard (III) (the first son having died), of Hingham, b. abt. 1575; buried 11 Feb., 1640; married and left a son.

V. SAMUEL[5] LINCOLN, of Hingham, England, Norfolk, and Hingham, Mass., the youngest son of Edward (IV), baptised 24 Aug., 1622; d. 26 May, 1690, aged 71; m. Martha ——(d. 10 Apr., 1693). He was apprenticed to Francis Lawes, a weaver of Norwich, probably abt. 1633; sailed with his master to New England in the "John and Dorothey" of Ipswich, or in the "Rose" of Yarmouth. Landed in Boston 20 June, 1637. He had eleven children but we are interested only in:

VI. MORDECAI[6] LINCOLN, the fourth son and child of Samuel (V), b. 14 June, 1657, at Hingham, Mass., where he resided until 1700, when he removed to Scituate. He was a "blacksmith"; m. 1st, Sarah Jones (daughter of Abraham and Sarah [Whitman] Jones, of Hull, Mass.); who died probably soon after their removal to Scituate; m. 2nd, Mary Gannett, a widow, who (d. 19 Apr., 1745, at the age of 79.) Mordecai Lincoln died very suddenly "of an applopexy", 8 Nov., 1727 in his 71st year. Will dated 3 May, 1727, probated 27 Mar., 1728. He had six children, of whom we are interested in:

MORDECAI LINCOLN,
1st wife HANNA SALTER, 2nd wife MARY.....

m. Mary Foulke.

George Boone IV,
m. Deborah Howell.

THE LINVILLE FAMILY

The first of this family of whom we know, was William Linville, whose wife was Ellender Bryan, a sister of Colonel Samuel Bryan, William Bryan and others, and a daughter of Morgan and Martha (Strode) Bryan. (See the "Bryan Family" for a further sketch.)

The Linvilles lived in the Boone and Bryan settlement on the Yadkin, coming to the Yadkin country with the Bryans from Va., but at what time is not known.

William Linville's health became poor, and hoping the change would benefit him, decided to go and keep camp for his son, John, and another young man, John Williams, who were going up into the mountains that fall (1766), to hunt for meat and pelts. They took several horses with them to use as pack animals, and pitched camp some fifty or sixty miles up in the Blue Ridge Mountains, 10 miles below Linville Falls. Just before daybreak one morning, William Linville roused the two young men, telling them he had just dreamed the Indians had come and massacred them. The dream was so real to him that he urged them to hasten to escape, saying he was too feeble to make the attempt. He had scarcely finished talking, and the young men had had no time to make any move toward escape, when the Indians, who must have been in hiding and heard the conversation, poured in a volley of shot. The two Linvilles— William and his son, John— were both killed, and the other young man received a bullet in his thigh. This injured the bone, but did not break it, and in the darkness and confusion he escaped.

Some time after the death of her husband, Mrs. Ellender (Bryan) Linville went to Kentucky to live with her children, and died there about 1792, in Madison County.

William[1] and Ellender (Bryan) Linville had a number of children, the names of those known being:—

1[2] John Linville, who was killed by Indians at the same time as his father.

2[2] William Linville, who went to Kentucky to live, but never married.

3[2] Morgan Linville, who married his cousin —— Bryan, daughter of Colonel Samuel Bryan. He had a son:

1[3] Coleman Linville, who lived near Strode's Station, on Stoner Creek, in Clark County, Ky.

4[2] Nancy or Ann Linville, m. about 1766, George Boone (b. 173–; d. 14 Nov., 1820), a son of Squire[4] and Sarah (Morgan) Boone, and a brother of Daniel Boone. (See No. 27.)

THE MAYBERRY FAMILY

In the library of the Historical Society of Berks Co., Pa., at Reading, there is a small collection of papers on the Boone family, among which are some notes written by Mr. Andrew Shaaber, at one time librarian of the Society. These notes state in part as follows:

> "William Mayberry, father of Margaret, died Feb. 10, 1764. Married Ann ——, who later married Richard Tea. William's father was Thomas Mayberry of Douglass Twp. (died Mar. 10, 1747) and his mother was Sophia ——. The children of William Mayberry and Ann his wife were Thomas, Charles, Andrew (d. unm.), Elizabeth (w. of Peter Ashton, merchant of Reading) and Margaret (m. Geo. Boone). See Orphan's Court, Aug. 27, 1782."

> "Orphan's Court, Aug., 27, 1782. Petition of Peter Aston, Jr., of Reading, Merchant, and Elizabeth his wife, of full age. That Wm. Mayberry father of said Elizabeth, died intestate on or about Feb. 10, 1764, leaving a widow Anne (since married to Richard Tea) and 5 children, to wit., Thomas, Charles, Andrew, Elizabeth and Margaret (now wife of Geo. Boone). That shortly after Andrew also died intestate in his minority, unmarried and without issue. That the said Wm. Mayberry died seized of divers messuages, lands and tenements, situate in the Twp. of Hereford, Longswamp, Colebrookdale and District in Berks Co., of about 3850 acres, whereof Richard Tea and Ann his wife are entitled to 1-3 for life of said Ann. Prays for partition. Court orders such partition, or if not possible, valuation, etc. Note, the property was divided among the heirs."

> "Orphan's Court, Berk's Co., Pa., Feb. 12, 1755; May 14, 1755; Feb. 10, 1757. Thomas Mayberry of Douglass Twp. died Mch. 10, 1747. Wid. Sophia, William a son, and Catherine a daughter of Thomas, the wf. of Charles Jolly; and Dorothy and Thomas minor children. Thomas Mayberry, Sr., had one tract of 80 acres on which is now standing a furnace for smelting iron ore, and 10 other tracts aggregating about 3612 acres."

Combining the above with Boone records, we have:—

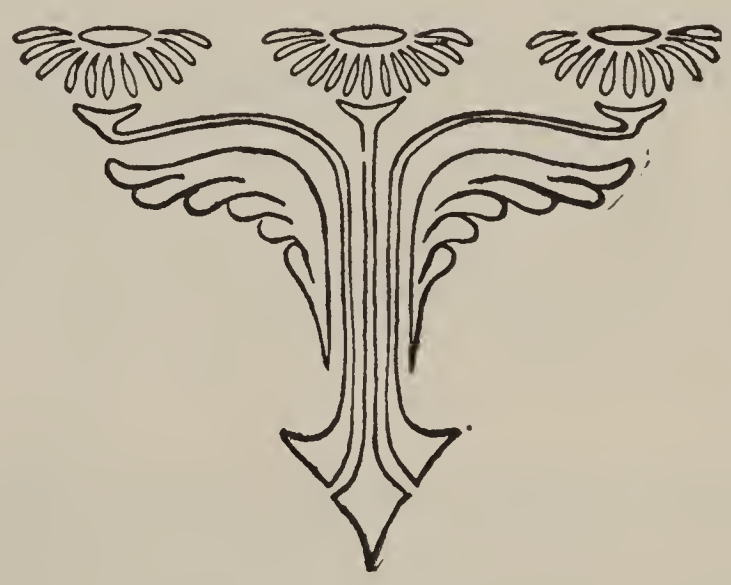
I. Thomas Mayberry of Douglas twp., Berks Co., Pa., died 10 March, 1749. Married Sophia——. Their son:

II. William Mayberry, died 10 Feb., 1764. He married Ann——. Their children were, Thomas, Charles, Andrew, Elizabeth and Margaret, wife of George Boone (William^5; George^{4}, George^{3}).

William Mayberry's widow remarried to Richard Tea, and had a daughter: Ann Tea, d. 23 Nov., 1821; married Thomas Boone (William^{5}; George^{4}; George^{3}).

In connection with the Boone family there is also a Julian or Julia Anne Mayberry, who married Mordecai Lincoln (Anne[5] Boone; James[4]; George[3]). She is mentioned in the will of George Boone (William[5]; George[4]; George[3]) as his daughter Julian Lincoln. Possibly a relative of his wife's whom they adopted. Concerning her there is also a record in the Orphans Court of Berks Co., Pa., page 201 as follows:—

> "Orphan's Court, April 8, 1786, Petition of Richard Tea of Exeter, next friend to Julianna Mayberry, a minor under 14 years, that said minor is entitled to some estate in the lands of Judah Boone, etc. Prays for guardians. Court appoints Charles Mayberry."



THE McCLURE FAMILY

The McClures were a prominent pioneer family of Scotch descent. James McClure, the head of this line, went from Lancaster Co., Pa., to Northumberland Co., Pa., in 1772, and died there previous to 1778. He was several times elected member of the Committee of Safety for Wyoming Twp. Northumberland Co., particularly in 1770; and was one of three men elected to receive powder and lead and distribute them among the Captains of Col. Hunter's Battalion. His farm adjoined that of Samuel Boone (Benjamin[4]; George[3]), whose two daughters married sons of McClure. The homestead was called "McClure's Choice" or "Beauchamp." On this property was built Fort McClure, an important outpost of Fort Augusta, which was at the junction of the two branches of the Susquehanna River, below. On the site of Fort McClure a granite marker was placed in 1907 by the Bloomsburg chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The marker stands about five or six rods from the river in the front yard of the homestead, a part of which is still preserved as a section of a modern dwelling.

Mrs. James McClure, wife of the pioneer was a widow at the time of the Wyoming Massacre which occurred near here, and in which her brother-in-law, Capt. Lazarus Stewart and a nephew of the same name lost their lives. The fugitive Stewarts went on a raft down the river Susquehanna to the mouth of Fishing Creek (near the McClure place), picked up the McClures and went on to Fort Augusta.

Three of the children of James McClure were:—

1[2] Margaret McClure, married Lieut. (later Major) Moses Van Campen, an historic Indian fighter. It was he who built McClure's Fort on his father -in-law's farm.

2[2] Josiah McClure, married 1st, Sarah Boone (Samuel[5]; Benjamin[4]; George[3]), who died 1805; and 2nd, Mary Clark, by whom he had a large family. The will of Josiah McClure was administered in 1842. (See No. 165.)

3[2] James McClure, born 1774; d. 4 Oct., 1850, aged 76; married Susanna Boone (Samuel[5]; Benjamin[4]; George[3]). The D. A. R. Chapter of Bloomsburg Pa., is named for him. He was the first white child born in that section. (See No. 164.)

THE MORGAN FAMILY

Every effort had been made to learn something of the ancestry of Sarah Morgan, wife of Squire Boone, but without any appreciable result.

It is certain, of course, that Sarah's father was Edward Morgan of Gwynedd, Philadelphia Co., Pa., as her marriage record shows that fact beyond all doubt. It is also reasonably certain that her brothers and sisters were the young Morgans whose marriage records, like her own, state that they were children of Edward Morgan of Gwynedd. Beyond these facts there is nothing authentic upon which to base any statement connecting Sarah (Morgan) Boone with any other Morgan family of record.

There is an early record which states that "Edward Morgan and Elizabeth his wife, both free, arrived at Philadephia in the same ship (The Morning Star) from Liverpool, in the 9th month 1683 (20th 9th month)." (Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography, Vol. 8, page 329.)

Another Edward Morgan, recorded in Radnor Monthly Meeting, was born in Merionithshire, Wales, 25 Aug. 1679; was a son of Cadwalader Morgan, and came to Pennsylvania with his parents. (See page 607.)

A third Edward Morgan is referred to by Thomas Allen Glenn in his "Welsh Founders of Pennsylvania," Vol. 2, page 1, in which it is stated that Edward Morgan of near Bala Co., Merionithshire, a tailor, had a son named Morgan who removed to Gwynedd, Pa., about 1700 and was a freeholder of 800 acres of land in Gwynedd; died in Towamencin, 1727, leaving wife Dorothy.

A fourth record of an Edward Morgan is found in "A History of the Family of Morgan, from the year 1089 to Present Times," by James Appleton Morgan, New York (1897-1902). In this it is stated that Edward Morgan was the son of Sir James Morgan, 4th Baronet of Llantarnum, and wife Lady Alice Hopton; that Edward came to America with his sister Sarah, wife of Stephen Beasley, married Margaret—— and had a daughter Sarah Morgan who married Squire Boone. No authority is given for this last statement. In this book the ancestry is carried back through many royal lines to as early as the year 605.

At this late date it seems impossible to determine which, if any, of the above Edward Morgans was the father of Sarah, and hence the grandfather of Daniel Boone. Although his ancestry, his early life and the name of his wife, may always remain in obscurity, we yet have a brief history of the later life and children of Edward of Gwynedd, as given in "Historical Collections of Gwynedd" by Howard Jenkins, page 410. This history of Edward Morgan reads as follows:—

> "The first settler in Gwynedd or its vicinity named Morgan, was Edward. He seems to have been here as early as 1704, as the road upward through Gwynedd, made in that year, was to go as far as his place. He was a tailor by trade, a Welshman by birth, no doubt, and was probably advanced in years when he came. He had lived previously near Philadelphia. In February, 1708, he bought 300 acres of land in what is now Towamencin, of Griffith Jones, merchant, Philadelphia. The tract lay along William John's land, and was therefore on the township line. In 1714 he bought 500 acres more, nearby, of George Claypool of Philadelphia, who, like Griffith Jones, was a speculative holder of Towamencin lands. By 1713 he had apparently moved to Montgomery; in the deed from Claypool he is described as 'yeoman, of Montgomery.'

"Edward Morgan no doubt had several children. His sons probably received and held the Towamencin lands. In the list of 1734, for that township there appear: Joseph Morgan, 200 acres; Daniel Morgan, 200; John Morgan, 100. In 1727, Morgan Morgan of Towamencin, died leaving a will, in which he mentions his wife Dorothy, his brothers Joseph, John and William, his two sons Edward and Jesse (both minors) and his niece Elizabeth, John's daughter."

Jenkins includes in this article a list of seven Morgan marriages, all of which were probably of sons and daughter of Edward Morgan. They were:—

1713 Margaret Morgan, married Samuel Thomas.
1720. Sarah Morgan, married Squire Boone.
1721. John Morgan, married Sarah Lloyd.
1728. Joseph Morgan, married Elizabeth Lloyd.
1731. William Morgan, widower, married Cath. Robeson.

It is also stated in the above history that Daniel Morgan who married Elizabeth Roberts, was a minister among the Friends. He died 6 July, 1773. A memorial concerning him says that he was born in the district of Moyamensing (Philadelphia) in 1691, but that while still young his parents moved to Gwynedd, then just being settled.

A search of the records of Radnor Monthly Meeting to which the Morgans belonged, revealed the following records, in each of which, one contracting party is named as a son or daughter of Edward Morgan:—

3-1, 1713. Marriage of Samuel Thomas of Montgomery, Co. of Phila., and Margret Morgan, dau. of Edward Morgan of the twp. and co. aforesaid; witnessed by Edward, Elizabeth, William, John, Daniel, and Edward Morgan, Jr.

8-27, 1713. Marriage of William Morgan, son of Edward Morgan of or near Gwynedd, Co. of Phila., and Elizabeth Roberts. Witnessed by Alice Morgan, Edd. Morgan, Edd. Morgan, Jr., Daniel Morgan.

9-8, 1721. Marriage of John Morgan, son of Edward of Gwynedd, and Sarah Lloyd, daughter of Thomas of Merion. Witnessed (among others) by Sarah Boone and Squire Boone, Dorothy, Edw. William, and Daniel Morgan.

9-8, 1728. Marriage of Joseph Morgan, son of Edward of Gwynedd, Co. of Phila., and Elizabeth Lloyd, daughter of Thomas. Witnessed (among others) by Squire Boone, Edward Morgan, William, John, Dorothy and Sarah Morgan.

The records of Gwynedd Monthly Meeting contain this marriage:- 9-2, 1718. Daniel Morgan, son of Edward, adjacent Gwynedd, yeoman, and Elizabeth Roberts, dau. of Robert dec'd of Gwynedd, at Gwynedd Meeting House. Witnesses, Edward, William, John, Morgan and Joseph Morgan, and others.

In addition to the above marriages we find, of course, the marriage of Sarah Morgan herself to Squire Boone in 1720. In this marriage the witnesses named Morgan were Edward, Elizabeth, William, John, Daniel, Morgan, Joseph, Dorothy, and a second Elizabeth, the two last named probably being the wives of Sarah's brothers. Other witnesses were Elizabeth Morris (probably Sarah's sister) and Samuel Thomas (probably her brother-in-law). See page 591.

We were unable to find record of the marriage of Elizabeth Morgan to Cadwalader Morris, 1710, which Mr. Jenkins refers to. Morgan Morgan, the brother who witnessed so many of these marriages, was probably married before the Morgans came into this section. The name Elizabeth coming after that of Edward Morgan among some of these witnesses, indicates that Elizabeth might have been the wife of "Edward of Gwynedd."

It has been stated that one of Sarah Morgan's brothers (a son of Edward) was the father of General Daniel Morgan of Revolutionary fame. There seems reason to doubt this, as Daniel Morgan's biographer, James Graham, who wrote "Life of General Daniel Morgan of the Virginia Line" (New York, 1856), states that Morgan's parentage was unknown, and that General Morgan himself never mentioned his family or parents to his friends and associates. It would be interesting to know that these two famous fighters of the Revolutionary period, Daniel Morgan and Daniel Boone, were first cousins, but we have found no adequate proof of this connection.

THE SMITH AND CRUMP FAMILIES

William Smith and his wife Joice Humphrey settled in Montgomery Co., Ky., in 1790. They had five children: George, Daniel, William, Jr., Henry and Enoch. Mr. Smith's wife died and he married a second time, Mary E. Holley of Virginia, by whom he had John, Robert, Elkanah, SARAH, who married Richard Crump, Elizabeth, Mary and Lydia.

RICHARD CRUMP of Virginia was born in 1772, and was married in 1769 to Sarah Smith, daughter of William and Joice (Humphrey) Smith. They settled in Callaway Co., Mo. Richard Crump died in 1828, and his wife in 1839. Their children were:

2[2] Turner Crump, moved to Oregon.
4[2] Richard Crump, died in Boone Co., Iowa; married —— Love. Had son Benjamin who lived in Centralia, Mo.

THE SCHOLL FAMILY

William Scholl of England and wife Leah Morgan were the parents of two brothers who married into the Boone family. The ancestry of William Scholl remains wrapped in obscurity, as careful investigation fails to reveal any definite information concerning it. The ancestry of his wife, Leah Morgan, seems just as difficult to trace.

There is a theory that William Scholl's parents were Peter Scholl and wife Sarah Colyer. Peter Scholl lived in the Raritan district of New Jersey from 1714 to 1731, and then disappeared from that region leaving no trace. Sarah Colyer was a Scotch woman and apparently his second wife. To them were born two children, Deborah, in 1728, and William, in 1731. The family tradition is that William married a Leah Morgan. In Virginia also, appears some record of a Scholl family. From records it is found that as early as 1742, and perhaps as early as 1738, Jaist (or Joist) Hite and a Peter Scholl were associated with each other in the Shenandoah Valley. Hite recruited in New York, New Jersey, and eastern Pennsylvania for his southern colonies, and hence may have induced Peter Scholl to leave New Jersey and settle in the Shenandoah Valley. (a)

There is, however, no definite record to connect this Peter Scholl with the family that we know. It is only the result of an investigation which may prove of interest to Scholl descendants.

To return to William Scholl and wife Leah Morgan, it has been learned that they had several children, who were:— (b)

1^2 Peter Scholl, b. 15 Sept. 1754; d. 11 Sept., 1821, when he lacked four days of being 67 years old; married about 1782, Mary Boone, daughter of Edward Boone and niece of Daniel Boone. For their history and descendants see Mary Boone, No. 132.

2^2 Joseph Scholl, b. 1755; d. 1835; married Levina Boone, daughter of Daniel Boone the Kentucky pioneer. For their history and descendants see Levina Boone, No.104.

4^2 Sarah (Sally) Scholl, m. Samuel Shortridge.

5^2 Elizabeth Scholl, m. Arnold Custer.

6^2 Rachel Scholl, m. David Benton.

8^2 Isaac Scholl.

9^2 Abraham Scholl, b. 1765; d. 1851; married 1st, Nellie Humble, and 2nd, Tabitha Noe. There were ten children by each wife. He related to his nephew Joseph Scholl, Jr., son of Joseph and Levina (Boone) Scholl, that he took part in the Battle of Blue Licks, and that Col. Daniel Boone's wing fought longer than the other two. He also told that Israel Boone, son of Daniel, could have escaped, but stayed to to protect his father and was killed. (c)

Abraham Scholl moved to Illinois in 1816, and died there in Pike County.

Some claim that there were two other children,

10^2 Jacob Scholl, who died in infancy, and

THE SPURGEON FAMILY

This family is distinctive because of the fact that it is the ancestress rather than the ancestor who is of especial interest to us. They do not go back particularly far in point of time, for the first we hear of them is that William Spurgeon came from England as early as 1756, and settled in North Carolina.

In "The Loyalists of the American Revolution" (Sabine), Vol. 2, page 325, it is stated that William Spurgeon of North Carolina was a Major in Boyd's Corps (British). While he was a Tory and British officer, his wife was just as staunch a Whig, and it is because of her patriotism and the assistance she gave General Greene, that any of her descendants are eligible to D. A. R. or S. A. R.

General Greene with but few men and little baggage, took the road from Trading Ford to Martinsville, where he had directed General Huger to meet him with the main body of the army.

When he came to Abbott's Creek Meeting-House, he stopped two or three days to rest his troops and await developments. He selected as headquarters, the house of William Spurgeon, who was in good circumstances, and lived about a mile from the church. Spurgeon was a Major in the British Army, having received his commission about the beginning of 1776 from Governor Martin, and so was not at home "to receive his guest and treat him to the best he had." Nothing daunted, his wife Mary Jane Spurgeon received General Greene and did everything in her power to make him comfortable and give him encouragement, sorely needed in those times.

The first thing General Greene did was to choose his battle ground, should Cornwallis overtake him and force him to fight, telling Mrs. Spurgeon that in that event she must take her children and hide in the cellar until the fight was over. Not having heard anything about Cornwallis' movements since he had left Trading Ford, General Greene became anxious and wished to send out a scout to find out where and what Cornwallis was doing.

Not knowing any other way to get such information, he asked Mrs. Spurgeon if she knew of any one whom he could trust enough to send back to the river to learn about Cornwallis' movements. She told him that he could rely absolutely on her son Joe, who at that time must have been quite a small lad, for in the census of 1790 he was still under 16. On being asked a second time if she thought Joe could be relied upon, she answered, "Yes, Sir, you can put confidence in Joe if he will consent to go—and I think he will." (Evidently the lady was in the habit of being obeyed.)

Joe was called, put on General Greene's own horse—a fine one, and told to go to Trading Ford, and there learn all he could about the British Movements. If he saw or heard nothing there, he was to go up the river a number of miles to see if he could learn something there.

He set off promptly, but could learn nothing at Trading Ford and as ordered went up the river, but with no better success.

Back home he went to tell General Greene how far he had gone, but without getting any information. General Greene, knowing the absolute necessity of having this information immediately, sent him out the second time with instructions, if necessary, to go up the river to Shallow Ford, some 30 miles away. At Shallow Ford Joe found the British were crossing, and he went back as fast as his horse could go to warn General Greene.

At once General Greene set out for Martinsville, reaching there on the evening of the 7th, to find General Huger with the main body of the army had just arrived. (a)

Thus did Mrs. Spurgeon, by her offer to sacrifice her son if it were necessary, serve her country; and her descendants are justified in being proud of her.

We do not know how many children Mrs. Spurgeon had, but we do know of these three:

1³ Eliza Jane Williams, who married William N. Berry (Hettie[7] Boone Copher; Elizabeth[6] Boone; George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 1238.

3² Jane Spurgeon, b. 9 Nov., 1814; d. 27 Apr., 1895; m. 14 Apr., 1833, Haley Brown b. 20 Dec., 1805; d. 9 July, 1866). To them was born:

1³ Henry Clay Brown, b. 9 Apr., 1854; m. between 1875 and 1880 Mrs. Nannie (Berry) Williams (Hettie[7] Copher; Elizabeth[6] Boone; George[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 1242.

THE STONER FAMILY

(Compiled by Miss Bess Hawthorne, LaPlace, Illinois)

Originally the name was Holsteiner, but later was abbreviated.

Peter and John Leonhardt Holsteiner were born at or near Zweibrucken, in what is now Rheinish Bavaria, in Germany. They belonged to a large body of Palatinates, who emigrated to England, and early in 1710, again emigrated to the Province of New York. Here, after hewing out homes in the wilderness, they were robbed of all their lands, by the governor and others, under pretext of unsound title.

They emigrated from Schoharie, N. Y., to the Tulpehocken, Pa., in 1728. In the membership list of the Tulpehocken Lutheran Church from 1743-1745, appear the names of Peter and John Leonhardt Holsteiner. Of Peter, nothing has been found since the mention of his name in the church record. There are some vague traditions that he settled in southwestern Virginia, and that Holston River was named after him.

In March, 1752, John[1] Leonhardt Holsteiner obtained a tract of 300 acres of land in Heidleburg Township, near Millback, now in Lebanon County, from Peter Weiser and others, part of this land being held today, by members of the family bearing the name of Holstein. In this instrument, he appears as Leonard Holsteiner, having dropped the first name, and the "H" out of the second. His wife's name was Barbara. Nothing is known of her, or of the death of either of them, except that they died sometime previous to 1758.

I. Leonard[1] Holsteiner had a number of daughters and two sons—George and George Michael. The county records show, that in 1758, George Holsteiner made application to have the real-estate appraised to him, as his father had died intestate, and he wished to take the land. On 5 June, 1759, George Holsteiner received a deed from Laurence Bausam and his wife, Philipina, the latter being the only one of George's sisters, who appeared to be of age at that time.

II. George[2] Michael Holstein, who later took the name Stoner by which he was ever after known, is of rather more than usual interest to us, because he and Daniel Boone were such good friends and companions. Some writers speak of them as being kinsmen, but so far their relationship, if any existed, has not been traced.

George[2] Michael Stoner, or as he was more familiarly known, Michael Stoner, was the second son of Leonard[1] and Barbara Holstein. He was born in 1748 (b), on the Schuylkill River, near what is now Philadelphia, and was only four or five years old when his parents died.

As a youth, he was apprenticed to a saddler in Hickory-town (now Lancaster) but was not of a disposition to spend his life sitting at a saddler's bench. When about sixteen, following a quarrel with his master, he left his home in Berks County (now Mill Creek, Lebanon County) and went to New River, Va., where he became acquainted with Daniel Boone at a public gathering. This was the beginning of a friendship and companionship that lasted throughout their lives.

These two planned an expedition into the then unknown wilds of Kentucky, and, getting a small party together, arrived at Cumberland Gap without any special adventures, but while passing through the Gap were fired on by Indians in ambush, and several of the party killed. All except Boone and Stoner turned back, but they pushed on, until they came to a section of country which abounded in game. Here they made their first headquarters at a place which later became known as Crab Orchard, so named from the grove of wild crab apple trees found growing there.

It seems that Boone and Stoner separated here, each going his own way. Stoner went on to Louisville (The Falls of the Ohio), where he made a short stay, and then pushed on to the Cumberland River. Down this river he went as far as Nashville, where he met Boone and they went back to Virginia together.

In 1774, Governor Dunmore of Virginia commissioned Boone and Stoner to warn a surveying party in Kentucky of the Indian outbreaks. They made the trip from the Clinch River in Virginia to the Falls of the Ohio, a journey of 800 miles, in sixty-two days.

In the spring of 1775, Stoner joined Boone in marking and cutting out the road to Fort Boonesborough, which he helped build and defend. At the siege of Boonesborough he was wounded, but his uncle, Colonel William (Billy) Bush, held the Indians off so that he finally gained the fort. The Indians wished to take him prisoner instead of killing him, so did not fire on him and Bush.

In 1780, he went on a visit to North Carolina, and took part in the Battle of King's Mountain.

At the Battle of Blue Licks, Stoner was wounded and fell from his horse. He hid in the bushes until next day, when he was rescued by General Logan's forces. He was present at the taking of Vincennes by General Clark, and may have been with him in all his campaigns. He went on a campaign with Hardin, and was out with Logan in 1786. It is thought he went out under his uncle, Colonel William Bush, on Harmer's campaign also.

About 1786, he was married to Frances Tribble, a daughter of Reverend Andrew Tribble and his wife, Sarah Ann Burris. (See the Burris-Tribble Family Sketch.) She was born 3 Nov. 1769; d. 11 May, 1852. (b)

After their marriage, Stoner and his wife settled in Clarke Co., five miles southeast of Winchester, where their oldest child George Washington Stoner, Sr., was born. In 1797 they moved to the Cumberland River in Pulaski County, and eventually to Wayne County, near Monticello.

Stoner's Fork of Licking River was named from Michael Stoner's having made his pre-emption and settlement on that stream, about five miles south of Paris, in Bourbon County.

In about 1808 or 1810, Daniel Boone, who had moved to Missouri, sent word asking Stoner to come to visit him. In the meantime settlers had been coming in too closely and settling too near to suit Stoner, so he tried to persuade his wife to move to Missouri. This she would not do, so he decided to go alone. When he got to Missouri he met Boone and they started up the Missouri River hunting and trapping. Boone took sick and turned back, but Stoner kept on. He went up river 1600 miles above any habitation, part of the time alone, part of the time with company, and once for four or five months he saw no white man. Coming back he visited with Boone, and after two years absence returned to Kentucky. This trip was his last hunt. (d)

He died on 3d September, 1815 (b), and is buried near Monticello, Wayne County, Ky., where his grave was marked only by a crude stone.

To him and his wife were born a number of children, three of whom, and a grandson, all married Boone descendants and reared large families. Their children were:—

(Compiled from "The Descendants of Thomas Durfee of Portsmouth Rhode Island," by William F. Reed, Vol. I.)

I. Peter Tallman, the pioneer ancestor of this family, was a resident of Rhode Island. He married (1st) Ann —— from whom he was divorced, and (2nd) in 1665, Joan Briggs. He was in Newton, Long Island, New York, as early as June 27, 1651; in 1665 was on the roll of Freemen of Newport, Rhode Island; and in Dec., 1658 he bought two pieces of land in Portsmouth, Rhode Island, where he settled permanently. He was a Solicitor of the Colony of Rhode Island in 1661; in the same year and that following was a Commissioner of the towns of Warwick and Portsmouth; and from 1662 to 1665 was a member of the General Court.

II. Benjamin Tallman, son of Peter Tallman and second wife Joan Briggs, was born 28 June, 1684, in Portsmouth, R. I.; died 20 May, 1759, in Warwick, R. I. He married (1st) 23 Sept., 1708, in Portsmouth, Patience Durfee (b. in Portsmouth, R. I.; died 1723 in same place), daughter of Thomas Durfee and 2nd wife Deliverance (Hall) Tripp.

(Thomas Durfee, father of Patience, was born in England, 1643; died in Portsmouth, R. I., July, 1712. He was a resident of Portsmouth prior to 1664; was a member of the Colonial General Assembly of Rhode Island, 1664; was town Constable in 1690, and Deputy in 1691; in 1692-94 was a member of the town council. Name of his first wife is unknown. His second wife, Deliverance, was widow of Abiel Tripp and daughter of William and Mary Hall.)

After the death of his first wife, Benjamin Tallman married (2nd) in 1724, Deborah Cook. His will was proven 13 Aug., 1759; wife Deborah Tallman, executrix. In the will he mentions his wife; sons Benjamin, William and James; daughters Mary Fish, Deliverance Sisson, Patience Tallman, and Sarah Godfrey; and granddaughters Bethia and Freelove Tallman.

III. William Tallman, son of Benjamin Tallman and first wife Patience, was born 25 March, 1720 at Portsmouth, R. I.; died 13 Feb., 1791, on his farm near Harrisonburg, Va. He married 20 Oct., 1740-2 in Berks Co., Pa., Ann Lincoln (b. 8 March, 1725, probably in Chester Co., Pa.; died 22 Dec., about 1812 on the farm near Harrisonburg, Va.), daughter of Mordecai Lincoln and first wife Hannah Salter. (See sketch of Lincoln Family.)

William Tallman was by trade a weaver, although he followed the occupations of inn-keeper and farmer as well. He early settled in Berks Co., Pa., where he bought part of the Lincoln land and others, and was a property owner in Reading, Pa. Later he joined his friends and neighbors, the Boones, Lincolns and Hentons, in their general migration south, and settled near the Lincolns in Augusta Co., Va., now Rockingham Co. The family Bible of William Tallman descended to Benjamin, sole heir, and through him passed down to the great-great-great-grandchildren of first owner in a well-preserved state; later it was much damaged by fire. Originally it contained marriages and other data relating to several generations, being the fullest record found in a single Bible which has come to our knowledge among the Boone-Lincoln descendants. This book and the Friends' Meeting reliable records were the chief sources of information regarding early members of the Benjamin Boone line.

IV. Benjamin Tallman, son of William and Ann (Lincoln) Tallman, was born 9 Jan., 1745, in Berks Co., Pa.; died 4 June, 1820, near Canal Winchester, Ohio; married 9 Nov., 1764, in Berks Co., Pa., Dinah Boone (Benjamin[4], George[3]). Their descendants and history are given under Dinah Boone, No. 45.

THE VAN BIBBER FAMILY

Two brothers, Peter and Isaac Van Bibber, were natives of Holland who came to America before the Revolution and settled in Botetourt County, Virginia. Later they both lived in Greenbriar County, Virginia.

PETER[1] VAN BIBBER, who was probably the eldest of the two brothers, married Margary Bounds, and lived at the mouth of the Big Kanawha River. He died probably before September, 1799 (see page 127). and his widow went to live with one of their sons in Ohio, on the Ohio River opposite the mouth of the Big Sandy. This son was probably the eldest, Peter, Jr., as it is stated in an old record that Nathan Boone, who married Olive VanBibber, went to claim his bride at the mouth of Little Sandy, "where Mr. Peter Van Bibber then lived." (Draper Mss. 6 S 118-254.) The father having died previously, this must have been the younger Peter Van Bibber, with whom his mother and sister made their home. The children of Peter Van Bibber and wife Margary were:—

4[2] James Van Bibber.
7[2] Nancy Van Bibber.
8[2] Sophronia Van Bibber.
9[2] Ellen Van Bibber.
10[2] Olive Van Bibber, born in Greenbriar Co., Va., 13 Jan., 1783; married Nathan Boone (Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 109.

2[2] Peter Van Bibber.
3[2] Isaac Van Bibber, Jr., born in Greenbriar Co., Va., 20 Oct., 1771; married Elizabeth Hays (Susannah[6] Boone; Daniel[5]; Squire[4]; George[3]). See No. 347.
4[2] Rebecca Van Bibber.

The wife of Jesse Boone (Daniel[5] Squire[4]; George[3]) was named Chloe Van Bibber (b. 1772) and is said to have been a daughter of James and Samoa Van Bibber. Her relationship to the above family cannot be stated.

THE VAN CLEVE FAMILY

AARON[1] VANCLEVE, the earliest known member of this family, was of Low Dutch descent, and a native of New Jersey. (a)

In the Court House at Salisbury, Rowan County, North Carolina, is the original record of the deed by which Daniel Boone transferred 640 acres of land to Aaron VanCleve for the sum of 80 pounds, "proclamation money of North Carolina." This deed is dated 21 February, 1764, and was proved and recorded in the April (1764) Court. It is signed by Daniel Boone and Rebecca Boone, who made her mark; witnessed by Thomas H. Holman, Samuel Baily, who made his mark, and Benjamin VanCleve. The County Clerk was John Hiscock. The deed describes the land, which was the first home of the Boones in the "Forks of the Yadkin," and shows the transfer of this tract, on the 29th of December, 1753, from the original grant by the "Right Honorable John" Earl of Granville to Squire Boone. On the 12th of October, 1759, Daniel Boone "Planter" bought this tract from his father for 50 pounds.

At some time Aaron VanCleve must have moved to Kentucky, for we find that in the fall of 1787 (b) Joseph Carman, Vincent Robbins, and Aaron VanCleve started out from some one of the stations, Squire Boone's, Whittaker's or Well's, to hunt buffalo. When they were in west of Drennon's Lick, they unexpectedly met a small party of Indians, who fired on them. VanCleve had a finger and a part of the breech of his gun shot off, but he and Robbins managed to escape, and get to the settlements on the Bullskin and Brashear's Creeks. A party was raised under the leadership of Robbins to pursue the Indians. They went to the spot where Carman was last seen, and finding blood on the ground, followed that trail about 200 yards to a camp where they found Carman's body, dismembered and hung about on saplings. They gathered it up and took it back to Well's Station, his home, for burial.

We do not know who the Benjamin VanCleve was, who is mentioned above as a witness to the deed. He may have been a brother, cousin, son, or possibly the father of Aaron.

Of Aaron's wife nothing is known, but we do know that when they moved from New Jersey into the Yadkin country the family consisted of father, mother, seven sons and one daughter. (a) The name of the daughter and those of two of the sons are known to be:—

1[2] Jane VanCleve, b. 16 Oct., 1749, in New Jersey; m. in the Yadkin country on 8 Aug., 1765, to Squire Boone (Squire[4]; George[3]); and d. 10 Mar., 1829, at the home of her son, Enoch Morgan Boone, "at the mouth of Otter Creek, Ky." (a) For further details see the sketch of Squire Boone (brother of Daniel Boone) No. 29.

2[2] Ralph or Rutliff VanCleve (whose name is given in the two different ways, so it is not known which is correct) had a daughter, Betsey VanCleve, who, when she was about 20, was killed by Indians on the 23 May, 1790, when returning from Church. Miss VanCleve ran over a quarter of a mile before the Indians overtook and captured her. She was tomahawked and scalped, and though still living when found was insensible and died very soon after. A complete description of this Indian fight is given in the sketch on Moses Boone, son of Squire, and a nephew of Daniel Boone. (See No. 139.)

3[2] John VanCleve, (b) married and had at least five children. In the Indian battles of Boone's and Floyd's Defeats, on the 14th and 15th September, 1781 (of which complete descriptions are given in the sketch of Isaiah Boone, son of Squire, and a nephew of Daniel Boone), his wife and two small children were killed. His daughter Rachael, about 18, and her small sister whom Rachael carried in her arms, were captured by the Indians on the first day, but later were rescued, unharmed. Besides these children there was a son Benjamin, then about 10, who, while crossing Floyd's Fork, about two miles from Long Run, at Floyd's Defeat on the second day, fell off the horse into the water. At this place the water was rather deep, but he had enough presence of mind to catch hold of a horse's tail and hold on until safe on the other side. (b)

Some time after the death of his wife, John Van Cleve married a Mrs. Riker, whose husband was killed at this same battle of Floyd's Defeat. (b)

A Biographical Sketch of DANIEL BOONE, the pioneer

JESSE PROCTER CRUMP, one of his descendants

The glory of the first-to-go is as a vanished day!
But yet an urge is in our blood, a faith that conquers fear!
The nation's Soul inherits still from Boone the pioneer!

For a number of years, as one of the descendants of the subject of the following sketch, I have been collecting data for the purpose of preparing a genealogy of his descendants in order that a permanent record might be made for future generations from which they might trace their family history back to the man who was one of the founders of the State of Kentucky, as well as one of the first Americans to settle within the present limits of the State of Missouri.

In the course of my correspondence with various persons throughout the United States, including County officials, Boone descendants and others, I came into communication with Mrs. James R. Spraker, a descendant of Samuel Boone, a brother of Daniel Boone, and the author of the Genealogy published herewith, to whom I turned over my genealogical data concerning Daniel Boone and his descendants, and in addition thereto have prepared the following sketch of the life of Daniel Boone.

Recognizing that the various biographers of Daniel Boone have written a full history of his life as it relates to the part he took in the opening up of a way to, and the settlement of Kentucky, I have, therefore, confined this sketch to such portions of his life as will be of special interest to his descendants, who may thereby be able to follow him from the cradle to the grave without having to read so much that pertains to the part he played in the opening up of the present State of Kentucky and the adjacent territory.

With this end in view this sketch is presented to his descendants in the hope that they may realize the important part taken by him during and subsequent to the period of the War of the Revolution when every pioneer was compelled to carry his musket for the purpose of obtaining food for those dependent upon him and for the additional purpose of defending their lives and homes.

The force and the worth of the character of Daniel Boone are being fully recognized today. The magic of his name inspired the savages of the frontier with awe and the settlers with courage and confidence. His presence and prowess along the border contributed more to the civilization of that section than that of any other man of his time, except Washington alone, who was two years and eight months his senior. It is a fact, susceptible of proof, that a larger number of biographies of

Each Boone descendant should be proud of the fact that he can trace his lineage to a man so prominent in the history of our country, and at the same time should strive to uphold the ideals of the country for which Daniel Boone struggled so long and faithfully.

In the preparation of this sketch I have secured information from,

Daniel Boone

The immediate ancestors of the American Boone family resided in the Village of Bradninch, about eight miles from the City of Exeter, in Devonshire, England. George Boone, the grandfather of Daniel Boone, was born in the year 1666 at Stoak, a village near the City of Exeter. His father had been a blacksmith but he became a weaver. He married Mary Maugridge, daughter of John Maugridge and Mary (Milton) Maugridge, who was three years his junior. This couple, professed Quakers, became the parents of nine children, all born in Bradninch, one of whom, Squire Boone, was the father of the subject of this sketch.

George Boone, with his wife and children, emigrated to America, embarking from Bristol, England, on August 17, 1717, and arrived at Philadelphia on the 10th of October. In April, 1718, he acquired four hundred acres of land by entry and settled in Oley Township, Philadelphia County, now Exeter Township, in Berks County, Pennsylvania; Exeter Township remained a part of Philadelphia County until March 11, 1752, at which time Berks County was formed from parts of Lancaster and Philadelphia Counties, and included Exeter Township. The three original counties established by William Penn at the first settlement of the Province of Pennsylvania in 1682 were called Bucks, Philadelphia and Chester, Lancaster County being formed from Chester County on May 10, 1729.

Squire Boone, son of George and Mary (Milton) Boone, was born on the "Fourth day of the Week, between 11 and 12 in the Forenoon, on the 25th day of November, 1696." The record of the monthly meeting of the Society of Friends, held at the hamlet of North Wales in Gwynedd Township, in Pennsylvania, shows, that > "Squire Boone, son of George, of Philadelphia Co., yeoman, married to Sarah Morgan, daughter of Edward Morgan, of same county, at Gwynedd Meeting House, 7-13-1720." She was a "sister to the father of Colo. Daniel Morgan of the Revolution Rifle Men."

In the year 1730 Squire Boone purchased from Ralph Ashton, by deed dated October 20, 1730, a tract of 158¾ acres situated in his father's Township of Oley, in the then Philadelphia County, on the East side of the Schuylkill River, eight miles Southeast of the present City of Reading and a mile and one-half from Exeter meeting house. In the home established here Daniel Boone was born October 22, 1734. His biographers do not agree on the date of his birth, but the above date is given in his family Bible. This record should be regarded as final and conclusive evidence and should settle the question of the respective dates of his birth, marriage and death. James H. Boone, a great-great-grandson of Daniel Boone, who has the Bible in his possession at this time, says that it was purchased by Daniel Boone several years previous to his death, and was given by him to his third son, Daniel Morgan Boone, who in turn, gave it to his son Daniel Boone, and at his death it was given to his son, the James H. Boone above referred to.

In a sketch of "Colonel Daniel Boone" given in the Missouri edition of "The United States Biographical Dictionary and Portrait Gallery of Eminent and Self-Made Men," published in 1878, (e) Daniel Boone, son of Daniel Morgan Boone states, "that the Bible referred to was the property of his grandfather, Colonel Boone; that the records therein were made under the old hunter's personal supervision up to the time of his death, and that the subsequent records of the family have been carefully kept in the same book, by James Boone, a son of Major Nathan Boone, and is the most reliable record of the family history in existence."

A photographic copy of the family record, as shown in said Bible, is published herewith, the pages being very much worn at this time and the ink faded, due, says Mrs. Lemuel Stevenson, a sister of James H. Boone, to the fact that said pages were taken from the Bible and buried during the latter part of the Civil War, in order that the Union soldiers might not learn the ages of the Boone boys and force them to take part in their depredations against the citizens along the Missouri and Kansas border immediately following the closing of the war. It is impossible, at this time to decipher the names and ages of all of Daniel Boone's children as given in said Bible, but elsewhere in this sketch will be found their names and dates of birth taken from the "Biographical Dictionary" (e) hereinbefore referred to, the writing in said Bible being perfectly legible at the time of the writing of the "Biographical Dictionary" sketch from which we have secured the information relative to the dates of birth of the Boone children, and in addition thereto, have interviewed many of the Boone descendants and procured a verification of the dates hereinafter given.

The records of the Exeter Monthly Meeting show that Daniel, son of Squire and Sarah Boone, was born "8-22-1734"; this being Julian or Old Style of reckoning time, the first month of the year being March, the eighth month would be October, making the date of his birth October 22, 1734, same as shown in his Bible. The Gregorian Calendar, or New Style, was adopted in 1582,* but the year 1700 being a leap year in the *1582 was the year in which the New Style calendar was established by Papal decree in the Catholic countries of Europe. It was not adopted by Great Britain and her Colonies until Sept., 1752.

Julian calendar and a common year in the Gregorian, the difference in the styles during the eighteenth century was eleven days. (Am. Encyclopedia Britannica, 9th Edition Vol. II, page 1227.) Hence by setting the Old Style date forward eleven days gives the New Style date of Daniel Boone's birth as November 2, 1734, the date given by several of his biographers.

Squire Boone retained his land in Philadelphia County until April 11, 1750 on which date he conveyed it to William Mogridge, and with his family of eleven children moved to North Carolina and settled on the banks of the Yadkin River near Holman's Ford, in what was then Rowan, but now Davidson County; the home of the Boone family being on a high hill overlooking the Yadkin River at a point about eight miles from Wilkesboro. The cabin occupied by them has been rebuilt by the "Daniel Boone Memorial Association of North Carolina," which Association was created by act of the General Assembly of North Carolina in the year 1909, "with power to purchase and hold lands and other property, to erect suitable memorials, to solicit and collect funds, together with historical materials, and to do all such things as are necessary to perpetuate the memory of the life of Daniel Boone in North Carolina." At the time of the removal of Squire Boone, with his family, to North Carolina Daniel was sixteen years of age and helped in the working of his father's farm and in the family smithy, for his father being a weaver and farmer was also a blacksmith.

It was while living here that Daniel Boone received a common school education; from an inspection of letters written by him we find that he became a good penman, but was deficient in spelling, a deficiency common with the men of his generation, Daniel's study hours having evidently been spent in the pursuit of the game which abounded in his neighborhood, rather than in the study of books. Daniel Bryan in a letter to Lyman C. Draper under date of February 27, 1843, states that Daniel Boone "never took any delight in farming or stock raising but followed hunting until he grew to manhood; he was about five feet eight or nine inches high, stout, strong made, light hair, blue eyes, yellow eye brows, wide mouth, thin lips, nose a little on the Roman order." (k, 22 C 22)

We find no record of the doings of Daniel Boone after the removal of the family to North Carolina, until the year 1755, when the British General, Edward Braddock, with George Washington upon his staff, attempted to drive the French and Indians from Fort Duquesne, in Pennsylvania. In the army under Braddock was a company of North Carolina frontiersmen under command of Captain Edward B. Dobbs; Daniel Boone was a member of this company as a wagoner and blacksmith, he being at that time in the twenty-first year of his age. The engagement with the French and Indians resulted in the complete routing of Braddock's forces on July 9, 1755, many of the Colonial and British troops, as well as Braddock himself, being killed. Daniel Boone escaped on the back of one of his wagon horses.

A few years before Squire Boone moved to North Carolina, one Morgan Bryan, with a family of seven sons and one daughter, all grown, moved from Virginia to North Carolina and settled in the forks of the Yadkin River, at a place which was afterwards called "Bryan's Settlement." (k, 22C 22.)

Joseph Bryan, the eldest of these sons, had several children, among whom were Rebeccah and Martha. Rebeccah, born January 9, 1739, became the wife of Daniel Boone; Martha became the wife of Edward Boone brother of Daniel. William Bryan, the sixth son of Morgan Bryan, married Mary Boone, sister of Daniel, the Boones and Bryans thus establishing a relationship from which have sprung numerous descendants now living in all parts of the United States.

In order to settle the question of the parentage of Rebeccah Bryan, concerning which Boone's biographers do not agree, we will endeavor to state sufficient facts with reference thereto so that no doubt may remain in the minds of his future biographers. Daniel Bryan, in his letter hereinbefore referred to, states that "Daniel Boone married Rebecka Bryan, daughter of Joseph Bryan." Daniel Bryan, was a nephew of said Joseph Bryan and a son of William Bryan who married Mary Boone, and was given the name "Daniel" for Daniel Boone, the brother of his mother, Mary (Boone) Bryan. His testimony therefore should be taken as conclusive.

From Draper Mss. 22-S-241, we find that "Samuel Boone, son of George Boone, who was a brother of Col. D. Boone, born in Hoy's Station, Madison County, Kentucky, Jan. 15, 1782," makes this statement: "Jos. Bryan, the father-in-law of Col. Daniel Boone, was a tall raw boned man—an old man when informant saw him about 1797."

From Draper Mss. 19-C-120, we find that Enoch M. Boone, born in Boonesborough October 16, 1777, son of Squire Boone a brother of Daniel Boone, states: "Old Joseph Bryan, Mrs. Daniel Boone's father, in 1798 rented Wells' Station in Shelby—in a year or so he and his family, two sons and a son-in-law, bought land on Floyd's Fork in Shelby County and there settled, and there old Joseph Bryan died about 1805."

By deed dated April 6, 1804, we find that one Mordecai Redd conveyed to Joseph Bryan a certain tract of land on Floyd's Fork, then in Jefferson County, said land now being in Oldham County which county was cut off of the Northeast corner of Jefferson County, in 1820. The deed therefor being shown of record in Jefferson County in Deed Book 7, at Page 178, bearing out the above statement of Enoch M. Boone as to the purchase by Joseph Bryan of land on Floyd's Fork. Filson's "Map of Kentucke," drawn by John Filson in the year 1784, shows Floyd's Fork as a tributary of Salt River running in a Southerly direction from the North central portion of the then Jefferson County. DANIEL BOONE'S RECEIPT FOR SHARE OF THE ESTATE OF JOSEPH BRYAN

Filson states: "While this Work shall live let this Inscription remain a Monument of the Gratitude of the Author to Col's Dan'l Boon, Levi Todd & Jas. Harrod, Capt's Christ'r Greenhoop, In'o Cowan & Wm. Kennedy Esq'rs of Kentucke: for the distinguished Assistance with which they have Honord him in its Composition: & a testimony that it has received the Aprobation of those whom he justly Esteems the best qualified to Judge of its Merit."

The Last Will and Testament of Joseph Bryan was probated in Jefferson County, Kentucky, on March 4, 1805; in said will he bequeaths to his wife Alee, "A gray mare, a bed and furniture and thirty dollars, either cash or property;. * * * I also give and bequeath unto my daughters MARTHA BOON and REBEKAH BOON the sum of twenty dollars each, either cash or property.*" With the papers of said estate is found the following receipt:

"Received of Joseph Bryan, of Kentucky, Jefferson County, Twenty Dollars, it being the full amount of the estate left to me by Joseph Bryan, deceased, of the same State and County aforesaid.
Test: Stephen W. Callaway. (Signed) DANIEL BOONE."

Daniel Boone and Rebeccah Bryan were married August 14, 1756, the ceremony being performed by Squire Boone who was then a Justice of the Peace for Rowan County, North Carolina. Their children were:

I. James, born May 3, 1757.
II. Israel, born January 25, 1759.
III. Susannah, born November 2, 1760. (In the "Biographical Dictionary" [e] the date of the birth of Susannah Boone is given as November 2, 1760, while the Boone Bible gives the date as November 3, 1760; the Bible plainly shows that the day of her birth has been written in different ink from the original writing and the date changed. We, therefore, conclude that the date of her birth given in the "Biographical Dictionary" [e] is the correct one.)
IV. Jemima, born October 4, 1762.
V. Levina, born March 23, 1766.
VI. Rebecca, born May 26, 1768.
VII. Daniel Morgan, born December 23, 1769.
VIII. Jesse Bryan, born May 23, 1773.
IX. William, born in June, 1775. Died in infancy.
X. Nathan, born March 2, 1781.

For a short time after their marriage Daniel and Rebecca occupied a log cabin on his father's farm, but they soon acquired land of their own lying upon Sugar Tree, a tributary of Dutchman's creek, in the Bryan settlement, a few miles North of Squire Boone's. Here they lived for several years.

About the year 1759, the Yadkin valley was raided by Cherokee Indians and some of the Yadkin families, including Daniel and Rebecca Boone and their two sons, James and Israel, removed to Culpepper county in Eastern Virginia. There Daniel was employed with his wagon in hauling tobacco to Fredericksburg, the nearest market town. (i).

In the year 1760 Daniel Boone became a member of a regiment of several hundred North Carolinians led by Colonel Hugh Waddell, that took part in the war against the Cherokees which brought about the treaty of peace which was signed November 19, 1761. Subsequent to the signing of the treaty he brought his family back to the Yadkin region.

In Peck's Life of Daniel Boone (f) we find that, "Immediately upon this adjustment of Indian affairs, several companies of hunters from Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Carolina, hearing of the abundance of game in the valleys along the head waters of the Tennessee River, penetrated the wilderness in their favorite pursuit. At the head of one of these companies was Daniel Boone, from the Yadkin settlements, who ranged through the valleys on the head waters of the Holston, in the southwestern part of Virginia. In 1764 we find him, with another company of hunters, on Rock Castle, a branch of Cumberland River within the present boundaries of Kentucky, employed, as he stated, by a party of land speculators, to ascertain and report concerning the country in that quarter."

In 1765 he explored as far South as Pensacola, Florida, but was dissuaded by his wife from settling there. (j)

"In 1767, a backwoods hunter by the name of John Finley, with a few others like himself, made an excursion farther west than the previous hunting parties had gone, upon the waters of Kentucky River, where he spent the season in hunting and trading with the roaming bands of Indians. Their course lay through a portion of Tennessee, where every thing grand and picturesque in mountain scenery, or romantic and delightful in deep and sheltered valleys existed. They found an exuberant soil, from which sprang giant forests. They saw the rich cane brakes of Kentucky. To the hunter here seemed a terrestrial paradise, for it abounded with all kinds of game." (f)

Upon Finley's return a party of six was formed for the purpose of exploring the country through which Finley had hunted. The party included Finley, Boone, a brother-in-law of Boone's named John Stewart, and three other Yadkin settlers, Joseph Holden, James Mooney and William Cooley.

The earliest authentic account of Daniel Boone is a brief sketch of a portion of his life, from 1769 to 1783, which was published in 1784 by John Filson, who wrote it from the statements of the old pioneer, though it purports to be in the first person. In this sketch we find, in the language of Filson, to whom Boone dictated this part of his life: "It was on the first of May in the year 1769, that I resigned my domestic happiness for a time, and left my family and peaceable habitation on the Yadkin River, in North Carolina, to wander through the wilderness of America, in quest of the country of Kentucky." (f)

In December, 1769, the party above referred to divided into smaller groups for convenience in hunting and exploring. Boone and Stewart formed one group, and on the 22d of the month they were made prisoners by a band of Shawnee Indians and were compelled to guide the Indians to their camp, where the Indians made prisoners of the rest of the party and plundered the camp of every thing they had, after which Boone and his entire party were released and ordered to leave at once. They were told by the Indians that they were trespassing on lands which belonged exclusively to the red men. Finley, Cooley, Mooney and Holden started for home, but Boone and Stewart refused to leave and decided to follow the Indians in an effort to recover their property. They succeeded in entering the Shawnee camp and secured four horses, but were again captured two days later. After being prisoners seven days they escaped; taking with them their guns and ammunition they continued hunting and in January, 1770, were joined by Squire Boone, brother of Daniel, and another hunter named Alexander Neely, who had left the settlements on the Yadkin for the purpose of finding Daniel Boone and his associates, and had brought with them supplies of powder and lead.

The two Boones, Stewart and Neely continued their hunting; Daniel Boone and Stewart hunting together, separating during the day to meet at nightfall. One evening Stewart failed to appear at the appointed place whereupon the balance of the party made search for him, but were unable to find him. Five years afterward, while Boone was on a hunting trip in the same vicinity, he discovered in a hollow tree, a few human bones and a powder horn marked with Stewart's name. Soon after Stewart disappeared, Neely started home leaving the two Boones. On the first day of May, 1770, Squire Boone left Daniel and returned to the Yadkin settlements with the furs they had collected. Squire returned in July and they spent some time in hunting and exploring. Squire again went home in October but returned before the end of the year; he and Daniel remained until the following March, 1771, when they started on their homeward journey with their pelts. On this journey they were captured by a band of Indians and robbed of all they possessed, but were permitted to proceed without further molestation. Daniel having been away from his family nearly two years, found, upon reaching home, that he had another son, Daniel Morgan Boone, born December 23, 1769, just seven months and twenty-two days from the day he started on the trip with Finley and his party.

"For two and a half years after his return Boone quietly conducted his little farm, and, as of old made long hunting trips in autumn and winter, occasionally venturing, some times alone, some times with one or two companions, far west into Kentucky, once visiting French Lick, on the Cumberland, where he found several French hunters. There is reason to believe that in 1772 he moved to Wautaga Valley, but after living there for a time went back to the Yadkin. Early in the following year he accompanied Benjamin Cutbirth and others as far as the present Jessamine County, Kentucky, and from this trip returned fired with quickened zeal for making a settlement in the new country.

"The spring and summer were spent in active preparations. He enlisted the co-operation of Captain William Russell, the principal pioneer in the Clinch Valley; several of the Bryans, whose settlement was now sixty-five miles distant, also agreed to join him; and five other families in his own neighborhood engaged to join the expedition.

"The Bryan party numbering forty men, some of them from the Valley of Virginia and Powell's Valley, were not to be accompanied by their families, as they preferred to go in advance and prepare homes before making a final move. But Boone and the other men of the upper Yadkin took with them their wives and children; most of them sold their farms, as did Boone. Arranging to meet the Bryan contingent in Powell's Valley, Boone's party left for the West on September 25, 1773—fifty-six years after old George Boone had departed from England for the Pennsylvania frontier near Philadelphia, and twenty-three years after the family had set out for the new south west frontier on the Yadkin." (i)

Proceeding on their journey they were not molested until the tenth of October, 1773, when they were approaching a pass in the mountains called Cumberland Gap; the young men who were engaged in driving the cattle had fallen in the rear of the main body, were assailed by a party of Indians and six of their number killed, including James Boone, the eldest son of Daniel Boone. This so discouraged the company that all, except Boone and his family, returned to their former homes, while Boone and his family retraced their steps forty miles and stopped at Blackmore's Fort on the Clinch River in the south western part of Virginia.

In the autobiography dictated by Daniel Boone to John Filson, and published in 1784, Boone says:

> "I remained with my family on Clinch until the 6th of June, 1774, when I and one Michael Stoner were solicited by Governor Dunmore of Virginia to go to the falls of the Ohio to conduct into the settlements a number of surveyors that had been sent thither by him some months before; this country having about this time drawn the attention of many adventurers. We immediately complied with the Governor's request, and conducted in the surveyors, completing a tour of eight hundred miles, through many difficulties, in sixty-two days.
> "Soon after I returned home, I was ordered to take the command of three garrisons during the campaign which Governor Dunmore carried on against the Shawanese Indians; after the conclusion of which, the militia was discharged from each garrison, and I, being relieved from my post, was solicited by a number of North Carolina gentlemen, that were about purchasing the lands lying on the South side of Kentucky River, from the Cherokee Indians, to attend their treaty at Wataga, in March, 1775, to negotiate with them, and mention the boundaries of the purchase. This I accepted; and, at the request of the same gentlemen, undertook to mark out a road in the best passage from the settlement through the wilderness to Kentucky.

"I soon began this work, having collected a number of enterprising men, well armed. We proceeded with all possible expedition until we came within fifteen miles of where Boonesborough now stands, and where we were fired upon by a party of Indians that killed two, and wounded two of our number. This was on the 20th of March, 1775. Three days after we were again fired upon and had two men killed and three wounded. Afterward we proceeded on to Kentucky River without opposition and on the first of April began to erect the fort Boonesborough at a salt lick, about sixty yards from the river, on the south side.

"On the fourth day the Indians killed one of our men. We were busily employed in building this fort until the fourteenth day of June following, without any further opposition from the Indians; and having finished the works, I returned to my family on Clinch.

"In a short time I proceeded to remove my family from Clinch to this garrison, where we arrived safe, without any other difficulties than such as are common to this passage; my wife and daughter being the first white women that ever stood on the banks of Kentucky River."

When Boonesborough was organized as a town, Boone was made one of the trustees, and was also one of the six delegates elected from Boonesborough, on May 23, 1775, "for the purpose of legislation, or making and ordaining laws and regulations for the future conduct of the inhabitants" of Transylvania (a. Vol. 2 pg. 501.) a tract of land purchased from the Cherokee nation by a company formed by Colonel Richard Henderson, comprising more than one-half of the present State of Kentucky. (a. Vol. 2 pg. 337).

While Boonesborough was not the first town in Kentucky we find that in June, 1774, Boone assisted in laying off the first inhabited town at Harrodstown, now Harrodsburg, on a fork of Salt River, now in Mercer county, he being, at that time, on his trip with Michael Stoner, hereinbefore referred to.

On July 14, 1776, Boone's second daughter, Jemima, together with Elizabeth and Frances Callaway, daughters of Colonel Richard Callaway, were captured by a band of Indians while they were in a canoe on the Kentucky River within sight of Boonesborough. They were followed by Boone and a party of men from the fort, and were rescued on the following day. One of the men in this party was Samuel Henderson, who was married on August 7, 1776, at Boonesborough, to Elizabeth Callaway, one of the girls who was captured. Their first child, Fanny, born May 29, 1777, was the first white child of parents married in Kentucky. Another member of the pursuing party was Flanders Callaway, who afterwards married Jemima Boone.

Boone's life, for several years after this, was occupied in protecting the settlers from the Indians. Boonesborough was attacked on April 15, 1777, and again on the following fourth of July. So disastrous were the Indian hostilities that year that only three of the settlements proved permanent—Boonesborough with twenty-two men; Colonel Harrod's fort, or Harrodsburgh, with sixty-five, and Logan's fort with fifteen.

On January first, 1778, Boone with a party of thirty men, went to Blue Licks, on Licking River, to make salt for the different garrisons; on the 7th day of February, Boone while hunting to procure meat for the party, was captured by Indians; on the following day they took him to the Licks where twenty-seven of the party of salt makers who remained there, surrendered to the Indians. The entire party, as prisoners, were taken by the Indians to Old Chillicothe, the principal Indian town on the Little Miami where they arrived on the 18th day of February. On the 10th of March, Boone and ten of his men were taken by the Indians to Detroit, where they "were treated by Governor Hamilton, the British Commander at that post, with great humanity." The men of Boone's party were left in captivity with the British at Detroit, but Boone was brought back to Old Chillicothe on April 25, 1778. Here he was adopted into the family of the Indian chief, Black Fish, and on June first, was taken by the Indians to the salt springs on the Scioto river and kept there ten days making salt. On their return to Chillicothe, Boone, learning that the Indians were preparing to march against Boonesborough, escaped and arrived at Boonesborough on June 20, 1778, after an absence of four months, and found that his wife, having given him up for dead, had returned with her family, including her son-in-law, William Hays, to her childhood home upon the Yadkin. His brother Squire, and his daughter Jemima, who had married Flanders Callaway, a son of James Callaway, a brother of Colonel Richard Callaway (K. 24C.119) were the only kinsfolk to greet him. Boone at once proceeded to put the fort in a condition to repel the expected attack.

On August eighth, four hundred Indians under command of Boone's Indian foster-father, Black Fish, appeared before the fort and besieged it until the 20th day of August, at which time they withdrew. Of the garrison but two were killed and four wounded. Soon after this Boone was promoted from Captain to Major.

In the Fall of 1778, he went to his family in North Carolina, but returned with them to Boonesborough in the summer of 1779. In December, 1779, Boone's cousin, William Scholl, with his family, from Shenandoah County, Virginia, joined Boone at Boonesborough (k. 23C. 104 & 106). In the year 1779, the legislature of Virginia appointed a commission to settle Kentucky land claims, at which time Major Boone was commissioned by certain settlers to purchase land warrants from the State Government of Virginia, and for this purpose set out for Richmond in the Spring of 1780. With his own money and the additional funds entrusted to him for that purpose, he carried twenty thousand dollars in depreciated paper money, but was robbed of the entire sum while on his way.

The writer has the original receipt given by Boone to his son-in-law William Hays, for money deposited by him with Boone at this time, which reads as follows:

> "February 10th, 1780. Received of Wm. Hays Fore Hundred & Eight Pounds for to bring a Warant for a settlement of Premtion a Laying on the North Forke of Licking.
> (Signed) Daniel Boone."

Boone was criticized by some of his neighbors who had entrusted their money to him, but some of them remained loyal to him, among whom was Colonel Thomas Hart, who, in a letter to his brother, Captain Nathaniel Hart, under date of August 3, 1780, absolved Boone from all blame and states: "I have known Boone in times of old, when poverty and distress held him fast by the hand; and in these wretched circumstances, I have ever found him of a noble and generous soul, despising everything mean; and therefore I will freely grant him a discharge for whatever sums of mine he might have been possessed of at that time." (b. page 29)

In the Western District of Virginia, prior to 1776, there were only seven original counties, one of said number being Fincastle County, out of which Kentucky County was taken on December 31, 1776. On November 1, 1780, the County of Kentucky was divided into three counties, viz: Jefferson, Lincoln and Fayette—Daniel Boone being named as Lieutenant-Colonel of Fayette County. He was also a Deputy Surveyor of said County, serving under Colonel Thomas Marshall, surveyor.

In 1779, soon after Boone's return to Boonesborough, he moved his family to a new location on the banks of Boone's Creek across the Kentucky River at a point several miles Northwest of Boonesborough. Here he built a log house, which was called Boone's Station, within the then limits of Fayette County; said station being located near the present site of the town of Athens in the present Fayette County. Soon after he reached here he was joined by Edward and Samuel Boone, and his son-in-law, William Hays, with their families.

In the Fall of the year 1775, William Bryan, brother-in-law of Daniel Boone, with three of his brothers and several neighbors, left the settlement at the forks of the Yadkin River in North Carolina, to explore Kentucky with the intention of selecting lands on which to settle. They spent a short time at Boonesborough and then returned to North Carolina to make preparations to return to Kentucky to plant corn before moving their families. (k.22 C.22.)

miles North of Boonesborough" (k.22, C.22) on the North fork of the Elkhorn River, five miles Northeast of the present site of Lexington in Fayette County, where they cleared sixty acres and planted corn. Leaving two men to care for the corn, they returned to North Carolina to bring their families to Kentucky in the fall following, but the Cherokee Indians at that time had commenced war against the frontier of Virginia and North and South Carolina, which prevented the Bryans' return to Kentucky, until April 1779, when they were again at the Bryan camp; they "erected a small fort and put in a crop of corn, then returned to North Carolina to move the family to Bryan's Station," (k.22 C.22) leaving several men, including Samuel Bryan and William Grant, who had married a sister of Daniel Boone, with their respective families, to protect the fort. In the summer of 1779, William Bryan, with his brothers, Joseph, Morgan and James, and their families, and a number of their neighbors, all emigrated to Kentucky and settled at Bryan's Station, where they built a number of cabins and enlarged the fort. Collins History of Kentucky, Vol. 2, page 186, says:

> "Bryan's Station, about five miles Northeast of Lexington, was settled by the Bryans in 1779, In 1781, Bryan's Station was much harassed by small parties of Indians."
> "This was a frontier post, and greatly exposed to the hostilities of the savages. It had been settled in 1779 by four brothers from North Carolina, one of whom, William, had married a sister of Colonel Daniel Boone."

> "Bryan's Station established on the South bank of the North fork of the Elkhorn, about five miles Northeast of Lexington. This colony consisted principally of immigrants from North Carolina, of whom the Bryans were the most conspicuous. There were four brothers of this family: Morgan, James, William and Joseph, all men in easy circumstances with large families of children approaching maturity. William, though not the eldest, was the natural leader of the party. His wife was the sister of Boone, as was also the wife of William Grant, another member of this settlement. The station early fell a victim to the hostility of the savages."

In December, 1779, and January, 1780, the Commissioners appointed by Virginia to settle land claims, held their court at Bryan's Station, at which time it was found that the station land was within the limits of a survey made in July, 1774, for William Preston, then surveyor of Fincastle County, Virginia. This finding resulted in the Bryans losing title to the land occupied by them.

In the month of May, 1780, William Bryan, one of the four brothers who had founded Bryan Station, was killed by Indians while he was out hunting with eleven other men from the Station in quest of meat for the use of their families. With the loss of their lands and the death of their leader, the Bryan's left Kentucky in August, 1780, and returned to North Carolina, where they stayed until the trouble with the Indians had all been settled.

So much has been written concerning "Bryan Station" and its founders that the writer deemed it of sufficient importance to insert in this sketch the foregoing facts pertaining thereto, in order to prove the correct name of the Station and its proper location. The principal testimony being that of Daniel Bryan, son of William Bryan, one of the four brothers who founded the Station.

This Daniel Bryan was born in North Carolina on February 10, 1758, and was twenty-one years of age, when he accompanied his father to Kentucky and Bryan's Fort was first erected. His letter, written in 1843, may be found in Draper Mss. 22 C 5, and should be sufficient evidence to convince all doubters as to the real name of Bryan's Station and by whom, when and where it was founded.

To return to the subject of our sketch, we find him with his brother, Edward Boone, in October, 1780, boiling salt at Grassy Lick in the north east part of the present Bourbon county. While they were returning home Edward was killed by Indians, but Daniel escaped, returning to his station on Boone's Creek where a party consisting of men from several stations in that vicinity, was at once formed for the purpose of pursuing the Indians and avenging Edward's death. With this party was Daniel Boone, his son, Israel, and his nephew-in-law, Peter Scholl, who was the husband of Mary, daughter of Edward Boone. The pursuing party failed to overtake the Indians and returned to their several stations.

In April, 1781, Daniel Boone was elected to the Legislature at Richmond, Virginia, as one of the first representatives of Fayette County.

On the night of August 15, 1782, Bryan's Station was besieged by several hundred Indians and British, the attack continuing for two days; the besiegers being repulsed by aid of men from other stations. On August 19, 1782, the Indians who had besieged the station were pursued and overtaken at the Blue Licks, by one hundred eighty-two Kentuckians under Colonels Todd, Trigg and Boone. The pursuing party fell into an ambush, were overpowered and forced to flee leaving seventy-seven killed and twelve wounded. Boone's son, Israel, was among the dead, he being at that time twenty-three years, six months and twenty-four days old. As soon as the knowledge of the defeat at the Blue Licks reached the fort at Louisville, General George Rogers Clark made arrangements for a formidable expedition into the Indian country, which resulted in the destruction of the principal Indian towns on the Miami and Scioto rivers. This expedition was the last in which Colonel Boone was engaged for the defense of the settlements of Kentucky. (f. page 138.)

Late in 1782 Daniel Boone was deputy surveyor of Fayette county and was also Sheriff and County Lieutenant of Fayette, he being in frequent demand as a pilot and surveyor by persons seeking lands on which to settle. On August 19, 1783, he was appointed deputy surveyor of Lincoln county. In the Fall of 1784 he and his sons-in-law, William Hays and Joseph Scholl, with their families settled on Marble Creek, North of the Kentucky river, about five miles from Boone's Station, then in Fayette County. (k. 23 C 104.)

About the year 1786 he left the neighborhood of the Kentucky river and lived for some time at Limestone, now Maysville, at the mouth of Limestone Creek, a tributary of the Ohio River, then in Bourbon county, now in Mason county. (a. Vol. 2 p. 556.) He was there a tavern keeper and merchant, and was one of the first trustees of the town. While living at Limestone, in 1786, he was also made one of the first trustees of Washington, the oldest town in the then Bourbon county. In 1788 he moved from Limestone to the Kanawha Valley near Point Pleasant, situated at the junction of the Great Kanawha and Ohio Rivers in what was then the Northwestern part of the State of Virginia, but now within the limits of Mason county, West Virginia. In the same year he, with his wife and their son Nathan went by horseback, to their old Pennsylvania home in Berks county, on a visit to kinsfolk and friends. He returned to Point Pleasant, and, on October 6, 1789, upon the organization of the first court held after the formation of Kanawha County and appointment of officers of the first military organization, he was appointed Lieutenant Colonel, and in 1791 was elected as one of two representatives in the legislature from Kanawha county.

We find no record of Boone's life at Point Pleasant during the years immediately succeeding this except a number of surveys of land in said county, made by him in 1791, 1795 and 1798; the last survey recorded in said county in which Boone took part was made September 8, 1798. (Daniel Boone, by Dr. John P. Hale.)

The precise date of Boone's leaving Kanawha County for Upper Louisiana, now Missouri, is not known to the writer, but we find in Collins' History of Kentucky, Vol. 2, page 562:

> "Daniel Boone, the great pioneer, was a resident of Maysville in September, 1788. How late he remained at Maysville is not known. Depositions show that he was in Northern Kentucky in 1795; and Rev. Thos. S. Hinde saw him in October, 1797, on pack horses, take up his journey for Missouri, then Upper Louisiana."

In Peck's "Life of Daniel Boone" we find a record of the "Proceedings of the Legislature of Kentucky and of Congress, confirming Daniel Boone's Title to Lands in Missouri," the report from the committee on Public Lands, in the House of Representatives in Congress, on the 24th day of December, 1813, referring to the petition of Daniel Boone, states:

"That the petitioner was invited by Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Louisiana under the Spanish Government, to remove from Kentucky, who, as an inducement to his removal, promised the petitioner a grant of land in that country. The petitioner did remove to Louisiana before the year 1798; and on the 24th of January, 1798, he received from Zenon Trudeau a concession of one thousand arpents of land situated in the District of Femme Osage; had the same surveyed on the 9th of January, 1800."

"Colonel Boone and his family were the first Americans that settled within the present limits of the State of Missouri. The French had established trading posts at several points, and had formed a village of four or five hundred inhabitants at St. Louis, but there were no regular settlements beyond these."

On June 11, 1800, Boone was appointed syndic, or magistrate, for the Femme Osage district, a position which he held until the cession of Louisiana to the United States in the year 1804. He made a trip to Kentucky in the year 1801, to visit his son Jesse, in Kanawha County, Virginia, where Boone once lived. He was accompanied on this trip from Clark County, Kentucky, by his son-in-law Joseph Scholl. (k. 23 C 9; 23 C 11; 23 C 17 and 23 C 18.) During the same year (1801) he hunted beaver on the "Niango" or Niangua, river in Missouri (k), and there is a well established tradition in Camden County, in said State, the county in which the famous Hahatonka spring is located and through which the Niangua River flows, that Boone's camp and headquarters were at this spring. We can well imagine the delight of Boone, then 67 years of age, in finding such a beautiful spot whereon to erect his camp and from which to pursue his favorite calling, that of trapping. Hahatonka spring is almost entirely surrounded by high bluffs that are honey combed with caves and this neighborhood was at one time a favorite camping place of the Indians, as evidenced by the large number of arrow heads and Indian mounds yet to be found there. This spring and thousands of acres surrounding it, now belong to the estate of Robert M. Snyder, deceased. It has attracted a great deal of attention from the public for many years, and, with its surroundings, should be preserved in its natural state for the benefit and inspiration of the generations yet unborn.

At the time of Boone's removal to Upper Louisiana game was abundant and he spent a great deal of time hunting, extending his trips into the present limits of Callaway County, in Missouri, where there is yet standing a white oak tree, about one mile south of Williamsburg, in said County, on which the writer in 1917, found the initials "D. B." This tree has been known and referred to in that neighborhood for the past century as the "Daniel Boone tree." Boone's grandson, Joseph Scholl, Jr., and grand-father of the writer, owned at one time a farm of five hundred acres in this neighborhood. The last hunt made by Boone, of which we have any record, was made "up the Missouri" in June 1816, at which time he was living with his son Nathan Boone, in St. Charles County. (k. 22 S 230.)

Rebecca, the wife of Daniel Boone, died in St. Charles County, Missouri, on March 18, 1813, aged seventy-four years, one month and eleven days. After her death Boone remained for a while with his son Nathan, on Femme Osage Creek, where they had been living for several years; after which he made his home with his daughter Jemima, who, with her husband, Flanders Callaway, lived on a farm on Teuque Creek, in Warren County, Missouri, near the place where Mrs. Boone was buried.

In the latter part of the summer of 1820, Boone had a severe attack of fever, at the home of Flanders Callaway, but he recovered sufficiently to make a visit to the home of his son Nathan Boone, on Femme Osage Creek. "One day a nice dish of sweet potatoes—a vegetable of which he was very fond—was prepared for him. He ate heartily and soon after had an attack from which he never recovered. He gradually sank and, after three days' illness, died on the 26th of September, 1820," (d) aged eighty-five years, eleven months and four days, and was buried near the body of his wife, in a cemetery established in 1803 by David Bryan, upon the bank of a small stream called Teuque Creek about one and one-half miles southeast of the present site of the town of Marthasville, in Warren County, Missouri, it being at that time the only Protestant cemetery North of the Missouri River.

Daniel Boone never made any profession of religion or united with any church. In a letter to his sister-in-law, Sarah Boone, wife of his brother Samuel, written October 19, 1816, he says:

> "All the Relegan I have to love and fear God beleve in Jeses Christ. Don all the good to my Nighbour and my self that I Can and Do as Little harm as I Can help and trust on God's marcy for the rest and I Beleve God neve made a man of my prisepel to be Lost." (i)

The house in which Boone died is yet standing and is said to be the first stone house built in Missouri, outside of the City of St. Louis.

The body of Boone was conveyed the day following his death, to the home of his daughter Mrs. Flanders Callaway where the funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. James Craig, a son-in-law of Nathan Boone. At the time of his death the Constitutional Convention of Missouri was in session at St. Louis, and upon receipt of notice of his death, a resolution was offered by the Hon. Benjamin Emmons, a member from St. Charles, that the members wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, in respect to the memory of the deceased, and adjourn for one day. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

> "The portrait which we give as a frontispiece, is from a photograph of the painting made by Mr. Chester Harding, the distinguished artist of Boston, who came to Missouri in 1820, at the request of Revs. James E. Welch and John M. Peck, expressly to paint the picture. Boone, at that time, was at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Flanders Callaway, near the village of Marthasville, in Warren County. He was at first very much opposed to having his portrait painted, being governed by feelings of modesty and a strong dislike to anything approaching display or public attention; but he was finally prevailed upon by friends and relatives to sit for his picture. He was quite feeble at the time and was supported in his chair by Rev. Mr. Welch. He wore his buckskin hunting shirt, trimmed with otter's fur, and the knife that is seen in his belt is the same that he carried with him from North Carolina on his first expedition to Kentucky.
> " 'I, James E. Welch, of Warrensburg, Johnson Co., Mo., hereby certify that I believe this portrait to be a correct copy of Harding's picture of Col. Daniel Boone, which was painted in the summer of 1820. I stood by and held the Colonel's head while the artist was painting it, and my impressions at the time were, that it was an excellent likeness of the old pioneer, which I believe was the only picture taken of Col. Boone.

In the year 1900 there was founded, in the New York University, the Hall of Fame, wherein it was planned to honor one hundred and fifty great Americans, thirty foreign born Americans and sixty American women. The persons whose duty it was to select the names of the persons to be thus honored being empowered to vote every five years, completing the list in the year 2000. At a meeting held in the year 1915, of the electors whose ballot admits to the Hall of Fame, the names of seven great Americans were added to the list of those previously admitted, and among the seven was that of "DANIEL BOONE, PIONEER," the subject of this sketch.

On July 9, 1921, Ray Baker, director of the mint, announced the completion, at the Philadelphia mint, of the quarter of a million dollars in special fifty cent pieces, authorized by congress in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of Missouri statehood.

"The coin is the regulation half dollar size. The obverse shows the head of Daniel Boone with the dates 1821 and 1921, on either side of the figure. On the reverse are figures of an Indian and of a Missouri pioneer, with twenty-four stars. At the top is the legend, 'Missouri Centennial' and at the bottom, 'Sedalia,' where the Missouri celebration is to be held." (K. C. Star, July 10, 1921.) Missouri being the twenty-fourth state to be admitted into the Union.

We have followed Daniel Boone throughout the course of his life, down to the most recent honor paid his memory, and will here let him rest; confident are we in the belief that while the names of other men who were endowed with more learning or who rose higher in the councils of his day will have been forgotten, the fame of Daniel Boone will continue and will be a source of pride to each of his descendants.

Early Boone Records

Boone Genealogy as written by James Boone March 21st, 1788.

Our GENEALOGY, or PEDIGREE; traced as far back as had come to the knowledge of JOHN BOONE (the son of George & Mary Boone): wrote by JAMES BOONE (Grandson of the said George & Mary Boone).

GEORGE BOONE, I. (that is the first that we have heard of) was born in England.

GEORGE BOONE, II. (Son of George Boone, the First) was born in or near the City of Exeter in Devonshire; being a Blacksmith; his Wife's Maiden Name was SARAH UPPEY. He died aged 60; and she died aged 80 years, and never had an aching Bone, or decay'd Tooth.—

GEORGE BOONE, III. (son of George & Sarah Boone) was born at STOAK (a Village near the City of Exeter) in A. D. 1666, being a Weaver; his Wife's Maiden Name was MARY MAUGRIDGE, who was born in BRADNINCH (eight Miles from the City of Exeter) in the Year 1669, being a Daughter of John Maugridge & Mary his Wife whose maiden Name was MILTON. They (the said George & Mary Boone) had nine Children that lived to be Men and Women: namely, George, Sarah, Squire, Mary, John, Joseph, Benjamin, James & Samuel, having each of them several Children, excepting John who was never married. The said George and Mary Boone with their Family, came from the Town of Bradninch in Devonshire, Old-England (which is a Town at 8 miles Distance from the City of Exeter, and 177 measured Miles Westward from London); they left Bradninch the 17 Aug. 1717, and went to Bristol where they took Shipping, and arrived at Philadelphia in 1717 September 29, Old-Stile, or October 10th New-Stile; three of their Children, to wit, George, Sarah & Squire they sent in a few Years before. went to Abington, and staid a few Months there; thence to North-Wales, and liv'd about 2 Years there; thence to Oley in the same County of Philadelphia, where Sarah (being married) had moved to some Time before. This last Place of their Residence (since the Divisions made in the Township of Oley & County of Philadelphia) is called the Township of Exeter in the County of Berks: It was called Exeter, because they came from a Place near the City of Exeter. And,

He the said George Boone the Third, died on the Sixth Day of the Week, near 8 o'clock in the Morning, on the 27th of July 1744, aged 78 Years; and Mary his Wife died on the 2d Day of the Week, on the 2d of February 1740-1, aged 72 years; and were decently interred in Friends Burying-Ground, in the said Township of Exeter. And in 1735 May 15, (O. S.) he married Mary Foulke by whom he had fourteen Children, and Nine of them lived to be Men & Women, namely, Anne, Mary, Martha, James, John, Judah, Joshua, Rachel, & Moses. And in 1757 October 20, he married Anne Griffith, being just 20 Months after the Decease of his former Wife.—And here, for the Satisfaction of the Curious, I shall insert a few Chronological Remarks, viz.—

The said Mary Boone deceased in 1756 Feb. 20, at 20 Minutes past one in the Afternoon, which wanted but two Minutes & Sixteen Seconds of 20 o'Clock according to the Italian Manner of Reckoning (for the Italians, Jews, & some others, always begin their Day at Sun-Set); which was the 20th Day of the Zenith Month adar, when the Moon was 20 Days old, and 4 Weeks before the Vernal Equinox.——The Said James Boone, Senior, married Anne Griffith in 1757 October 20, at 20 Minutes past one in the Afternoon; that is, he was married to his Second (or last) Wife exactly 20 Months after the Decease of his first, and 4 Weeks after the Autumnal Equinox.——

JAMES BOONE, Senior, departed this Life on the 1st Day of September, A. D. 1785, on the Fifth Day of the Week, at ten Minutes after nine o'Clock at Night, in the 77th Year of his Age; and was decently interred in Friends Burying-Ground at Exeter on the Seventh Day of the Same Week. He (with his Parents, etc.) left Great-Britain in the 9th Year of his Age, and lived Almost 68 Years in Pennsylvania.——N. B. When he was born, it was between 9 & 10 at Night here in Pennsylvania (allowing for the Difference of Longitude); and he died between 9 & 10 at Night.——

JOHN BOONE, Senior (the third Son of George & Mary Boone) was born in the Town of Bradninch, in Devonshire, in Old-England, on the Seventh Day of the Week, about 10 or 11 o'clock in the Forenoon, on the 3 January 1701-2, Old-Stile, or A. And he departed this Life on the 10th Day of October 1785, on the Second Day of the Week, Sixteen Minutes after Midnight, in the 84th Year of his Age (being the oldest of our Name & Family, that we have heard of); and was decently interred in Friends Burial Ground at Exeter the next Day. He (with his Parents, etc.) left Great-Britain in the 16th Year of his Age, and lived EXACTLY 68 years here (in North-America) from the Day he landed at Philadelphia. He lived only 5 Weeks and 4 Days after the Decease of his Brother James.—N.B. All of our Relations of the Name of Boone, who were living after 1785 October 10, are American born, as far as we know.

Now, I shall conclude this Paper, after I have set down the Time & Place of my own Nativity, viz.——

I James Boone (the eldest Son of James Boone, Senior, & Mary his Wife) was born in the Township of Exeter aforesaid, on the Fifth Day of the Week, about five o'clock in the Morning, on the 26th Day of January 1743-4, Old-Stile, or A. D. 1744 February 6, New-Stile. The Geographical Situation of the Place of my Birth, is nearly as follows; viz.—

Latitude.....	40:	22 North
Longitude from London.....	75:	43½ West

So that, the Meridian passing through said Place, is 5 Hours 2 Minutes & 54 Seconds West from the Meridian of London; or nearly so, if otherwise.

(Note:-While the following is contained in the same manuscript group in the Draper Collection, it appears to be a different and separate composition by James Boone. The hand writing is the same as that in the foregoing record, but it is not so carefully prepared, nor does it seem to have been written on such good paper, as it is much more mutilated than the first document. It deals principally with the family of James Boone Sr.)

Note On Boone Genealogy

"It is proper that some notice of the authenticity of this curious document, and some account of the writer, should precede the narrative itself. Jonathan, eldest son of Squire Boone, the brother of Col. Daniel Boone, was sent, in or about the year 1787, to Berks county, Pennsylvania, to attend school; and there residing among his relatives, received the instructions of his father's cousin, James Boone; and returning home to Kentucky the next year, brought with him this Genealogical Narrative, written by the said James Boone, as is endorsed on the instrument, March 21st, 1788. (1) It is a beautiful specimen of chirography, as hundreds can attest who have seen it: "I can truly say," declares Mr. Charles Cist, the well-known statistician of Cincinnati, "I never examined a more remarkable manuscript document." This genealogical account has been preserved in Jonathan Boone's family, and from his grandson, Col. Wm. P. Boone, a prominent attorney at law of Louisville, Ky., the original has been obtained. This document is fully corroborated by another though briefer sketch, in precisely the same hand-writing, preserved by the late aged Miss Susannah Boone, raised in Berks county, Pa., and obtained from her half brother, James W. Biddle, Esqr., editor of the Pittsburg Daily American. The dates are precisely the same, so far as they go, in both papers. The same general dates also appear in a similar record preserved by a nephew of said James Boone, Mr. John Boone, of Berks county, Pa. (2)

(1) "Notes of conversations with the venerable Isiaiah Boone, a brother of Jonathan Boone and also with Col. W. P. Boone, of Louisville, Ky."

(2) "Ms. letter of Thomas E. Lee, of Berks County, Pa."

RECORDS OF THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS IN PENNSYLVANIA

The Boones were first associated with the Abington Meeting near Philadelphia, but later moved to Oley in Philadelphia County (now Exeter Township, Berks County), where they became members of the Gwynedd Meeting. As the community became more thickly settled and the congregation grew, it became necessary to divide Gwynedd Meeting, and on August 25, 1737 (Old Style), a new group was formed under the name of Oley Monthly Meeting, which name was later—May 27, 1742 (Old Style)—changed to Exeter.

This explains why early records of the Boone family are found in both Gwynedd and Exeter Meeting Records, although their place of residence remained the same. By far the greater number of Boone records are found in Exeter Meeting Records, and extend well into the nineteenth century. The following sketch of Exeter Friends' Meeting House was published by the Historical Society of Berks County, Pennsylvania, in 1913:—

> "One of the first Quaker meeting-houses in Pennsylvania, outside of Philadelphia, was erected in 1726, in that part of Oley Township which is now Exeter Township. It was a log building. In 1737 a larger meeting-house was erected, also built of logs. The second meeting-house was demolished about one hundred years ago, when the present stone building was erected. The first meeting-house stood near the corner of the field across the road west of the present meeting-house.
> "On December 24th, 1736, George Boone and wife Deborah deeded to the Friends one acre of ground for a meeting-house and burying place. The first meeting-house, which stood across the way, was on a corner of this same one-acre piece, the road now separating the plots being cut through in later years. The burial-ground is south of the meeting-house.
> "The line separating Exeter from the older township of Amity runs through the Friends' burying-ground. Exeter Township was formed in 1741; the survey of the lines on the draft presented with the petition for the new township was made by George Boone, Esq.
> "The membership of the once flourishing Exeter Meeting has for many years been diminishing in numbers, there being at this time but three members, all of them of the Lee family.
> "By bequest a fund has been provided which suffices to keep the property in order. No meetings have been held in this house for about ten years."

The original old records of the Friends have been carefully preserved, and are now deposited in the archives of the Society of Friends. Those in which we are most interested are now in the Department of Records of the Friends' Library, 142 N. 16th Street, Philadelphia. On account of their extreme age and historic value, these old records are no longer accessible to the public. Several years ago, however, careful abstracts of these records were made, and are now to be found in the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, 1300 Locust Street, Philadelphia. From these abstracts the following Boone records were copied in 1917.

EXETER MEETING HOUSE, SOCIETY OF FRIENDS
Berks County, Pennsylvania.

"It is much to be regretted that the Minutes of Abington Monthly Meeting as now preserved, are but an abstract of what the originals must have been, of which some idea may be had by comparing this volume with those which follow it. While there is no evidence of any loss of records by accident, yet when George Boone transcribed the minutes in 1718, it was thought unnecessary to preserve many details which would now be of great interest. The transcriber ventured, moreover, to preface the work with some historical remarks which could scarcely have been found in the minutes, and of which the strict accuracy may be questioned."

RADNOR MONTHLY MEETING

Addendum.

"Edward Roberts, in a visit to the land of his nativity (Merionithshire in the Principality of Wales) took some pains to get the account of the Births of several persons born there and afterwards removed with their parents into Pennsylvania and most of all were settled within the verge of this Monthly Meeting. After my father David George was appointed by the Monthly Meeting to record the Births of the children thereto belonging in the year 1750, he was furnished by Hugh Roberts, son of Edward Roberts, with the account so obtained as aforesaid. The Monthly Meeting in 1758 appointed me to Record Births in the place of my Father who declined. On mature consideration of the contents of the matter I hope no inconvenience can arise by entering the time of the births of those so brought here. The Record may be lost as it is in the ancient British Language, (I) shall just give the names of the child and Father with the Time of Birth, reserving the liberty of inserting the Mother's name where I am sure, and while the Record is in my custody, shall endeavor to preserve that paper. Jesse George."

At present Recorder of Births 1st Mo. 22nd, 1775.

Boones Mentioned in Various Books and Publications

These persons have not been identified as members of the George Boone III family, and therefore have not been placed in the foregoing genealogical record. The items are given here merely as a possible aid to others who may be searching for Boone names. Those Boones who were in America before 1713, or in the Southern Colonies before 1750, must have necessarily belonged to some other family of Boones.

The book references may be found at the end of this section.

Thomas Boone was a native of England, who first came to America in 1752 to take possession of an estate which devolved upon him at the death of Mrs. Boone, wife of his uncle Joseph Boone. The estate consisted of 6815 acres of land near Charleston, S. C., and was left to him and his brother Charles Boone about the year 1735 by Joseph Boone in reversion after the death of his wife. She died about 1751. Thomas Boone returned to England for a period, but in 1758 came again to America, and the following year was appointed Governor of New Jersey. (Evidence in the memorial of Thomas Boone to English Parliament, March, 1785, in claim for losses he suffered during the American Revolution. From "American Loyalists," a manuscript transcription of English papers, Manuscript Department, New York Public Library.)

In April, 1761, less than six months after he became Governor of New Jersey, Thomas Boone was appointed Governor of South Carolina, and in October of the same year he removed to South Carolina to assume the new governorship. Part Three

In the research made while preparing this Boone Genealogy, many interesting items were found which deal with the life and times of the early settlers of North Carolina and Kentucky. As they touch on the lives of many of the Boone Pioneers, it was thought well to give some of them in this section.

TRAVEL

The luxurious modes of travel of the present day make it rather difficult to imagine the almost insuperable hardships of a journey through the wilderness in the latter half of the eighteenth century. Going to new homes in a country still more wild and unbroken than that which they were leaving, families found it necessary to take with them all such articles of clothing, household furnishings and implements which they might need for several months or possibly years. Whatever else they needed they must depend upon wresting from the soil of the new homestead by their own hard labor. As a rule there were no wagon roads, which necessitated packing all the goods upon horses. Who of us of the present generation could "pack up" wisely and well for such a journey? Fortunately they had not accustomed themselves to a multiplicity of household goods and personal belongings. Their journeys were lightened by simplicity of requirements, glad hearts, and perfect, abounding health.

> "Through privations incredible and perils thick, thousands of men, women and children came in successive caravans, forming continuous streams of human beings, horses, cattle, and other domestic animals, all moving onward along a lonely and houseless path to a wild and cheerless land. Cast your eyes back on that long procession of missionaries in the cause of civilization; behold the men on foot with their trusty guns on their shoulders, driving stock and leading pack-horses; and the women, some walking with pails on their heads, others riding with children on their laps, and other children swung in baskets on horses fastened to the tails of others going before. See them encamped at night, expecting to be massacred by Indians; behold them in the month of December, in that ever memorable season of cold called the "hard winter" (1779), travelling two or three miles a day, frequently being frozen or killed by the falling of horses on the icy and almost impassable trace, and subsisting on stinted allowances of stale bread and meat. But now lastly look at them at the destined fort, perhaps on the eve of merry Christmas, when met by the hearty welcome of friends who had come before, and cheered by fresh buffalo meat and parched corn, they rejoice at their deliverance, and resolve to be contented with their lot.

"This is no vision of the imagination; it is but an imperfect description of the pilgrimage of my own father and mother, and of many others who settled in Kentucky in December, 1779." (a)

In contrast with the alluring travel advertisements of today, we find this notice which was published in the "Kentucky Gazette," Nov. 1st, 1788.

"Notice: A large company will meet at the Crab Orchard the 19th of November in order to start the next day through the Wilderness. As it is very dangerous on account of the Indians, it is hoped each person will go well armed." (a)

HOMES AND CUSTOMS

A HOUSE-RAISING

"Those more fortunate pioneers who settled in groups won the first heat in the battle with the wilderness through massed effort under wariness. They made their clearings in the forest, built their cabins and stockades, and planted their cornfields, while lookouts kept watch and rifles were stacked within easy reach. Every special task, such as a "raising," as cabin building was called, was undertaken by the community chiefly because the Indian danger necessitated swift building and made group action imperative. But the staunch heart is ever the glad heart. Nothing in this frontier history impresses us more than the joy of the pioneer at his labors. His determined optimism turned danger's dictation into an occasion for jollity. On the appointed day for the "raising," the neighbors would come, riding or afoot, to the newcomer's holding—the men with their rifles and axes, the women with their pots and kettles. Every child toddled along too, helping to carry the wooden dishes and spoons. These free givers of labor had something of the Oriental's notion of the sacred ratification of friendship by a feast."

"The usual dimensions of a cabin were sixteen by twenty feet. The timber for the building, having been already cut, lay at handlogs of hickory, oak, young pine, walnut or persimmon. To make the foundations the men seized four of the thickest logs, laid them in place, and notched and grooved and hammered them into as close a clinch as if they had grown so. The wood must grip by its own substance alone to hold up the pioneer's dwelling, for there was not an iron nail to be had in the whole of the Back Country. Logs laid upon the foundation logs and notched into each other at the four corners formed the walls; and, when these stood at seven feet, the builders laid parallel timbers and puncheons to make both flooring and ceiling. The ridgepole of the roof was supported by two crotched trees and the roofing was made of logs and wooden slabs. The crevices of the walls were packed close with red clay and moss. Lastly, spaces for a door and windows were cut out. The door was made thick and heavy to withstand the Indian's rush. And the windowpanes? They were of paper treated with hog's fat or bear's grease."

"When the sun stood overhead, the women would give the welcome call of "Dinner!" Their morning had not been less busy than the men's. They had baked corn cakes on hot stones, roasted bear or pork, or broiled venison steaks; and above all and first of all—they had concocted the great "stew pie" without which a raising could hardly take place. This was a disputatious mixture of deer, hog, and bear—animals which in life would surely have companioned each other as ill! It was made in sufficient quantity to last over for supper when the day's labor was done. At supper the men took their ease on the ground, but with their rifles always in reach. If the cabin just raised by their efforts stood in the Yadkin, within sight of the great mountains the pioneers were one day to cross, perhaps a sudden bird note warning from the lookout, hidden in the brush, would bring the builders with a leap to their feet. It might be only a hunting band of friendly Catawbas that passed, or a lone Cherokee who knew that this was not his hour. If the latter, we can, in imagination, see him look once at the new house on his hunting pasture, slacken rein for a moment in front of the group of families, lift his hand in sign of peace, and silently go his way hillward. As he vanishes into the shadows, the crimson sun, sinking into the unknown wilderness beyond the mountains, pours its last glow on the roof of the cabin and on the group near its walls. With unfelt fingers, subtly, it puts the red touch of the West in the faces of the men—who have just declared, through the building of a cabin, that here is Journey's End and their abiding place." (a-2) Constance L. Skinner.

A KENTUCKY STATION

"The new station was quickly built. It was a rude and solitary habitation, but as strong as it was rude. It consisted of twelve or fourteen cabins of logs with the bark on, with roofs of roughest clapboards, and provided with chimneys of sticks and clay, but unlighted by one pane of glass, and all arranged as a hollow square by the aid of great pickets made of trunks of trees split in two and planted firmly in the ground. And the whole, green as the forest from which it had been hewed, was fashioned by the axe and put together by wooden pins without the help of a nail or hinge of iron. Stations and cabins were always placed near a spring, with which Kentucky is abundantly blessed, so that in time of Indian siege their water supply could not be cut off."

"The cabins contained furniture of the rudest kind, which would be made with the axe, the saw, and the auger. The bedstead was made by inserting forked tree limbs in the floor (dirt) and running poles through the prongs to bear the boards on which the bedding lay. Buffalo robes formed the mattress, while bear skins and deer skins supplied the covering. The dining table was a puncheon hewed smooth with the broadaxe and supported by four sticks set into as many auger holes at the corners. Chairs were three-legged stools without backs. The cupboard consisted of boards laid on pegs driven into the corner walls. The table furniture was made up of wooden plates, bowls and trenches, usually turned from the buckeye. There were pewter plates and spoons, and delft cups and saucers, and two pronged iron forks, and case knives, and tin cups which had been brought from the old settlements, but they were not in general everyday use. They were only brought out on gala occasions, or when there was company. The fireplace occupied nearly one whole side of the cabin; the windows, where the light entered through greased paper, was a hole cut in the wall, and the door was simply a larger opening, ——and the aperture covered with Buffalo skins. Near the door hung two prongs of buck's horns fastened to the wall, and on them lay the long-barreled flint lock rifle, without which no cabin was completely furnished." (b)

"The men wore buckskin breeches, hunting shirts and moccasins, with raccoon or fox skin caps: the women, such coarse linsey gowns as they could make by spinning on the little wheel and weaving on the hand loom, lint of the wild nettle and the wool of the buffalo. Buffalo, deer, bear and wild turkey furnished the principal meat, while Indian corn supplied the usual bread." (b)

These frontier forts were arranged in the form of a parrallelogram some two hundred or more feet long and about half as wide. The settlers' cabins formed the outer walls of this quadrangle, being joined together at their outer walls by a strong stockade of logs. At the four corners of the fort were two-story somewhat larger buildings used as bastions. These jutted out with port-holes in the angles, so that a flank fire might reach any savages who were close to the stockade. The huge log gates which guarded the entrance to the fort were flanked on either side by watch towers where sentries could scan the forests for lurking danger. Loop-holes were in the outer walls of cabins and stockade. In the center of the fort was usually a well, surrounded by a grass plot where cattle and horses could be gathered during times of danger. Theodore Roosevelt says regarding Fort Boonesborough:—

ANDIRONS USED IN FORT BOONESBOROUGH

Now in Possession of Berea College, Berea, Kentucky.

Mrs. Anna Ernberg, Director of The Fireside Industries, Berea College, writes as follows: "These andirons were brought over the Wilderness Road by a comrade of Daniel Boone, whose name was Andrew Townsend; they were given to me by a great-grandson, Andrew White, who is still living in this locality. He told me that the andirons were used for years at the Boonesborough Fort at the time Daniel Boone and his followers were building and occupying the same."

Berea College, an institution conducted for the benefit of the Kentucky mountain folk, stands at the gateway of the Cumberlands through which the Boones first entered Kentucky.

"Every such fort or station served as the rallying place for the country round about, the strong-hold in which the people dwelt in time of danger; and later on, when all danger had long ceased, it often remained in changed form, growing into the chief town of the district. Each settler had his own farm besides, often a long way from the fort, and it was on this that he usually intended to make his permanent home. This system enabled the inhabitants to combine for defence, and yet to take up the large tracts of four to fourteen hundred acres to which they were by law entitled. It permitted them in time of peace to live well apart with plenty of room between, so that they did not crowd one another—a fact much appreciated by men in whose hearts the spirit of extreme independence and self reliance was deeply ingrained." (c)

"A wedding was always a time of festival. If there was a church anywhere near the bride rode thither on horseback behind her father, and after the service her pillion was shifted to the bridegroom's steed. If, as generally happened, there was no church, the groom and his friends, all armed, rode to the house of the bride's father, plenty of whiskey being drunk and the men racing recklessly along the narrow bridle paths, for there were few roads or wheeled vehicles in the backwoods. At the bride's house the ceremony was performed, and then a huge dinner was eaten; after which the fiddling and dancing began, and were continued all the afternoon and most of the night as well." (d) Roosevelt.

SIEGE OF BOONESBOROUGH

In 1778 Daniel Boone escaped from the Indians after a long captivity, and returned to Boonesborough with the knowledge that the fort was soon to be besieged. He had the fort put in repair, corn brought in, and dispatched a message to Holston in North Carolina for reinforcements. The following account of this siege was given by Daniel Bryan (No. 111), a nephew of Daniel Boone:—

> "With 19 of the men, Boone now went on an expedition against old Wills town or Paint Creek, but when they had crossed the Ohio, the Indian sign became thicker and more fearful, till they passed where it went towards the Ohio in a broad trace. As they passed they met a party of about thirty Indians coming along with loud laughs, and talking in a high key. They filed in ambushcade on either hand, fired upon them killing several, and then knowing they were discovered, made good their escape across the Ohio. Boone arrived at Boonesboro at night. * * * * * * * *

then stepped forward about half-way, and called for Capt. Boone. Boone answered him. They met, accosting each other in friendship. Blackfish then asked Boone why he had left him. Boone said he wanted to see his wife and children. Blackfish said if he had asked him he would have let him go at any time he chose, and given him provisions for the way. He then let him know his business, and produced his wampum. There was Boonesborough, and here was Detroit. The rod of red beads was the war-path they had come along; the row of white beads was the path they would take back if his men peaceably surrendered, and the row of black beads showed they would be put to death if they did not surrender. Boone asked two days to consider it; that while he had been a prisoner the garrison had been put into the hands of another man. In those two days they were getting in their stock and filling their vessels with water. During this time it was agreed no Indian should come within 30 steps of the fort (that they might not see inside) and the line was marked. One Indian, more daring than the others, ventured to pass over this line, and was threatened by the sentry with a shot. The Indian complained to Boone. Boone told him that was the agreement. At this time Boone let Blackfish know they had concluded not to surrender.

"Blackfish then asked him by what right the white people had taken possession of this country? Boone answered they had purchased by Dick Henderson, of the Cherokee Indians. Blackfish turned to one of the Cherokees who was standing by, and said to him, 'Did your people sell this country to the whites?' He said they did. Blackfish said, 'Well they ought to have it, if that was the case:' and as his claim was no better than that of the white man, then they ought to live in peace. He then proposed a treaty, that they should live in peace as long as the trees grew and the waters ran. The interview was out on a log, within 15 yards of an embankment. Blackfish had his men, 16, arranged one on each side of a white man, and one behind each white man, on a log behind. Those behind had tomahawks concealed under their match-coats. Blackfish then told Boone that this, crossing the palms of the hands as in the shaking of the hands, was a short grip; which was a short friendship. But that this, putting their other hand around the arm below the shoulders, was a long peace, and that theirs was to continue, etc. He then endeavored, after getting them to rise and shake hands in this manner, to rush them under the bank. Just at this time those in the fort fired, and put them all in confusion, so that all of the men got away. Boone was aimed at by the Indian behind him, but the tomahawk went over his head, as he was in a bending position, overreaching him, and striking him only with the handle. * * Squire Boone was shot through the shoulder. * * * All the others escaped unhurt.

"The attack on the fort was now general and open. They shot arrows with flaming splinters on the cabins, and poured vollies from their guns on the roofs to kill any that might get up to put it out. But they would slip a clapboard to one side underneath and put their hand out to remove it. The black man belonging to Sam. Henderson had a little garden adjoining the fort, the fence of which joined to his cabin on the corner. They set fire to this fence, but the men got inside the floor of the cabin, and dug till, with a forked stick, they could shove the fence away. So it burned out. * * They (the Indians) also dug a ditch, intending to undermine, which was noticed, —partly by the water being muddied below the place. They in the fort dug a ditch 6 or 8 feet deep, inside the cabins in the night, and threw the dirt out at the outside doors. Here sentries were kept stationed to listen if they heard them dig. The Indians knew by this that they were found out. They then opened up a way to the ground, to see if they were near, or in the fort. A negro they had, repeatedly put up his head to see. Three men were stationed with cocked rifles and directed to fire at the lower edge of the hole the moment the negro appeared. The Indians made it his burial place, where he was afterwards found." (e)

(There is apparently no conclusion to this history of the siege, as the manuscript passes on to other subjects.-H.A.S.)

Moses Boone, son of Squire and nephew of Col. Daniel Boone, was a young boy in the fort at the time. Combining his personal recollections and stories heard from his father, he, also, left a very detailed account of the siege, which is preserved in the Draper Collection. It follows in general the narrative just given, with a few additions which we will give below:—

"The fore part of the day, perhaps about 9 or 10 o'clock the Indians made their appearance on the hill-side south of the fort in Indian file, about 440, the forty were Canadians, and the 400 Indians under old Black-Fish, some 45 years old."

"Col. Boone had ordered the men who went to the treaty, as they could not take out their guns, to place them loaded where they could conveniently seize them as they should enter the fort, well persuaded, as he was, of the ultimate result of the affair. But it was deemed best to carry out the treaty-matter, hoping it might end well—and moreover time would be gained, a consideration of greatest moment, as the Holston men were momentarily expected—and every pains were taken to ward off treachery; the men at the Treaty were 8 or 9—most likely nine—Col. D. Boone, Col. Callaway, Maj. Smith, Squire Boone, —— Bradley, others not recollected."

"The women were busy running bullets, making patches, etc. About 35 men able to bear arms—ammunition scarce, and had to use it sparingly, for shots when Indians would be seen; men so few, that they could not get much rest, etc."

"The flag at the head of a tall staff some 40 or 50 feet high, became from the first a mark for the Indians, and after several days, they finally cut off with their bullets the small — (illegible) just below the flag; and made a great rejoicing when the flag fell. The men soon had the pole down, the flag replaced, and again floating—and now, in turn, raised the hurra. The Indians remained quiet at this, and did not seem to try to shoot it down again."

"Judge Boone thinks the main attack in the night, was the last night of the siege—but will not insist on it: The Indians that night showed a more determined intention to take the fort—would rush up with torches in their hands—these and the firing on both sides—and the united yelling, was quite animated—and it was so light in the fort, that any article could be plainly seen to be picked up in any part of the fort—some said even to a pin. But they were repulsed, and it was believed they suffered more severely that night than during any other part of the siege. The next morning by an hour by sun, not an Indian was to be seen—some few distant guns heard."

"During the siege, Indians would shoot arrows, some with burning faggots attached, designed to fire the cabin roofs. A few old musket barrels, unbreeched, provided with swabs to use to put out fire, and would force out a pint or quart of water—at a time upon the roof; and several times were effectually used in extinguishing the fire. Almost every night, providentially, the rain fell, which wet the cabin roofs, and made them the more difficult to set on fire—and water was thus caught for the cattle and for use in the fort."

"Eleven days siege altogether—2 1-2 parleying, the balance fighting. A large quantity of bullets were picked up—they were stuck thick, particularly around the port-holes for three feet around, in the bastions—so thick that they would strike against each other and fall down upon the ground—could afterwards scrape up the battered bullets by hand-fulls on the ground beneath the port holes." BRYAN'S STATION AND THE BATTLE OF BLUE LICKS.

In August, 1782 Bryan's (or Bryant's) Station, not far from Boonesborough, was besieged by about 600 Indians under the leadership of the notorious Simon Girty.

It so happened that Bryan's Station was one of the few forts erected without a spring or well within its walls, and the water supply had to be brought from a spring some distance from the stockade. Knowing that the Indians were congregating nearby preparatory to an attack, the women and children of the fort, said to have been led by one Jemima Johnson, went bravely out of the stockade within sight of the lurking red skins, and with their buckets and pails procured enough water to supply them during the ensuing siege.

Owing to this brave act of the women of Bryan's Station, the men of the fort were able to withstand the siege which followed and the Indians were repulsed, but only to lead the white men, reenforced by the men of Boonesborough, into the ambush which led to the disasterous battle of Blue Licks the following day. In this encounter about a third of the white men were killed or taken prisoner. (g)

Among the killed were Israel Boone, son of Col. Daniel Boone, and Daniel Boone's nephew Thomas, son of Samuel. Squire Boone, another son of Samuel, was seriously wounded. (h)

A complete and very interesting account of the Siege of Bryan's Station and the Battle of Blue Licks, can be found in Filson Club Publication, No. 12 "Bryan's Station." (h)

An excerpt from Lyman C. Draper's interview with Daniel Bryan (nephew of Daniel Boone) in April 1844, also proves interesting. It says:—

"Captain William Hays (Col. Daniel Boone's son-in-law) raised a party of about 12 men on Kentucky River, a dozen miles from Lexington, probably the second day of the siege and pressed on to Bryan's—found a fence built across the lane—partly torn down—not this cross fence, but the lane fence, and leaped over it into the field. The Indians were posted each side of the lane, for some twenty paces, and as Hay's party of horsemen dashed down the lane, they raised such a cloud of dust as to greatly screen them from the enemy's aim: and hence probably it was that they were not all cut off. Hays was wounded in the neck and came near falling from his horse, but escaped." (i)

SKETCH OF BRYAN'S STATION

From Description by Joseph Ficklin of Lexington, Kentucky, who was a young boy in the Station at the Time of the Siege.

A modern writer, H. Addington Bruce, gives the following graphic word-picture of the event:

"It was at this juncture that the women of Bryan's Station proved themselves the bravest and noblest of heroines. While all was confusion and anxiety; while, in excited whispers, the men were consulting together, Mrs. Jemima Sugget Johnson, the wife of Colonel Robert Johnson and mother of Colonel Richard M. Johnson—afterwards a hero of the battle of the Thames and Vice-president of the United States, but then a tiny infant slumbering in a rough-hewn cradle—quietly stepped forward and offered to conduct a party of women and girls to the Indian-surrounded spring.

"Every morning, she reminded her astonished hearers, it was the custom of the women to go to the spring and procure the day's supply of drinking water. There was just a chance that the Indians in their eagerness to surprise the garrison, would not molest them if they went out as usual. At any rate she was ready to go, and she was sure that her daughter Betsy, a little girl of ten, would accompany her, even if nobody else would.

"There was a moment's hesitation while the women gazed inquiringly into one another's faces. Then, one after the other, they announced their willingness to make the desperate attempt. The men would have dissuaded them had they not realized that this was the only possible means by which the all-essential water could be obtained.* * * * The rear gate of the stockade was thrown open, and the girls and women, twenty-eight in all, set out on their perilous journey.

"Along the narrow trail that wound down the hill to the spring, they leisurely made their way, laughing and chatting as though in entire ignorance of the danger threatening them. As they approached the undergrowth they could distinctly see, gleaming in the light of the morning sun, the glint of the Indian's rifle-barrels; and here and there a waving plume, a lithe brown arm, and the glare of a savage eye. Not for an instant did they falter, but advancing with apparent unconcern, dipped their buckets and gourds, their piggins and noggins, into the spring, and returned to the stockade at the same leisurely gait. It was a consummate piece of acting, a marvellous exhibition of self control, and it completely deceived the Indians, who, intent on executing their original plan, permitted them to go and come unharmed.

"With their safe return the defender's of Bryan's Station hastened into action. While most of them stationed themselves at the port-holes overlooking the hill in the rear, the volunteers who were to engage the Indians on the trail dashed out, firing and shouting. * * * * Out of the cornfield, out of the weeds and grass, sprang the Indians, leaping like panthers up the long hill, whooping and hallooing, and bearing in their midst the flaming torch, dread instrument of the destruction that would ensue if they broke through the stockade.

"Nearing the station, the entire mass of Indians converged towards the stockade gate. On they came, rapidly on, while the settlers, silent as death, grimly set their lips and waited. Still nearer they came. Then, at a hoarse word of command, a deadly volley flashed from every port-hole. Casting their rifles aside, and snatching others from the hands of their wives and daughters, the settlers fired again. Through the smoke could be heard howls of amazement, wrath and pain; and when the air had cleared not an Indian was to be seen save those who had been laid low by the garrison's bullets. * * * *

"But there was no second charge, the Indians choosing rather to adopt their usual tactics of assailing the settlement with bullets and fire-arrows launched from cover. * * * Early in the afternoon, to the chagrin of the savages, a small party of horsemen, summoned from Lexington by a messenger who had left Bryan's Station before the engagement began, forced their way through the Indians' lines and entered the station without the loss of a single man. Their arrival not merely strengthened the garrison, but brought the siege to a sudden end; for, realizing that the entire countryside would soon be aroused, the Indians, after continuing their attack until nightfall, started in full retreat to the Ohio.

"Next day three different relief parties, each about fifty strong, arrived from Boonesborough, Lexington, and Harrodstown. Among them were many of the best-known men in Kentucky. Foremost of all, of course, was Boone, burning to avenge the death of his brother Edward, who had been killed during an earlier Indian invasion. * * * The route taken by the Indians was soon ascertained, and pressing forward with great rapidity, the settlers by noon came to the place where the enemy had encamped the previous night. Thence the trail led to the lower Blue Lick, which was reached early in the morning of the nineteenth. All along the way, however, were signs indicating to the experienced veterans in the little army that the Indians were courting, rather than evading pursuit; and before fording the Licking another council of war was called, at which Boone declared that it would be madness to proceed without Logan's reinforcements, as the enemy were almost certainly setting a trap. This wise council might have been heeded had not McGary, with a taunting cry, spurred his horse into the river, swinging his rifle above his head, and exclaiming:— 'Delay is dastardly! Let all who are not cowards follow me!' * * * *

"It could scarcely be called a battle, so quickly was it at an end. Rather was it a massacre, a butchery, a pitiless hewing down. All who, escaping the tomahawk, plunged headlong into the river and sought safety by swimming, found themselves assailed by a hail of bullets. * * * Of the army that had so gallantly, though recklessly, responded to McGary's challenging appeal nearly seventy were left dead on the field, while four were carried off to the Indian towns, and tortured to death. * * * * To add to the bitterness of the defeat, as the survivors approached Bryan's Station they were met by Logan with an army of almost five hundred men, a force which, in conjunction with their own, would have overwhelmed the enemy had they only heeded Boone's warning.

"It was then too late to do anything but bury the dead, as, on advancing rapidly, Logan found that the Indians had crossed the Ohio immediately after the battle, and were secure in the tangled fastnesses of their own country." (j)

PENSION APPLICATION OF A REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIER

"Sam. Boone (son of Sam. and nephew of Col. D. Boone) of Clark Co., Ky.; Declaration, 9th Sept., 1832: Was born 21st, March, 1758, on the Yadkin—entered the service in Camden District, S. C. in the fall of 1775, and went a tour of duty to the upper part of S. C., to Ninety Six— in that vicinity we had a battle with the Tories, and took 300 prisoners: Rendezvoused at the New Store, on the Congaree; was in Col. John Russell's Regiment. In July '76, went to Charleston as a drafted militiaman, and served a 3 months' tour, under Col. Robert Goodwin, and Gen. Joseph Kershaw— were in no battle that tour. In the fall of '78, was again in service—under Gen. Lincoln—at Parisburg, in no battle; In 1779, served a tour under Gen. Williamson, and marched to Augusta.

2d Declaration, 17th March, 1834; under former declaration, omitted to state his services against the Indians, being unaware that he would receive credit. That when he was discharged (in 1779—) in South Carolina, hearing that his uncle Daniel Boone was raising a company in North Carolina to march to Kentucky, he went to Rowan County where Col. Boone was raising it, and entered it as a volunteer. They marched on the 15th of Sept., 1779, and arrived at Boonesboro in October of the same year. The very next day after their arrival, he was ordered to Bryan's, near Lexington, with a detachment to protect the families there settled, where they were placed under the command of Capt. William Hays. They immediately commenced a Station, which was afterwards called Bryan's Station, which they did not complete till the spring of 1780. In that spring the Indians killed one of the company, and stole nearly all the horses. He aided in erecting nearly all the buildings erected there. He remained there in garrison until Oct., 1780, when orders were received from Col. Boone to forward a detachment to reinforce Boone's Station, when he marched as one of them and remained in garrison until in the spring of 1781, when he was sent with others under the command of Capt. Hayes to aid in building canoes for Gen. Clark's army, to convey corn to him, then at the falls of Ohio. After that service, which only lasted 2 weeks, he returned to the Fort at Boone's Station, where he remained in garrison defending it until April, 1782; in which month Col. Boone sent a detachment to Strode's Station, which was then commanded by Capt. John Constant. There, at Capt. Constant's request, applicant in company with Andrew Rule volunteered as spies, and served thirty days. After that he returned to Boone's Station, where he remained until the middle of June, when he served a tour of thirty days as a spy under Capt. James Stevenson, ranging the country from Licking River to Big Bone Lick, after which he returned to the station. He remained in garrison until 2nd of August, when he was again detached under the command of Maj. John Holder in pursuit of a party of Indians who had taken two boys, named James Hay, son of Major Hay, and John Calloway, son of Col. Richard Calloway. They overtook the Indians at the Upper Blue Licks, and in the battle which ensued they were defeated, and returned to Boone's Station. There he remained, and in a few days several of the wounded who were in the battle of the Lower Blue Licks were brought in, and he aided in taking care of them. He remained in garrison doing duty until April, 1783. Resided in Fayette Co., Ky., until March, 1829, when he removed to Clark Co., and there has ever since resided. (k)

THE DANIEL BOONE PORTRAIT BY SULLY.

The picture of Daniel Boone which is used as a frontispiece is no doubt either an imaginary picture by the artist Sully, or one painted by him from the portrait by Chester Harding*, which is said to be the only one of Daniel Boone painted from life, and is also said to have been frequently copied.

At the time the engraving was made, the original painting by Thomas Sully was owned by Colonel Frank M. Etting of Philadelphia. Later it was in possession of Colonel Etting's nephew, Mr. Frank M. Etting of the same city; but it has now passed into other hands, and the present ownership of the picture cannot be ascertained.

Thomas Sully (1783-1872) was one of the best of the early American painters, and was particularly noted for his portrait work. Among his best-known portraits are those of Commodore Decatur, in the City Hall, New York; Thomas Jefferson, in the United States Military Academy at West Point; and General Lafayette, in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. Sully also went to England in 1837 and painted a remarkable portrait of the youthful Queen Victoria, the original study of which is now in our Metropolitan Museum of Art. Having been born nearly fifty years later than Daniel Boone, it is doubtful if Sully ever saw the old pioneer; or if so, it was in Boone's old age. It is more probable that his knowledge of Boone's appearance was gathered from the Harding portrait.

It must be admitted that the picture is not a true conception of Daniel Boone as we have learned to think of him. It is not a likeness of a sturdy frontiersman who could easily kill a "bar" or spend weeks alone in a wilderness; but rather that of a statesman or scholar,—perhaps a minister of the gospel. Although Sully was a talented artist, he was not a great enough man to admit that his subject, Boone, was a plain pioneer woodsman. Hedged about with the conventionalities of his period and perhaps living up to his reputation as a fashionable portrait painter, Sully divested Boone of his rough hunting clothes, and gave him the dress and bearing of the gentlemen of affairs whom the artist was in the habit of portraying. In them Boone himself would have been most ill at ease. How we long to take the book out of the pictured hand and place there instead a rifle or hunting knife! A book meant so little to Daniel Boone. Let us, for the sake of congruity, imagine the book to contain Boone's surveying notes, perhaps the only book which he might have kept more or less constantly with him.

Inaccurate as we find this conception of Boone regarding posture and attire, we can yet find much to admire in the clear, strong drawing of the face. In it we find that the painter Sully and the engraver Johnson have depicted something of that quiet dignity, that steadfast intentness of purpose, that clean-cut nobility of soul which made Daniel Boone the true gentleman which he was, and one whom we, his kinsmen, are proud to claim as our own.
